Steel Works And Other Industries Hammered By Daring Bombardment; Iowa, Missouri And Wisconsin Among Ships

By Leif Erickson

GUAM, Sunday, July 15.—(AP)—The newest, most powerful battleships in the U. S. navy are shelling the Hokkaido steel mill port of Muroran, more than 250 miles north of the scene of the fleet's bombardment on Honshu yesterday, and the fleet's carrier planes more than 1,000 strong simultaneously are striking northern Japan.

Announcing this spectacular second day of the air and sea bombardment of the Japanese main home islands, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said that the great battleship Iowa, Missouri and Wisconsin are participating and that the action is continuing.

With the battleships are the destroyers McGowan, Norman Scott and Remey, a special communique said are bombarding in the vicinity of Muroran while the heavy ships strike directly at the city's steel plants.

Naming of these vessels indicated that at least two mighty task forces of surface ships were roaming practically at will up and down the Japanese coasts.

Yesterday Nimitz announced the bombardment of Kamaishi on Honshu Island by the battleships Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota, two heavy cruisers and four destroyers.

Those ships and the carrier planes of the fleet set Kahaishi afire, destroyed or damaged 87 Japanese planes and destroyed or damaged 39 enemy ships plus destruction of 27 locomotives and railway facilities in yesterday's strikes, Nimitz said, despite unfavorable weather.

Locations of today's air strikes were not yet disclosed.

Nimitz in an earlier communique, however, had said that both the surface forces and the planes were hitting the enemy again.

Actually, he announced the shore bombardment hours before it was confirmed by reports from the fleet—boldly telling the Japanese that the U. S. fleet was going to strike again—an unprecedented action.

The bombardment then began at 9:35 a. m. (Japanese time)—(7:35 p. m., Saturday, Central war time.)

The new bombardment force is commanded by Rear Adm. O. C. Badger.

The target, Muroran, is at the entrance to Uchiura Bay on Southern Hokkaido, in confined waters which the fleet showed amazing temerity in entering.

Results of the shelling were not immediately available.

Fire started in the steel city of Kamaishi by yesterday's shelling raged on today and expanded to the harbor.

"Heavy surface units and fleet aircraft are engaged," the Nimitz communique related.

Big Three Expected To Look Into Fate Which Awaits Japan

Interpretation By Kirke L. Simpson (Associated Press War Analyst)

Overshadowing all other world events this July week-end is the impending first meeting of Prime Minister Churchill of Britain, Marshal Stalin of Russia, and President Truman of the United States, in conquered Germany.

Out of it could come conceivably not alone basic United Nations agreements to implement the peace in Europe, but reorientation of the war against Japan.

There is no official word from any source to that effect. Discussions of the war in Asia is notably absent from speculative "Big Three" agendas compiled in London and Washington. 'C' RATION STAMPS TO CEASE OCT. 1

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 14—(AP)—The "C" gasoline coupon will pass out of the rationing picture October 1 but the change will have no effect on mileage granted to motorists, two Washington OPA officials said here.

The two, T. K. Tindale, assistant to the deputy OPA administrator in charge of rationing, and Don Leach, assistant to Tindale, who were in Fort Worth yesterday, said the action would mean that all gasoline rations above an "A" book would be issued in the form of "B" coupons.

They said that recent changes in the gasoline rationing program had tended to eliminate the difference between "B" and "C" drivers; that the use of only one kind of supplemental gasoline rationing coupon would simplify record keeping and eliminate expense of printing two types of tickets and maintaining stocks of them.

NEW ORLEANS, July 14—[illegible]

Fernandez said the auditors and clerks were at present engaged in sending out refund checks amounting to about $[illegible] to [illegible] taxpayers, while [illegible] other Louisianians already had received a total of $[illegible] in refunds.

About [illegible] Louisianians have failed to receive their 1942 tax refunds because of failure to notify the internal revenue collector of changes in address, he said. These checks total more than $100,000 and the owners should apply for them, the collector said.

Meantime Fernandez reported that only about seven per cent of the first 4,000 New Orleans taxpayers cited for making repeated erroneous deductions on their 1942-43-44 returns had failed to appeal for adjustments.

Fernandez estimated a week ago that about 100,000 Louisianians would be cited for erroneous deductions and said the sums collected by the government on these returns might reach $6,000,000 for the 1942-43-44 period.

The first 4,000 New Orleans payers have paid in cash $70,654.63 in additional taxes for erroneous deductions and have agreed to pay $75,000 additional.

"It is almost impossible to defraud the government of taxes by skipping town or making false returns," Fernandez said. "The machinery of the internal revenue department is set up so efficiently that it is often referred to as 'The Lie Detector' which traps the cheats and chislers."

2 CHILDREN KILLED BY SPEEDING TRAIN

MEDFORD, Minn., July 14—(AP)—Two children were killed today after their mother made a vain effort to halt the speeding northbound Rock Island Railroad Rocket and it struck the auto in which they were riding, stalled on the tracks at a grade crossing here.

Victims were Patrick Wayne Hayes, 4, and his brother, Bruce Edward, 3, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hayes, living on a nearby farm.

Witnesses said Mrs. Hayes apparently became confused and after making a futile effort to restart the engine of the car, leaped from it in the hopeless try to halt the train.

Big Three Expected To Look Into Fate Which Awaits Japan

Interpretation By

Overshadowing all other world events this July week-end is the impending first meeting of Prime Minister Churchill of Britain, Marshal Stalin of Russia, and President Truman of the United States, in conquered Germany.

Out of it could come conceivably not alone basic United Nations agreements to implement the peace in Europe, but reorientation of the war against Japan.

There is no official word from any source to that effect. Discussions of the war in Asia is notably absent from speculative "Big Three" agendas compiled in London and Washington. Yet the circumstances under which Churchill, Stalin and Truman foregather make it all but inevitable that an interchange of views both as to ways and means of bringing Japan to her knees and as to conditions to be imposed upon her after unconditional surrender should occur incidental to the meeting in Potsdam.

At the moment the only formal statement of Chinese-Allied intentions as to Japan goes back to the Cairo meeting of Churchill, President Roosevelt and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in November, 1943. That preceded the Teheran conference where Allied strategic plans for overwhelming Germany were drawn up.

Aside from unconditional surrender, the Cairo announcement included certain specific undertakings like restoration to China of such Japanese "stolen" territory as Formosa, Manchuria and the Pescadores islands, and "in due course" return of "enslaved" Korea to a "free and independent state." It also specifically pledged that the participating nations "covet no gain for themselves and have no thought of territorial expansion at Japan's expense.

In all of those matters Russia has a natural interest. She, too, like China, has Japanese "stolen" territory to regain, southern Sakalin for example. And when Stalin arrives in Potsdam for the "Big Three" session, he will come fresh from his prolonged Moscow conversations with Premier Soong of China.

That Japanese officialdom is watching the approaching Potsdam meeting with keen apprehension goes without saying. Desperate efforts to stir dissension in United Nations ranks at this eleventh hour with doom overhanging Japan have marked every recent Japanese move.

EXPECT TO DROP FOOD SUBSIDIES

Plan Would Be To Put Cost On Consumer's Pocketbook

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—The administration is working on plans for shifting $1,500,000,000 in food costs to consumer pocketbooks next year, eliminating subsidies.

The objective is to ease adjustment of farm prices to post-war conditions and to reduce government expenditures.

The subsidies involved are largely those which the government established to prevent increases in consumer ceiling prices on important food items while at the same time providing greater incentive for farm production, and the so-called "roll-back" subsidies set up in 1943 when prices of some foods were reduced 10 per cent.

The plan calls for increases in ceiling prices of the affected foods to replace the subsidies.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson is leading inter-agency discussions on the plan. Friends say he believes it would be accompanied by an upward adjustment in industrial wages, now controlled under the "Little Steel" formula, without adding any new inflationary threat.

The contention that increases in wages and prices would not be inflationary is based upon the assump-

GEN. CHENNAULT LEAVING CHINA

Former Colorful Leader Of 'Flying Tigers' Plans To Retire

KUNMING, China, July 14.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Claire Lee Chennault, commander of the U. S. 14th air force in China and former colorful leader of the famous "Flying Tigers," said today that he was leaving China and would retire from the army after returning to America.

Chennault, 51-year-old genius and guiding light behind the steady growth of American air power in China, announced his resignation at a press conference here two days after the appointment of Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer as commander of an augmented U. S. air force in China.

It previously had been stated that Chennault would retain his command of the "Fighting Fourteenth."

Chennault's 14th air force, which took the place of the general's brainchild—the spectacular American volunteer group of "Flying Tigers"—has wiped virtually every Japanese plane from China skies.

"The Japanese now are beaten in the air in China," Chennault said in his resignation statement.

An old barnstorming pilot, Chennault called in correspondents to tell them of his decision as Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of all United States forces in the China theater, said in Chungking that he had accepted Chennault's resignation.

Chennault pointed out that he retired once before eight years ago because of his health and that he had spent most of the intervening years in China. He went to China in 1937 to work for the Chiang Kai-shek government, and in 1942 was recalled to

MANY IN LOUISIANA WILL GET REFUNDS

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—(AP)—J. O. Fernandez, collector of internal revenue, said today that more than $3,000,000 would be refunded to Louisiana income taxpayers for overpayments on their 1944 returns.

Fernandez said the auditors and clerks were at present engaged in sending out refund checks amounting to about $3,000,000 to 59,000 taxpayers, while 166,431 other Louisianians already had received a total of $6,029,144 in refunds.

About 15,000 Louisianians have failed to receive their 1943 tax refunds because of failure to notify the internal revenue collector of changes in address, he said. These checks total more than $100,000 and the owners should apply for them, the collector said.

Meantime, Fernandez reported that only about seven per cent of the first 4,000 New Orleans taxpayers cited for making reputed erroneous deductions on their 1942-43-44 returns had failed to appear for adjustments.

Fernandez estimated a week ago that about 100,000 Louisianians would be cited for erroneous deductions and said the sums collected by the government on these returns might reach $6,000,000 for the 1942-43-44 period.

Sherman Succeeds Mitscher As First Carrier Task Force Head

TOWERS WILL TAKE PLACE OF VICE-ADMIRAL M'CAIN

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—The navy today shifted commands in its carrier-borne air arm in the Pacific in apparent preparation for the show-down phases of the war against Japan.

Secretary Forrestal disclosed the changes.

Rear Admiral Frederick C. Sherman, now commander of a carrier division, was named to succeed Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher as commander of the First carrier task force.

Vice-Admiral John H. Towers, now deputy commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, was named to succeed Vice-Admiral John S. McCain, commander of the Second carrier task force.

Mitscher, who with Adm. William F. Halsey developed the present fast carrier task force which wields a flexible unit of 1,500 planes, returns to Washington as deputy chief of naval operations for air.

No announcement was made of Vice-Admr. McCain's new assignment. Secretary Forrestal was asked about reports he would become deputy veterans' affairs administrator under Gen. Omar Bradley, but the secretary declined comment, noting that such an appointment would be under presidential authority.

These changes led a list of 29 major shifts among flag rank officers which Forrestal said would become effective at varying dates within 30 days. The changes were not a "shake-up," Forrestal said, but were normal shifts which occur periodically and by coincidence these occurred simultaneously. He said no changes were in contemplation for the higher combat commands. However, he added, any such change in the future might be dictated by the "physical limitations" of the men involved.

"No matter how brilliantly a man has performed his duty," Forrestal said, "if the doctors say he has

LOOKS FOR BIG ARMY REDUCTION

Gurney Predicts It Will Be Cut To Half Million Men

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Postwar reduction of the army's strength to a half million men was forecast today by Senator Gurney, Republican, South Dakota, in view of the Senate's expected ratification of the United Nations charter.

The South Dakota senator, a member of the military affairs committee, told a reporter he believes a regular force of that size will be ample to supply the men needed for this country's share of police work under the new international organization and to garrison the far-flung outposts the United States may retain in the Pacific.

Gurney's estimate came in the midst of discussion by charter supporters of when a decision shall be made on the number of men, planes, tanks, guns and other equipment the nation shall assign for peace keeping operations under the proposed world security council.

Chairman Connally, Democrat, Texas, of the foreign relations committee has said that the issue should be settled in separate legislation and has asked the state department to assist in preparing a measure of this kind. He has opposed any charter reservation of this nature and there was doubt any would be offered formally, although Senator Bushfield, Republican, South Dakota, is attempting to draft some.

ASSERT PAYROLL WON'T BE PADDED

Bureau Says Assurance Given By Governor Davis, Mayor Matestri

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—(AP)—The Bureau of Governmental Research announced today that both Mayor Robert S. Maestri and Gov. J. H. Davis had assured the bureau that "there will be no payroll padding" in New Orleans during the mayoralty campaign this fall.

M. A. Carso, president of the bureau, said in a statement that 26 other heads of city and state agencies, operating mostly in New Orleans, had made similar replies to an inquiry from the bureau.

A few officers, to whom inquiries were addressed, had not replied, the bureau said.

"Two years ago the bureau initiated efforts to discourage the adding of extra non-essential employes during election campaign periods, the bureau statement said.

"At that time it was revealed that $1,100,000 had been squandered upon unnecessary employes in the gubernatorial election of 1940, while an addition $350,000 had been spent in the mayoralty campaign of 1942.

"Following commitments by Governor Jones and Mayor Maestri prior to the 1944 gubernatorial election the bureau made complete checks of payroll practices which showed no extra employes were added at that time."

The bureau quoted Mayor Maestri in a letter dated June 20, 1945, as replying:

"You may rest assured that this practice (payroll padding) will not prevail, excepting, of course, where it is imperative that the city use essential men in order that the government of the city of New Orleans may function properly."

Governor Davis replied under date of June 25:

"In this connection you may be assured that the state will make no unnecessary or abnormal increases in payrolls prior to any election."

DOUGHBOYS PLEASED AT FRATERNIZATION

SCHIERSTEIN, Germany, July 14.—(AP)—General Eisenhower's relaxation of the non-fraternization rule met with the warm approval of doughboys today. They declared frankly that the rule never had been enforceable and had been violated ever since it was put into effect.

"The order was being violated right and left," said Cpl. Seymour Friedman, Chicago, "and it was high time the army came to the decision to make changes."

There was a noticeable excitement among German girls as the news spread quickly through this town on the Rhine. They had many smiles for the soldiers. Their attitude was summed up by Buxom, 22-year-old Hedy Bauer, who said:

"Now we can be decent and walk around in daylight to talk to Americans. We won't have to sneak around to see the boy and always be afraid of the military police. This is better, although I don't see where there will be any real difference since American soldiers have been promenading with frauleins since the day they arrived."

JAPANESE CRACK CHINESE DEFENSE

Drive 35 To 50 Miles Below Amoy And West Of Hong Kong

CHUNGKING, July 14.—(AP)—Japanese troops have broken 35 and 40 miles through Chinese coastal defense below Amoy and west of Hong Kong in twin drives possibly designed to throw up an anti-invasion wall along China's vulnerable southeast coast, the Chinese high command acknowledged tonight.

Chinese regulars, however, have thrown all their available strength against Japanese marine landing parties southwest of Amoy and have mowed down 3,000 enemy troops, a communique said.

While the Japanese beat out gains along the coast, Chinese forces of the interior battled nearer to the lost American air base of Kweilin in Kwangsi province and continued street fighting in the former airdrome city of Kanhsien, 200 miles north of Hong Kong.

Supporting Chinese ground forces battling inside Indo China, U. S. 14th air force Mustang fighters yesterday blasted mountain-locked Trung Khanh Phu, besieged Japanese strong-point four miles from the Indo-China China frontier 132 miles northeast of Hanoi, an American communique said.

The low-flying American fighter-bombers wrecked Japanese buildings and inflicted casualties on the garrison of Traung Khanh Phu, 19 miles northeast of Caobang, which Chinese forces won and then lost June 24.

In maritime Fukien province west of Formosa, Japanese invaders from Amoy who landed June 30 on the coast below that pocketed enemy-held port reached Ynsiao, 56 miles southwest of Amoy, after bursting out of beachheads and hurling back Chinese attackers, the Chinese war bulletin said.

Meanwhile, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's forces 400 miles southeast of Chungking were converging on the triple airfield base of Kweilin.

Some 330 miles to the east, bitter hand-to-hand fighting raged in Kahnhsien, a former U. S. 14th air force base, where rearguards were putting up a stubborn battle while the main Japanese garrison fought toward Suichwan, 46 miles northwest.

RATION POINTS ON BUTTER LOWERED

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—The OPA tonight ordered a cut of 8 points a pound in the ration value for butter ,effective at 12:01 a. m., Sunday.

The reduction from the current 24 red points a pound to 16 applies to creamery butter. Farm or country butter will remain at 12 points.

Stating that the increase in the civilian supply resulting from a cut in military requirements will amount to about 10,000,000 pounds during August, OPA added:

"It is believed that with the set-aside reduced, there will be enough butter to permit the point reduction, at the same time maintaining the good distribution that has enabled consumers to find butter in most stores throughout the country in the last several months."

The agency cautioned, however, that if butter moves too rapidly at 16 points, the point value will be increased to keep consumption in line with the allocation.

TRUMAN SEEKING EQUALIZED POWER

FIRM BASIS FOR PEACE ON CONTINENT IS OBJECTIVE

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Whether the affairs of Europe are to be dominated by one power alone or by all the nations under joint big power leadership is a prime question confronting the Big Three conference.

It is considered here as a matter President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin must take up at their Potsdam meeting if they are to do anything about establishing a firm basis for peace on the continent.

It is the same question for which President Roosevelt sought an answer at Yalta early this year.

Mr. Truman probably will try to win concessions from Premier Stalin with respect to political and economic developments in eastern and southeastern Europe where Russia so far has exercised absolute control despite the agreement reached at Yalta for Big Three cooperation when necessary.

In actual practice the Yalta agreement has been used only in the case of Poland. And in that situation, direct negotiation between President Truman and Premier Stalin was necessary.

Washington authorities say quite frankly that if Europe is to be prevented from becoming an area of conflicting pressures from the great powers in the immediate future, machinery must be provided which really will solve political problems as they arise and on a basis of true cooperation among Moscow, London and Washington.

It is against this background that Mr. Truman is expected to propose creation of machinery for handling of day-to-day political problems.

Coincident with those discussions the Big Three are expected to consider development of Germany as a military base from which to police Europe. Such a plan would mean from a practical standpoint that the Allied occupation forces in Germany would be kept in readiness to put down trouble elsewhere when necessary.

Should President Truman be able to achieve a new accord with Stalin

FATALLY HURT IN FALL OFF TRUCK

Odis Robert Jackson Dead And Child Is Seriously Injured

Odis Robert Jackson, 33, was killed and his niece, Geneva Anne Blackstock, 6, was seriously injured when they fell from a long truck near Calhoun yesterday. The child was sitting in Jackson's lap when they fell from the vehicle. Jackson was run over by the truck after striking his head on the concrete highway. The child, who is a patient at the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic, suffered a fractured skull and was unconscious when brought to the clinic, but regained consciousness and is expected to recover.

The two were riding with a number of other persons on the truck when they suddenly fell from the top of the vehicle. Mrs. Jackson was one of the persons riding on the truck.

Geneva Anne is the daughter of Mrs. R. C. Blackstock, 1908 DeSiard street, Monroe. She received minor bruises about the chest and abdomen, her physician said.

Mr Jackson is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ethel Jackson; his mother, Mrs. Maude Jackson, Eros; one brother, Edward B. Jackson, in the U. S. army, and one sister, Mrs. Pearl Allen, Eros.

The funeral procession will leave the home of his brother-in-law, Fletcher Fuller, in Ward 7 at 2 p. m. Sunday and proceed to the Latter Day Saints' church at Eros, where services will be held at 3 p. m., with Rev. C. C. Fuller, pastor, officiating. Burial, under the direction of the Mulhearn Funeral Home, will follow in the Latter Day Saints cemetery. Pallbearers will be L. R. Phillips, P. F Fuller, M. Perritt, S. G. Crowell, M Fuller and Carl Phillips.

SAYS SURRENDER TO FOLLOW INVASION

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—(AP)—Chia-Chen Wang of Manchuria, an adviser to the Chinese delegation to the San Francisco conference, said here yesterday that unconditional surrender of the Japanese will come after the invasion of the Jap homeland by Allied armies.

"It will not benecessary to fight an extended war to the elimination of every Japanese before they will accept surrender," he said, "provided the Allies continue to fight the war with all their might and determination until that day comes."

Boldly Shelling Port Of Muroran

By Leif Erickson

GUAM, Sunday, July 15.—(AP)—The newest, most powerful battleships in the U. S. navy are shelling the Hokkaido steel mill port of Muroran, more than 250 miles north of the scene of the fleet's bombardment on Honshu yesterday, and the fleet's carrier planes more than 1,000 strong simultaneously are striking northern Japan.

Announcing this spectacular second day of the air and sea bombardment of the Japanese main home islands, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said that the great battleship Iowa, Missouri and Wisconsin are participating and that the action is continuing.

With the battleships are the destroyers McGowan, Norman Scott and Remey, a special communique said are bombarding in the vicinity of Muroran while the heavy ships strike directly at the city's steel plants.

Naming of these vessels indicated that at least two mighty task forces of surface ships were roaming practically at will up and down the Japanese coasts.

Yesterday Nimitz announced the bombardment of Kamaishi on Honshu Island by the battleships Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota, two heavy cruisers and four destroyers.

Those ships and the carrier planes of the fleet set Kahaishi afire, destroyed or damaged 87 Japanese planes and destroyed or damaged 39 enemy ships plus destruction of 27 locomotives and railway facilities in yesterday's strikes, Nimitz said, despite unfavorable weather.

Locations of today's air strikes were not yet disclosed.

Nimitz in an earlier communique, however, had said that both the surface forces and the planes were hitting the enemy again.

Actually, he announced the shore bombardment hours before it was confirmed by reports from the fleet—boldly telling the Japanese that the U. S. fleet was going to strike again—an unprecedented action.

The bombardment then began at 9:35 a. m. (Japanese time)—(7:35 p. m., Saturday, Central war time.)

The new bombardment force is commanded by Rear Adm. O. C. Badger.

The target, Muroran, is at the entrance to Uchiura Bay on Southern Hokkaido, in confined waters which the fleet showed amazing temerity in entering.

Results of the shelling were not immediately available.

Fire started in the steel city of Kamaishi by yesterday's shelling raged on today and expanded to the harbor.

"Heavy surface units and fleet aircraft are engaged," the Nimitz communique related.

Preliminary and incomplete reports showed that despite bad weather yesterday's carrier strikes destroyed 24 grounded Japanese planes and damaged 62, sank 15 ships—including two railroad ferries and a destroyer—and damaged 24 other ships, including a train ferry and 10 medium tankers or cargo ships.

Marine and fleet aircraft from Okinawa sank or damaged another half-dozen enemy craft.

Most of the parked enemy aircraft were found on fields at Matsushima, Matsudo and Misawa, on Honshu.

Yesterday's surface bombardment of Japan—first of the war—continued unhindered almost within rifle shot of shore for two hours, blasting and firing Kamaishi's great steel mills.

While battleships, cruisers and destroyers of Adm. William F. Halsey's challenging armada threw tons of shells into the Imperial Iron and Steel Works Rolling Mill at Kamaishi, on the northeast coast of Honshu, 1,000 carrier planes beat the area and neighboring Kokkaido Island to the north.

The air and surface ship strikes were the mighty Third fleet's second assault on Japan within four days, the carrier planes having hit airfields in the Tokyo area Tuesday, destroying or damaging 342 enemy planes.

The bombardment of Kamaishi, 275 miles north of Tokyo with a pre-war population of 42,000, caused "sky-reaching explosions and started roaring fires which blanketed the area with smoke," reported Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley from the battleship South Dakota.

'YOUR BROTHER'S KEEPER' YOUR DUTY

By Dr. William S. Keller

Monroe and Ouachita parish can undoubtedly be looked upon as the Metropolitan Mecca of Northern Louisiana, just as Alexandria is looked upon as the center of activities for Central Louisiana.

Citizens of this locality have worked hard to achieve this attainment and the reputation North Central area.

Monroe with the Northeast Junior College of the State University.

Monroe, the city of many churches.

Monroe as a medical center.

Monroe with its good hotels, fine shops, movies, playground, and natatorium.

Monroe with more than the average industries and the center of a good agricultural area, has arrived where it is as a result of earnest effort, vision, and far-sight on the part of its ambitious citizenship and leadership

This leadership represents financial speculation, political prowess, educational attainment, religious zeal, railroad junction planning, and many other efforts of man.

Many of these attainments have attracted people to come to this fair city and parish because you have arrived, a Metropolitan area.

Contrasting your well-being and privilege with the surrounding parishes makes some of them look very underprivileged and very poor.

Many people have come here from these surrounding parishes for medical aid, for employment, and for entertainment.

They have come here to get away from the "hum-drum" of an uninteresting life they have tired of in their backward respective parishes.

They have come here often for protection, to escape in a Metropolitan area some of the social mistakes they have made in their backward, primitive, rural communities. These rural communities have not been far-sighted enough and are too small to profitably supply supervised recreation and entertainment.

Your health director meets these people in his sojourn in your community and they are constantly asking him for direction, guidance, and help.

Yes, Monroe and Ouachita parish have arrived, a Metropolitan area. In many respects you have been blessed.

Your reputation is far reaching Teachers, doctors, nurses in the surrounding parishes are referring people here for help because your fame has reached many of the underprivileged people in the underprivileged parishes surrounding you with whom you are expected to share your riches and blessings. And why not? Certainly if this war is teaching us anything it is teaching the Christian principles

WITHHOLD RESULT OF COURT-MARTIAL

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Secretary Forrestal said today he would not be disposed to make public the results of the court-martial of the submarine skipper responsible for the sinking of the Japanese relief ship Awa Maru even after final approval.

Questioned at his news conference about the state department's announcement in the case yesterday, the navy secretary said all he could say was "we were at fault and admitted we were at fault."

"Even though there were extenuating circumstances so far as the skipper was concerned/," he said, "his actions were not within the strict limits of his instructions.

The state department in a formal statement last night acknowledged that an American submarine had sunk the Awa Maru off Formosa April 1, with a loss of 1,000 lives while the vessel was traveling under a safe conduct guarantee.

The vessel was returning to Japan after delivering a load of supplies to China coast ports for use of Allied war prisoners and civilians.

SUPPORT YOUR HOME COLLEGE

This Is Urged By Dean Cline In Letter Sent To Many Parents

Dean Rodney Cline, in an open letter which was sent to many parents and representative citizens of Ouachita parish, urges that the public give earnest attention to the academic equipment and opportunities offered by junior colleges right at home.

He says that the facilities are in nearly every case as good at home and that a great saving of money can be effective in the first two years of college and that full credit is given in four-year colleges for all the work that is performed in the freshman and sophomore years.

The letter states:

"Dear Friend:

"You have more than once proved your interest in Northeast Junior College, and I am confident of your support in this instance.

"The real test as to whether or not a junior college justifies its existence in the degree to which it reaches those students for whom it was created to serve. Northeast Junior College has been very successful in this respect, and I find that junior college men everywhere regard it as a school to be admired.

"Right now we face a difficult period in the life of our institution. Due to the war every college has a greatly reduced enrollment. As a result, there is exceptionally keen competition for students. As elsewhere, young people of the Monroe area are being tempted by every means at the command of skilled propaganda artists to go to some college away from home. Offers of "juicy" scholarships, free trips to beautiful campuses where lavish entertainment is provided, together with glamorous pictures of wonderful dormitories and student centers, all these and other means are used to persuade a prospective student that life at "Podunk" college or some other college is a bed of roses crowned by horseback riding, dancing, and athletics.

"I sincerely believe that a young man or woman of the Monroe vicinity will be best served by attending Northeast Junior College. The academic standards are high; the curricular offerings are varied; the social life is wholesome; and the costs are ridiculously low. When a student has completed a terminal course here in two years or less, he is ready to hold a good position. When he has completed a preparatory course here, he is ready to enter a four-year college or university with advanced standing. It costs from $500 to $2,000 to send a student away to college for a year. At Northeast Junior College the total costs average less than $160 per year—for all books, fees, and supplies, while the student has the great advantage of living at home. The $150,000 annual budget of this institution is almost entirely spent in the local area.

"Won't you serve the best interests of the young people of your acquaintance by using your influence in favor of Northeast Junior College? Some day they will thank you for it, and your Junior College will have been helped to serve where service is needed."

PETAIN LOOKS TO U. S. AS PRINCIPAL DEFENSE HOPE

Opinion Of Many Is That Aged Marshal Will Not Be Shot

By Carl D. Seresl

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—Like a drowning man, Marshal Henri-Philipe Petain may clutch at the straws of American foreign policy to save his life.

The 89-year-old "hero of Verdun," charged with high treason and betrayal of France, has already looked hopefully on United States diplomacy toward France from 1940-42 and on the diplomats involved—as elements in his defense.

Petain, former chief of Vichy France, already has asked Admiral William D. Leahy, ex-ambassador to Vichy, to stand by him in his coming trial. Leahy has not publicly replied, thus following the American position that the Petain trial is purely a French affair.

There is a strong possibility Petain may ask Cordell Hull, former secretary of state, to testify—if only by deposition.

And it is highly probable that the Marshall will not overlook Robert Murphy, key state department figure in easing American troops' entry in French North Africa. Murphy now is General Eisenhower's adviser on political affairs in Germany.

Indeed, in his desperation Petain can be counted upon to study carefully the late President Roosevelt's many communications regarding Vichy—now public record—and read into them whatever interpretation he needs for his defense.

Prodigious arguments against Petain are now being prepared by Andre Mornet, national advocate of General Charles de Gaulle's provisional government, who sent the renowned spy, Mata Hari, before the firing squad after World War I.

The prosecution also has called prominent witnesses recently freed from German prison camps.

These include four former French premiers:

Edouard Herriot—pre-Vichy president of the Radical-Socialist federation and one of the most powerful political figures in France today.

Leon Blum—founder of the Leftist "popular front," with strong chances for a return to prominence in public life.

Edouard Daladier—French "compromise" politican and ex-leader of the Radical-Socialist party.

Paul Reynaud—the "fight-to-the-finish" head of state who was forced to resign in 1940 and make way for Petain.

General Maurice Gustave Gamelin, former commander in chief of the French army, who was relieved from his command just before the 1940 armistice with Germany, has also been called.

On the basis of all available reports, Petain will be charged with:

1. Misleading France by inducing Frenchmen to conclude an armistice with Hitler in 1940.

2. Preferring to aid Germany in the war against "Bolshevism" rather than aid the Allies in the war against Nazism.

3. Collaborating with the invader under a program of "labor, family, fatherland"—instead of the traditional slogan of France: "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity."

4. Ordering French batteries to fire on Allied troops in the initial stages of the landings on North Africa.

In an unusual "leak" to the press, which may be no accident, Petain has been allowed to reveal his basic defense strategy.

He styles himself "the No. 1 resistant of metropolitan France," unlike those who "had only to resist outside France." He says he "resisted acts of terrorism (perpetrated) in the name of resistance." He admits that "as head of a nation undergoing occupation" he was "forced to make certain concessions" but says he "never abandoned anything essential."

He also has claimed that his "armistice saved France," assuring it "a free (Vichy) zone and the integrity of the empire, and in this helped the Allied landings in North Africa."

Petain knows now—if he did not in 1940—that we kept diplomatic ties with Vichy because:

1. The United States could retain her network of diplomatic officers with privileges of sending coded messages back to Washington. Such freedom permitted much German military information to leak from France and—more important—French North Africa.

2. American diplomats were on the spot to stiffen Petain's spine against collaborating with Germany and forestall Hitler's use of France's industry, labor and—perhaps more vital—her navy.

3. The United States could bolster the anti-collaboration spirit, nurturing the French underground, which later aided the Normandy landings as well as those in North Africa.

4. The much-criticized retention of Franco-American relations also bolstered the remnants of French sovereignty and helped keep the Germans out of North Africa.

To all of this, Petain can claim full knowledge at the time and no one can actually prove or disprove it.

In a letter dated December 20, 1940, President Roosevelt sent Admiral Leahy the basic principles then governing Franco-American relations, asking Leahy to "endeavor to cultivate as close relations with Marshal Petain as possible."

Unquestionably, Leahy, in order to sustain all the major reasons for continued ties with Vichy, had to impress the marshal with his own friendliness as well as that of the United States government.

And unquestionably Petain will seek to disclose this relationship unless he can get Leahy to do it for him. To a lesser degree, the same is true in the relationship Robert Murphy required to engineer the military landings in North Africa.

The best legal minds in France today seem agreed that the charges against Petain must be made more specific to warrant death-sentence prosecution. They point out that Petain was made chief of state by a constitutional vote of about [illegible] to [illegible] of the French general assembly of 1940 and that he therefore acted under legal powers.

Some seeking to compare the Petain trial to the famed Dreyfus trial of the late [illegible] say that full prosecution of the aged marshal may split France wide open with factional turmoil.

But there has been sharp criticism from former resistance leaders of General de Gaulle's "laxity" in dealing with "war criminals." And if for no other reason than to aid in realizing political stability in France, a [illegible] De Gaulle urgently needs Petain will have to be tried as projected.

Will Petain be sentenced to death? Probably yes.

Will Petain actually be shot? Probably not.

General de Gaulle, in the opinion of well-informed Frenchmen, will, with a well-publicized trial, be aided toward achieving the political stability he seeks.

They expect him then to gain an increase in that advantage by showing clemency should the venerable World War I hero be sentenced to die and retiring him.

This is why many Frenchmen today believe Petain may yet die of old age.

LOUISIANA FOLK DRIVE FARTHER

Smoke Less, Drink Less Cold Drinks And Pay More Income Tax

BATON ROUGE, La., July 14—(AP)—"Humanization" of state revenue figures for the fiscal year just ended showed that Louisianians bought more, smoked less, drove farther, drank less soft drinks and paid more income tax than in the previous fiscal period.

Sales tax figures showed that Pelican staters increased their retail purchases by $78,100,000 to bring the total for the 12-months past the billion-dollar mark for the first time.

Gasoline tax figures indicated that approximately 435,000 vehicles of all types used 265,000,000 gallons of gas, [illegible] 15 miles per gallon, around five-and-a-half-billion miles, compared with 243,[illegible] gallons used the previous year [illegible] about 1[illegible] vehicles to drive an estimated three-and-a-half-billion miles.

Round figures on the tobacco tax indicated Louisiana smokers got along on [illegible] fewer packs of cigarets [illegible] 146,000,000 compared with 1[illegible] the previous year.

The drop in the tax on soft drinks shows consumption off by a little more than [illegible] bottles, down to a mere 477,[illegible] from last year's more than half-billion-bottle total.

Figures on state income tax showed an increase of around [illegible] persons making enough to owe the state part of it, bringing the total paying off past the [illegible] mark and making the state [illegible] $1,[illegible] richer than the year before.

OKINAWA FORMS 4-H CLUB FAST

American Military Government Quickly Organizes Harvest Of Crops

By Vern Haugland

OKINAWA—(AP)—Even before this island had been fully wrested from the Japanese, enterprising American military government personnel established the Okinawa agricultural experiment station.

Japanese were still being flushed from woods and caves when the first "4-H Club" got underway.

Director of the activity in the southern third of the island is Lt. (jg) Ralph Backstrom of (2125 Scudder St.) St. Paul, Minn.

"The first thing we did, as soon as we began to get some order among the refugee civilians, was to organize the harvest of crops that were ready," said Backstrom.

"We have harvested enough soybeans, string beans and sweet potatoes to provide the natives with these foods for some time to come. At the same time, we are replanting."

The station also has established an abbatoir for surplus goats—"a neat, clean abbatoir, with careful inspection to see that all meat is fit for human consumption."

A crew rounds up the thousands of goats in Okinawa, and the meat of 50 a day is distributed to the various civilian centers.

Other crews have been rounding up stray pigs, chickens and cows. A small dairy farm has been established to provide milk for children.

"We also have organized what you might call a 4-H Extension class for the children," said Backstrom.

"They line up and an Okinawan teacher lectures them on agriculture and gardening. Then they take their hoes and march off to the fields. Later we plan to give prizes for the best gardens."

American troops came to Okinawa anticipating a hot, steaming, stinking climate, hordes of snakes, flies and mosquitoes, and more strange and deadly diseases than they could shake a test tube at.

They found cool nights, not too uncomfortable days, almost no snakes and no more insects than they had battled elsewhere.

"From the standpoint of climate and health, this is the best island we have taken in the Pacific," said Lt. Comdr. W. Walter Settler of [illegible] Chicago, Ill., head of the department of medicine and [illegible] board.

Said Pharmacist Colley, D. T. [illegible] of Birmingham, Ala., personnel and commissary director:

Marine Lt. Earl W. Langston, 22, Corsair pilot, shot down three Jap planes while flying from the carrier U. S. S. Bunker Hill, which was later damaged by two suicide planes off Okinawa May 11.

An account of some of the lieutenant's experiences were told in the News-Star the past week. Lieutenant Langston is son of Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Langston, Sr., his father being pastor of a suburban Baptist Church in Ouachita parish.

The lieutenant attended Ouachita Parish High School and entered preflight training in October, 1942. He was commissioned in August, 1943.

In connection with the award it was stated that: "At the risk of his own life, Sergeant McDaniel swam through treacherous currents of the Irrawaddy river to rescue a soldier who had been rendered helpless by a broken neck and probably saved the life of another soldier who was at the same time attempting to rescue the helpless man. By Carl D. Scresi

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Like a drowning man, Marshal Henri-Philipe Petain may clutch at the straws of American foreign policy to save his life.

The 89-year-old "hero of Verdun," charged with high treason and betrayal of France, has already looked hopefully on United States diplomacy toward France from 1940-42—and on the diplomats involved—as elements in his defense.

Petain , former chief of Vichy France, already has asked Admiral William D. Leahy, ex-ambassador to Vichy, to stand by him in his coming trial. Leahy has not publicly replied, thus following the American position that the Petain trial is purely a French affair.

There is a strong possibility Petain may ask Cordell Hull, former secretary of state, to testify—if only by deposition.

And it is highly probable that the Marshall will not overlook Robert Murphy, key state department figure in easing American troops' entry in French North Africa. Murphy now is General Eisenhower's adviser on political affairs in Germany.

Indeed, in his desperation, Petain can be counted upon to study carefully the late President Roosevelt's many communications regarding Vichy—now public record—and read into them whatever interpretation he needs for his defense.

Prodigious arguments against Petain are now being prepared by Andre Mornet, national advocate of General Charles de Gaulle's provisional government, who sent the renowned spy, Mata Hari, before the firing squad after World War I.

The prosecution also has called prominent witnesses recently freed from German prison camps.

These include four former French premiers:

Edouard Herriot—pre-Vichy presiden of the Radical-Socialist federation and one of the most powerful political figures in France today.

Leon Blum—founder of the Leftist "popular front," with strong chances for a return to prominence in public life.

Edouard Daladier—French "compromise" politican and ex-leader of the Radical-Socialist party.

Paul Reynaud—the "fight-to-the-finish" head of state who was forced to resign in 1940 and make way for Petain.

General Maurice Gustave Gamelin, former commander in chief of the French army, who was relieved from his command just before the 1940 armistice with Germany, has also been called.

On the basis of all available reports, Petain will be charged with:

1. Misleading France by inducing Frenchmen to conclude an armistice with Hitler in 1940.

2. Preferring to aid Germany in the war against "Bolshevism" rather than aid the Allies in the war against Naziism.

3. Collaborating with the invader under a program of "labor, family, fatherland"—instead of the traditional slogan of France: "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity."

4. Ordering French batteries to fire on Allied troops in the initial stages of the landings on North Africa.

In an unusual "leak" to the press—which may be no accident—Petain has been allowed to reveal his basic defense strategy.

He styles himself "the No. 1 resistant of metropalitan France," unlike those who "had only to resist outside France." He says he "resisted acts of terrorism (perpetrated) in the name of resistance." He admits that "as head of a nation undergoing occupation" he was "forced to make certain concessions" but says he "never abandoned anything essential."

He also has claimed that his "armistice saved France," assuring it "a free (Vichy) zone and the integrity of the empire, and in this helped the Allied landings in North Africa."

Petain knows now—if he did not in 1940—that we kept diplomatic ties with Vichy because:

1. The United States could retain her network of diplomatic officers with privileges of sending coded messages back to Washington. Such freedom permitted much German military information to leak from France and—more important—French North Africa.

2. American diplomats were on the spot to stiffen Petain's spine against collaborating with Germany and forestall Hitler's use of France's industry, labor and—perhaps more vital—her navy.

3. The United States could bolster the anti-collaboration spirit, nurturing the French underground, which later aided the Normandy landings as well as those in North Africa.

4. The much-criticized retention of Franco-American relations also bolstered the remnants of French sovereignty and helped keep the Germans out of North Africa.

To all of this, Petain can claim full knowledge at the time and no one can actually prove or disprove it.

In a letter dated December 20, 1940, President Roosevelt sent Admiral Leahy the basic principles then governing French-American relations, asking Leahy to "endeavor to cultivate as close relations with Marshal Petain as possible."

Unquestionably, Leahy, in order to sustain all the major reasons for continued ties with Vichy, had to impress the marshal with his own friendliness as well as that of the United States government.

And unquestionably Petain will seek to disclose this relationship—unless he can get Leahy to do it for him. To a lesser degree, the same is true in the relationship Robert Murphy required to engineer the military landings in North Africa.

The best legal minds in France today seem agreed that the charges against Petain must be made more specific to warrant death-sentence prosecution. They point out that Petain was made chief of state by a constitutional vote of about 500 to 60 in the French general assembly of 1940 and that he therefore acted under legal powers.

Some seeking to compare the Petain trial to the famed Dreyfus trial of the late 90s say that full prosecution of the aged marshal may split France wide open with factional turmoil.

But there has been sharp criticism from former resistance leaders of General de Gaulle's "laxity" in dealing with "war criminals." And if for no other reason than to aid in realizing political stability in France—a reality De Gaulle urgently needs—Petain will have to be tried as projected.

Will Petain be sentenced to death? Probably yes.

Will Petain actually be shot? Probably no.

General de Gaulle, in the opinion of well-informed Frenchmen, will—with a well-publicized trial—be aided toward achieving the political stability he seeks.

They expect him then to gain an increase in that advantage by showing clemency, should the venerable World War I hero be sentenced to die, and retiring him.

This is why many Frenchmen today believe Petain may yet die of old age.

LOUISIANA FOLK DRIVE FARTHER

Smoke Less, Drink Less Cold Drinks And Pay More Income Tax

BATON ROUGE, La., July 14.—(AP)—"Humanization" of state revenue figures for the fiscal year just ended showed that Louisianians bought more, smoked less, drove farther, drank less soft drinks and paid more income tax than in the previous fiscal period.

Sales tax figures showed that Pelican staters increased their retail purchases by $76,100,000 to bring the total for the 12-months past the billion-dollar mark for the first time.

Gasoline tax figures indicated that approximately 435,000 vehicles of all types used 365,099,000 gallons, or, using 15 miles per gallon, around five-and-a-half-billion miles; compared with 243,533,000 gallons used the previous year by about 428,000 vehicles to drive an estimated three-and-a-half-billion miles.

Round figures on the tobacco tax indicated Louisiana smokers got along on 13,000,000 fewer packs of cigarets, using only 146,000,000, compared with 159,000,000 the previous year.

The drop in the tax on soft drinks shows consumption off by a little more than 105,000,000 bottles, down to a mere 477,000,000 from last year's more than half-billion-bottle total.

Figures on state income tax showed an increase of around 9,000 persons making enough to owe the state part of it, bringing the total paying off past the 100,000 mark and making the state more than $1,000,000 richer than the year before.

Because of their complicated structures, the beer and liquor taxes were not broken down into so many gallons of gin, ale and whatnot. But the alcoholic beverage tax increased $1,230,465 for the year, to $5,534,016, and beer taxes rose $101,156 to total $1,567,843.

OKINAWA FORMS 4-H CLUB FAST

American Military Government Quickly Organizes Harvest Of Crops

By Vern Haugland

OKINAWA—(AP)—Even before this island had been fully wrested from the Japanese, enterprising American military government personnel established the Okinawa agricultural experiment station.

Japanese were still being flushed from woods and caves when the first "4-H Club" got underway.

Director of the activity in the southern third of the island is Lt. (jg) Ralph Backstrom of (2125 Scudder St.) St. Paul, Minn.

"The first thing we did, as soon as we began to get some order among the refugee civilians, was to organize the harvest of crops that were ready," said Backstrom.

"We have harvested enough soybeans, string beans and sweet potatoes to provide the natives with these foods for some time to come. At the same time, we are replanting."

The station also has established an abbatoir for surplus goats—"a neat, clean abbatoir, with careful inspection to see that all meat is fit for human consumption.'

A crew rounds up the thousands of goats in Okinawa, and the meat of 50 a day is distributed to the various civilian centers.

Other crews have been rounding up stray pigs, chickens and cows. A small dairy farm has been established to provide milk for children.

"We also have organized what you might call a 4-H Extension class for the children," said Backstrom.

"They line up and an Okinawan teacher lectures them on agriculture and gardening. Then they take their hoes and march off to the fields. Later we plans to give prizes for the best gardens."

American troops came to Okinawa anticipating a hot, steaming, stinking climate, hordes of snakes, flies and mosquitoes, and more strange and deadly diseases than they could shake a test tube at.

They found cool nights, not too uncomfortable days, almost no snakes and no more insects than they had battled elsewhere.

"From the standpoint of climate and health, this is the best island we have taken in the Pacific," said Lt. Comdr. W. Walter Sittler of (10929 Longwood drive) Chicago, Ill., head of the department of medicine and the military government hospital.

This main hospital has a staff of 11 physicians and one dentist. Several other doctors were "borrowed" from army and navy units to help at rush periods. The staff also includes 200 navy corpsmen and more than 100 native Okinawan women who volunteered to serve as nurses.

Said Pharmacist Colley D. Taylor of Birmingham, Ala., personnel and commissary director:

"They came in here all crusted with blood and dirt, crawling with flies, lice and maggots, and smelling of the dead with whom they have been sleeping in caves. But it's amazing how quickly we get them cleaned up."

The stream of wounded refugees from southern Okinawa brought with it five lepers. They were promptly removed to the long-established leper colony on an island off the northern end of Okinawa.

Dr. Dubois performed one of the most remarkable operations in the new hospital's record, saving the sight of an Okinawan boy who had been shot in the eye.

SHOOTS 'EM DOWN

Marine Lt. Earl W. Langston, 22, Corsair pilot, shot down three Jap planes while flying from the carrier U. S. S. Bunker Hill, which was later damaged by two suicide planes off Okinawa May 11.

An account of some of the lieutenant's experience were told in the News-Star the past week. Lieutenant Langston is son of Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Langston, Sr., his father being pastor of a suburban Baptist Church in Ouachita parish.

The lieutenant attended Ouachita Parish High School and entered preflight training in October, 1942. He was commissioned in August, 1943.

Guy Stubbs Entertains Class At His Plantation Near City

Members of the Frank P. Stubbs Memorial Bible class of the First Presbyterian church, their wives and other visitors attended a barbecue at the Guy Stubbs plantation "Nutland" about 10 miles from Monroe on the Rayville highway on July 12.

Mr. Stubbs had a 400-pound yearling killed for the occasion and a committee headed by Stewart Scott and Jake Johnson arranged for the barbecuing of the beef and the preparation of other refreshments including potato salad, home-canned cucumber pickles, olives and an assortment of cold drinks.

The affair with Mr. Stubbs as host was such an enjoyable one that members of the class considered that a similar event should be held annually. A truck tour of the estate with its vast acreage of pecans was made impossible by the rain. That disappointment was erased by the pleasure which the evening gave in other ways, the group agreed.

Those besides Mr. Stubbs who were present included: Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Troy, Mr. and Mrs. George I. Hemphill and son, Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. MRS. SWIFT WILL TEACH CANNING

Classes in canning vegetables, friuts and foods for overseas shipment will be taught by Mrs. Mildred Swift City Home Demonstration agent at the USO Club, 113 Catalpa St. at 10:00 Thursday morning beginning July 19.

During the first lesson, Mrs. Swift will teach wives of military personnel proper handling of the equipment how to can tomatoes and to make tomato juice. Thru the courtesy of Red Cross canning equipment will be available for home use.

While fresh fruits and vegetables are so plentiful, wives are urged to join the classes and learn to can foods for their own consumption as well as foods such as fruit cakes, pecans, and cookies to be shipped overseas.

Guy Stubbs Entertains Class At His Plantation Near City

Members of the Frank P. Stubbs Memorial Bible class of the First Presbyterian church, their wives and other visitors attended a barbecue at the Guy Stubbs plantation "Nutland" about 10 miles from Monroe on the Rayville highway on July 12.

Mr. Stubbs had a 400-pound yearling killed for the occasion and a committee headed by Stewart Scott and Jase Johnson arranged for the barbecuing of the beef and the perparation of other refreshments including potato salad, home-canned cucumber pickles, olives and an assortment of cold drinks.

The affair with Mr. Stubbs as host was such an enjoyable one that members of the class considered that a similar event should be held annually. A truck tour of the estate with its vast acreage of pecans was made impossible by the rain. That disappointment was erased by the pleasure which the evening gave in other ways, the group agreed.

Those besides Mr. Stubbs who were present included: Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Troy, Mr. and Mrs. George I Hemphill and son, Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. John Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Nance, Captain and Mrs. D. W. Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. John Cecil Currie, Grover C. Payne, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Curtis Seaman, Miss May Read, Leon Hammond and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hodges.

R. M. Troy is president of the class and the instructors are Dr. D. M. Moore, Robert Cretney, John Cecil Currie, Jake Humble and W. R. Hammond.

Suicide Of A Nation

In the Pacific the setting is being prepared for decisive action. The Japanese, who observed the developments that led to the prostration of Germany, will have no difficulty in recognizing the processes of preparation for those operations which will end in the devastation and defeat of Japan.

Gathered in the waters off Japan, unhindered by even the threat of aggressive action by the enemy, is what is described by high naval officers as "the greatest mass of sea power ever assembled." It is a force which gives to the Allied command complete confidence in its ability to dominate any situation that may arise. It is so overwhelming that the need of secrecy concerning the identity of elements has passed and the Japanese are informed as to the proportions and the make-up of the great fleet that prowls the home waters.

This is Japan's darkest hour since Pearl Harbor, an hour when it is no longer possible to escape the realization that the power of the enemy is overwhelming, that little can be done to escape the impending doom. There is now little question that the present month or August will see the beginning of the assault by invasion on the home islands of Japan or on the Japanese-held areas of China.

In the destruction of Germany, strategic bombing, it was believed, attained the peak of effectiveness. Every major city in the Reich was razed and industrially Germany was left impotent, unable to produce the implements and materials of war. And Germany was a large target, with an air force which in the beginning possessed great power and what were considered perfect systems of ground defenses.

But not even Germany felt the incessant weight of bombs American planes are dropping on Japan now that the seas that wash the islands have been taken over by the fleet and a thousand planes a day take off from carriers and the island bases gained at a heavy cost.

Admiral Halsey's unprecedented naval operations off Japan suggest impressively the feebleness to which the enemy has been reduced in the air and on the sea. Not a ship appears on the horizon to challenge the assault forces. Not a Jap plane takes to the air as Nipponese skies are darkened by the aircraft of the invader.

This is the beginning of the final phase of the suicide of a nation.

A SINGULAR LAW

There has been a lot of talk recently about Basic English and the Global Alphabet and other devices designed to unscramble the complex syntax of the English language. Sundry phonetic pioneers have argued that too long have the people suffered from a confusion of tongues.

But while almost everything else has been streamlined, language still has a planetary transmission. Like the weather, everyone talks about simplifying speech, but it remained for the Indiana legislature to do something about it.

To the delight of schoolboys, who now can carry their corrected themes to the Supreme Court and prove that they have the law on their side when they write "we am," the legislators rationalized the intricate make of singulars and plurals. Furthermore, they took a stand on sex.

This Magna Charta of the fumbling writer may be found in, of all places, the Alcoholic Beverages Act. Section 15, paragraph (a), states, more or less clearly, and in almost Biblical prose:

"The singular shall include the plural, and the plural shall include the singular; the masculine shall include the feminine, and the feminine shall include the masculine, and each shall include the neuter as requisite."

It is as simple as that.

IT'S HERE, LOOK OUT

Teachers haven't seen anything yet. Junior has been provided with a new and terrible weapon. A design for a pea shooter with modern sights has been patented by a Los Angeles inventive genius.

The thing has a front sight with crossbars at various levels, like the cross hairs in a rifle telescope sight. This will make trajectory possible when elevation is wanted for shooting at certain specified distances.

No schoolmate in the room will be immune or out of range. After a little practice, the percentage of misses, even near ones, is described as practically negligible. Isn't science wonderful?

EXPLOSIVE LAUGHTER

According to the Jap news agency, the usual reaction of people in Japanese cities subjected American aerial bombardment is to "laugh it off, saying, 'Well, we've finally been hit.'"

Whistling past the graveyard is an old Japanese propaganda trick, but this is really laying it on fortissimo. American fliers taking part in 2,000-plane assaults on the Japanese homeland might be somewhat chagrined to learn that their cascading bombs are greeted by the audible merriment of the populace. But they might console themselves with the thought that perhaps there may be some disagreement among the Japanese with the Domei assertion.

DEVELOPING A RESOURCE

Research chemists are making constant progress in their quest of new discoveries for the utilization of natural gas. As a result, this product, which not long ago was regarded as a nuisance around oil fields, is now being sought intensively by oil companies. Natural gas is not only in demand as a fuel, but as a raw material for industries.

Gas is a simple hydrocarbon. Under certain conditions the atoms of this hydrocarbon recombine to form another molecule of different properties. Chemists believe that when they have made more progress in this field, it will be possible to pipe natural gas into a factory as a raw material and take out at the other end gasoline, synthetic rubber, paint, alcohol, ether, moth balls and many other articles of commercial value.

This would, of course, be the cheapest kind of production. It is a field in which chemistry sees great possibilities.

Less entertaining than a dental appointment . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Robert Walker outsteps stiff competition to cop "Her Highness and the Bellboy" [illegible]ing honors.

It will be interesting to see (any day now) whether the expected Rosemary Lane-Buddy Westmore baby is a girl or a boy. Miss Lane hails from a family of famous sisters, including Priscilla, Lola and Leota. Westmore comes from a family of almost as famous brothers, including Perc, Ernie and Wally. Unless the stork brings twins, and one of each sex, the tradition of either the Lane or the Westmore clan is about to be broken.

Several movie couples on verge of divorce (Ken Murray and his wife are the latest) are still living under the same roof, due to the housing shortage. I'm not joking; these befuddled people actually cannot find other places to which to move. It must be annoying for a separated wife to usher a new boyfriend into her parlor and there find her about-to-be-ex with his shoeless feet propped against the mantel. But this situation could have good results. It is quite possible that an estranged couple, forced to live together, may give matters a re-think before taking the final step-moving out. Some may even change their minds.

I object to the way Warner Brothers made publicity fodder of Janis Paige's appeal for a blood donor. Toward the end of Miss Paige's recent illness, she received a transfusion and immediately began to recover. She then needed no more blood. Despite this fact, her studio issued stories that she was in desperate need, and quite a few public spirited citizens volunteered to give Miss Paige a transfusion. I wonder how those nice people felt, when they learned that the appeal was engineered for the sake of a few lines of publicity?

Studios that have been dubbing films in Spanish for release in Mexico are running into squawks from down there. It seems that the Mexicans are accustomed to the old systems of subtitles, and they like it better than the dubbing. They have grown accustomed to Clark Gable's voice, for example, and they like it even though they can't understand what he is saying and this must be explained in written titles. It looks very much like a repetition of the historical remark, "Speak for yourself, John."

BY HENRY McLEMORE

By Mrs. Henry McLemore

It doesn't seem possible, but I have achieved it again. Another guest column from Sgt. Henry McLemore. It was even easier than the last time. Today I only had to employ the lasso, the bastinado, and the promise of a deep dish peach pie.

I tried on my civilian clothes today. Wishing that I had on my gas mask, I penetrated the gloom of the attic closet and, with the deadly fumes of the moth balls swirling about my head, dragged out the clothes of yesteryear.

The chalk-stripe flannel. The double-breasted blue. The martini-spotted dinner jacket. The tweed coat and the flannel pants. The various sorts of sweaters, and the shirts and ties and socks.

The first thing I tried on, before the full length mirror in the dressing room, was the double-breasted blue. When I had it tailored I requested the double-breasted business in the belief that it would make me appear thinner. I suppose it did, too, in the same way that a double-breasted tent might make a hippopotamus look thinner than just a single flap number. There was enough room in the pants for me and all the 1943 and 1944 copies of the Congressional record. I weighed in the neighborhood of 185 then, and had a 43 waistline. Today I weigh about 131 and have a 31 waistline.

The shirts were even more voluminous. When those shirts were bought I had a chin for each star in the flag. Now, after trying to help defend the flag, I have only one chin. Friends say I look fifty years younger. I shudder to think how old I must have looked when I first reported to Camp Wheeler for that form of medieval torture which is known simply as infantry basic training. All I know is that when I first went over the obstacle course at Camp Wheeler I finished 175th in a field of 175, but my stomach won first place, beating me in by a good 15 minutes.

Getting into civilian clothes for keeps are what a lot of us (and when I say "a lot" I mean practically all of us) are dreaming about, but brother, it is going to be a confounded nuisance in more ways than one. I have noticed the price of clothing and it is going to be tough to go in a store and lay out that sort of money instead of going to the supply sergeant and getting a nice little suit for free.

In the old days I used to have to worry about what to wear. What tie with this suit, what socks with this outfit, what tie to wear with this get-up. There is no such problem when a man is in the army. He just puts on that khaki number with the khaki pants, the khaki socks, the khaki tie, the khaki handkerchief, and the khaki everything else, and knows he is not badly dressed in any company.

And what a relief to be a soldier when it comes to packing. I was thinking about that today when I started preparations for returning North and reporting for duty. No more worries about what to carry. I have three cotton suits, a couple of cotton caps, a couple of ties and a few matching accessories. I could wrap them in an old newspaper and be ready to go in five minutes.

I know that when we start packing I'll wish that Jean were a sailor or a soldier or a marine, because I know the questions that will be asked me when we start North.

"Henry, do you think this is a cute dress? Do you think I ought to take it?"

"Look Henry, do you think I should take a dinner dress?"

"Do you think a new veil would make this hat look less goofy?"

Yes, there are going to be a few things about civilian life which are going to make us soldiers long for the days of the bugle and the first sergeant.

Any one who believes the above statement is strictly Section 8.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Two stories of Abraham stand out from the crude and primitive times in which he lives revealing such a high conception of human motives and action that they speak to our own times clearly. The problem of world peace and security might be said to be that of catching up with Abraham.

The first story is of the strife between the men of Abraham and those of his kinsman, Lot, over pastures and watering places. That Abraham was no coward or appeaser was shown plainly a little later, but he was a man of great unselfishness, willing to sacrifice his own interests if peace could be maintained. In this spirit he said to Lot as they looked over the land, "You take the left and I will go to the right; or you go to the right and I will go to the left. "Let there be no strife between me and thee and between my herdmen and thy herdmen, for we be brethren."

Lot might have been a brother but he didn't reciprocate Abraham's spirit of brotherhood. When he saw that the plain of the Jordan was well watered everywhere, he chose what he thought was the better and more luscious country. Like all blindly selfish men who think only of their own profit he made a bad choice, and that Abraham's unselfishness and love of peace were not impulses of the moment, but expressions of his settled character was soon displayed in the second episode, when Lot got into trouble.

"Lot pitched his tent toward Sodom," without for a moment thinking of the trouble he was getting into when he cast in his lot with that wicked city. The trouble began sometime before the threat of destruction and Lot's flight from the city. In a war in which a number of kings were involved, the King of Sodom was defeated, and Lot was carried off a captive, and all his goods were seized.

When word was brought to Abraham, he armed his trained servants to the number of over 300, pursued the kings who had gone off with the captives and the loot; and partly by courageous daring, partly by strategy, attacking by night, defeated and pursued them, recapturing not only Lot, but all the people they had carried off from Sodom, and all the goods. The man of peace could be a terrific fighter if he was forced to fight—just as men of peace have been the most terrible and effecient fighters of today.

Then happened a great and wonderful thing, full of meaning for a world seeking peace today. The King of Sodom was grateful. He said to Abraham, "Give me the persons, and take the goods to thyself." But Abraham refused to accept as much as a shoelatchet except only what his warriors had eaten or spent in their campaign.

What a world this might be if every individual and every nation concerned with the establishment of peace on earth were to say, both in words and in effect: "I want nothing for myself; I care only that all may get their just rights, and that what is best for all may be attained."

It is selfishness on the part of individuals and nations that is most likely to defeat plans for peace. That is why the world needs to catch up with Abraham.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE MILKMAN'S CATCH—One morning in July, 1944, George B. O'Connor, a milkman of San Francisco, was delivering milk when he heard the tinkle of broken glass, looked up and saw a child fall from an open window. The milkman dropped his milk and caught the child, a 5-year-old girl. For this heroic catch, O'Connor received the Pasteur Gold Medal which the milk industry awards annually for outstanding heroism.

News BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The Berlin conference of Messrs. Truman, Churchill and Stalin at the head of substantial entourages, will be long and thorough.

Those who left here early, including Joseph Davies (who seems to be a sort of new Harry Hopkins to Mr. Truman on Russia) made plans to be away a month. [illegible] Mr. Truman's return about August 15.

What will be the subject of discussion is a matter of [illegible] speculation. [illegible] diplomatic crises [illegible] Last week's crises was [illegible] this week [illegible] Tangiers and Berlin [illegible] a few weeks earlier it was Syria and so on.

For many generations Britain has been accustomed to a diplomatic crisis a week, sometimes two or three weeks. Our venture into world leadership has, for the first apparent result, plunged us into the realm of succeeding endless crises in one part of the world or another.

My guess is that the handling of whatever crises are uppermost at the [illegible] news of the moment may dominate the reports from the conference [illegible] the conference. But [illegible] successful, the meeting itself must deal inevitably with what causes all these crises and eliminate the causes.

The new president, Mr. Truman, and his new state secretary, Byrnes, are being sent on their way with the private senatorial comment that they are not men "accustomed to giving things away." To this observation, one senator has rejoined:

"Yes, but we have nothing to give away."

This may be somewhat true in a territorial sense, but in a more accurate consideration we have the entire world to give away. We can give away other nations quite freely. The truth is we have leadership to assert.

The cause of these crises is a developing imperialist policy by Russia. Her army occupation of European territory was blocked off from all news by Moscow for several weeks after the surrender, until a few days ago.

The commonly accepted reason for our exclusion, as offered authoritatively, but privately, here, is that Russia wished to liquidate all her enemies in those nations before letting us even into Berlin.

Along with this development, Russia has pursued a policy of extension of her borders, starting before her invasion by Hitler, by taking half of Poland, then afterward taking it all into her sphere of influence, completely liquidating Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, getting back Carpatho-Ukraine from Czechoslovakia, taking off a piece of Finland, demanding provinces from neutral Turkey, and so on.

This aggrandizement of territory has been based on the policy of taking any loose adjoining territory for which a historical justification of old time Russian ownership might be offered. (Hitler, you may remember, did it that way for a while: Rhineland, Austria, Danzig, etc.)

Where does this stop? If Russia turns next to Asia, despite any temporary or tentaive understandings with T. V. Soong on joining us as an ally, will she demand territory formerly lost to Japan, and go back into history far enough to find grounds for encroaching upon Asia, step by step, crisis by crisis, in coming months or years?

Is the Holy Russian empire coming back into the world under new management? With no noticeable expansion in holiness?

Along with this visible extension of actual empire, Russia also is proceeding to extend her hegemony over [illegible] states, meeting [illegible] dents, [illegible] wise gaining control [illegible] only [illegible] results [illegible] special interests [illegible]

Messrs. Truman and Byrnes will have to develop and present a new American foreign policy to deal with this most [illegible] matter, now the most important [illegible] question of the [illegible]

No [illegible] sentiment [illegible] exists in this country, but an [illegible] is loudly promoting appeasement. In past diplomacy we have tried both war and appeasement. Neither method is popular [illegible]

If Russia forces us [illegible] required to [illegible] self-defense, but [illegible] only if Russia [illegible] present course.

What our people plainly want is above-board dealing and justice for all people [illegible] empires and [illegible] want our officials [illegible] without fearful appeasement on the one hand or belligerency on the other.

They want us now, I believe, to assume the leadership responsibility which we profess. I think this will be the Truman-Byrnes course in Berlin.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

For God giveth to a man that is good in his sight wisdom, and knowledge, and joy: but to the sinner he giveth travail, to gather and to heap up, that he may give to him that is good before God. This also is vanity and vexation of spirit.—Ecclesiastes 2:26.

That which makes the vanity of others unbearable to us is that which wounds our own.—La Rochefoucauld.

Suicide Of A Nation

In the Pacific the setting is being prepared for decisive action. The Japanese, who observed the developments that led to the prostration of Germany, will have no difficulty in recognizing the processes of preparation for those operations which will end in the devastation and defeat of Japan.

Gathered in the waters off Japan, unhindered by even the threat of aggressive action by the enemy, is what is described by high naval officers as "the greatest mass of sea power ever assembled." It is a force which gives to the Allied command complete confidence in its ability to dominate any situation that may arise. It is so overwhelming that the need of secrecy concerning the identity of elements has passed and the Japanese are informed as to the proportions and the make-up of the great fleet that prowls the home waters.

This is Japan's darkest hour since Pearl Harbor, an hour when it is no longer possible to escape the realization that the power of the enemy is overwhelming, that little can be done to escape the impending doom. There is now little question that the present month or August will see the beginning of the assault by invasion on the home islands of Japan or on the Japanese-held areas of China.

In the destruction of Germany, strategic bombing, it was believed, attained the peak of effectiveness. Every major city in the Reich was razed and industrially Germany was left impotent, unable to produce the implements and materials of war. And Germany was a large target, with an air force which in the beginning possessed great power and what were considered perfect systems of ground defenses.

But not even Germany felt the incessant weight of bombs American planes are dropping on Japan now that the seas that wash the islands have been taken over by the fleet and a thousand planes a day take off from carriers and the island bases gained at a heavy cost.

Admiral Halsey's unprecedented naval operations off Japan suggest impressively the feebleness to which the enemy has been reduced in the air and on the sea. Not a ship appears on the horizon to challenge the assault forces. Not a Jap plane takes to the air as Nipponese skies are darkened by the aircraft of the invader.

This is the beginning of the final phase of the suicide of a nation.

A SINGULAR LAW

There has been a lot of talk recently about Basic English and the Global Alphabet and other devices designed to unscramble the complex syntax of the English language. Sundry phonetic pioneers have argued that too long have the people suffered from a confusion of tongues.

But while almost everything else has been streamlined, language still has a planetary transmission. Like the weather, everyone talks about simplifying speech, but it remained for the Indiana legislature to do something about it.

To the delight of schoolboys, who now can carry their corrected themes to the Supreme Court and prove that they have the law on their side when they write "we am," the legislators rationalized the intricate make of singulars and plurals. Furthermore, they took a stand on sex.

This Magna Charta of the fumbling writer may be found in, of all places, the Alcoholic Beverages Act, Section 15, paragraph (a), states, more or less clearly, and in almost Biblical prose:

"The singular shall include the plural, and the plural shall include the singular; the masculine shall include the feminine, and the feminine shall include the masculine, and each shall include the neuter as requisite."

It is as simple as that.

IT'S HERE, LOOK OUT

Teachers haven't seen anything yet. Junior has been provided with a new and terrible weapon. A design for a pea shooter with modern sights has been patented by a Los Angeles inventive genius.

The thing has a front sight with crossbars at various levels, like the cross hairs in a rifle telescope sight. This will make trajectory possible when elevation is wanted for shooting at certain specified distances.

No schoolmate in the room will be immune or out of range. After a little practice, the percentage of misses, even near ones, is described as practically negligible. Isn't science wonderful?

EXPLOSIVE LAUGHTER

According to the Jap news agency, the usual reaction of people in Japanese cities subjected American aerial bombardment is to "laugh it off, saying, 'Well, we've finally been hit.'"

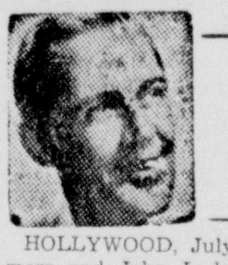
Whistling past the graveyard is an old Japanese propaganda trick, but this is really laying it on fortissimo. American fliers taking part in 2,000-plane assaults on the Japanese homeland might be somewhat chagrined to learn that their cascading bombs are greeted by the audible merriment of the populace. But they might console themselves with the thought that perhaps there may be some disagreement among the Japanese with the Domei assertion.

DEVELOPING A RESOURCE

Research chemists are making constant progress in their quest of new discoveries for the utilization of natural gas. As a result, this product, which not long ago was regarded as a nuisance around oil fields, is now being sought intensively by oil companies. Natural gas is not only in demand as a fuel, but as a raw material for industries.

Gas is a simple hydrocarbon. Under certain conditions the atoms of this hydrocarbon recombine to form another molecule of different properties. Chemists believe that when they have made more progress in this field, it will be possible to pipe natural gas into a factory as a raw material and take out at the other end gasoline, synthetic rubber, paint, alcohol, ether, moth balls and many other articles of commercial value.

This would, of course, be the cheapest kind of production. It is a field in which chemistry sees great possibilities.



Jimmie Fidler IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, July 14.—Hedy Lamarr and John Loder are about to make news . . . Errol Flynn returned from his Bond tour with a 103 temperature . . . The Xavier Cugat-Ann Marsh engagement is colder than an Eskimo's nose . . . Charles Bickford has bought a Massachusetts farm and will breed horses . . . John Garfield is set for a New York play this fall (competing with Spencer Tracy, who'll do the same).

Eve Arden, who adopted one tot, is seeking a second and says she'll adopt four . . . Since Pearl Harbor, Mary Pickford has entertained and fed more than 22,500 service men at her home . . . Dashiell Hammett, the mystery story teller, who has been with the Army in Alaska for four years, says he'll live there permanently . . . Garry Moore, the comic, has taken that name legally, dropping Garry Morfit.

Julie Gibson will wed Dick Wiley, the agent, in September . . . Columbia is filming a satire on the nation's 2,000 disc jockies. They're the chaps who play radio request programs . . . Samuel Goldwyn may film the life of Winston Churchill . . . Miriam Hopkins is seeing stars with Ray Brock, the war correspondent . . . Chester Morris suggests this epitaph for the Japs: To-kayoed.

Lili Damita (Errol Flynn's ex) prefers being introduced as Mrs. Flynn . . . William Powell's dislocated sacroiliac has held up production on his new MGM movie for two weeks now . . . Judy Canova also has a sore back; she fell from a stage during a Bond pitch . . . Judy Garland and Vincente Minnelli are arranging to adopt a baby.

Vic Mature won't marry Buff Cobb because Army Corporal James Phillips has beaten his time . . . Leslie Brooks, who expects a baby, is living with her husband in a rented room; she can find nothing else . . . Irene Wicker, radio's "Singing Lady," will make a series of government-sponsored, educational films for kids . . . Lack of transportation is holding up several USO overseas troupes.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the Week: MGM's "Her Highness and the Bellboy" (Robert Walker-Hedy Lamarr-June Allyson). A modern fairy tale to delight the 6-to-60 group . . . RECOMMENDED: Paramount's "Out of This World" (Eddie Bracken-Veronica Lake-Diana Lynn). Bracken ties a can to Sinatra's wail . . . SO-SO: Columbia's "Boston Blackie's Rendezvous." Less entertaining than a dental appointment . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Robert Walker outsteps stiff competition to cop "Her Highness and the Bellboy" ing honors.

It will be interesting to see (any day now) whether the expected Rosemary Lane-Buddy Westmore baby is a girl or a boy. Miss Lane hails from a family of famous sisters, including Priscilla, Lola and Leota. Westmore comes from a family of almost as famous brothers, including Perc, Ernie and Wally. Unless the stork brings twins, and one of each sex, the tradition of either the Lane or the Westmore clan is about to be broken.

Several movie couples on verge of divorce (Ken Murray and his wife are the latest) are still living under the same roof, due to the housing shortage. I'm not joking; these befuddled people actually cannot find other places to which to move. It must be annoying for a separated wife to usher a new boyfriend into her parlor and there find her about-to-be-ex with his shoeless feet propped against the mantel. But this situation could have good results. It is quite possible that an estranged couple, forced to live together, may give matters a re-think before taking the final step-moving out. Some may even change their minds.

I object to the way Warner Brothers made publicity fodder of Janis Paige's appeal for a blood donor. Toward the end of Miss Paige's recent illness, she received a transfusion and immediately began to recover. She then needed no more blood. Despite this fact, her studio issued stories that she was in desperate need, and quite a few public spirited citizens volunteered to give Miss Paige a transfusion. I wonder how those nice people felt, when they learned that the appeal was engineered for the sake of a few lines of publicity?

Studios that have been dubbing films in Spanish for release in Mexico, are running into squawks from down there. It seems that the Mexicans are accustomed to the old systems of subtitles, and they like it better than the dubbing. They have grown accustomed to Clark Gable's voice, for example, and they like it even though they can't understand what he is saying and this must be explained in written titles. It looks very much like a repetition of the historical remark, "Speak for yourself, John."

BY HENRY McLEMORE

By Mrs. Henry McLemore

It doesn't seem possible, but I have achieved it again. Another guest column from Sgt. Henry McLemore. It was even easier than the last time. Today I only had to employ the lasso, the bastinado, and the promise of a deep dish peach pie.

I tried on my civilian clothes today.

Wishing that I had on my gas mask, I penetrated the gloom of the attic closet and, with the deadly fumes of the moth balls swirling about my head, dragged out the clothes of yesteryear.

The chalk-stripe flannel. The double-breasted blue. The martini-spotted dinner jacket. The tweed coat and the flannel pants. The various sorts of sweaters, and the shirts and ties and socks.

The first thing I tried on, before the full length mirror in the dressing room, was the double-breasted blue. When I had it tailored I requested the double-breasted business in the belief that it would make me appear thinner. I suppose it did, too, in the same way that a double-breasted tent might make a hippopotamus look thinner than just a single flap number. There was enough room in the pants for me and all the 1943 and 1944 copies of the Congressional record. I weighed in the neighborhood of 185 then, and had a 43 waistline. Today I weigh about 134 and have a 31 waistline.

The shirts were even more voluminous. When those shirts were bought I had a chin for each star in the flag. Now, after trying to help defend the flag, I have only one chin. Friends say I look fifty years younger. I shudder to think how old I must have looked when I first reported to Camp Wheeler for that form of medieval torture which is known simply as infantry basic training. All I know is that when I first went over the obstacle course at Camp Wheeler I finished 175th in a field of 175, but my stomach won first place, beating me in by a good 15 minutes.

Getting into civilian clothes for keeps are what a lot of us (and when I say "a lot" I mean practically all of us) are dreaming about, but brother, it is going to be a confounded nuisance in more ways than one. I have noticed the price of clothing and it is going to be rough to go in a store and lay out that sort of money instead of going to the supply sergeant and getting a nice little suit for free.

In the old days I used to have to worry about what to wear. What tie with this suit, what socks with this outfit, what tie to wear with this get-up. There is no such problem when a man is in the army. He just puts on that khaki number with the khaki pants, the khaki socks, the khaki tie, the khaki handkerchief, and the khaki everything else, and knows he is not badly dressed in any company.

And what a relief to be a soldier when it comes to packing. I was thinking about that today when I started preparations for returning North and reporting for duty. No more worries about what to carry. I have three cotton suits, a couple of cotton caps, a couple of ties and at few matching accessories. I could wrap them in an old newspaper and be ready to go in five minutes.

I know that when we start packing I'll wish that Jean were a sailor or a soldier or a marine, because I know the questions that will be asked me when we start North.

"Henry, do you think this is a cute dress? Do you think I ought to take it?"

"Look, Henry, do you think I should take a dinner dress?"

"Do you think new veil would make this hat look less goofy?"

Yes, there are going to be a few things about civilian life which are going to make us soldiers long for the days of the bugle and the first sergeant.

Any one who believes the above statement is strictly Section 8.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Two stories of Abraham stand out from the crude and primitive times in which he lives revealing such a high conception of human motives and action that they speak to our own times clearly. The problem of world peace and security might be said to be that of catching up with Abraham.

The first story is of the strife between the men of Abraham and those of his kinsman, Lot, over pastures and watering places. That Abraham was no coward or appeaser was shown plainly a little later, but he was a man of great unselfishness, willing to sacrifice his own interests if peace could be maintained. In this spirit he said to Lot as they looked over the land, "You take the left and I will go to the right; or you go to the right and I will go to the left. "Let there be no strife between me and thee and between my herdmen and thy herdmen; for we be brethren."

Lot might have been a brother but he didn't reciprocate Abraham's spirit of brotherhood. When he saw that the plain of the Jordan was well watered everywhere, he chose what he thought was the better and more luscious country. Like all blindly selfish men who think only of their own profit, he made a bad choice; and that Abraham's unselfishness and love of peace were not impulses of the moment, but expressions of his settled character was soon displayed in the second episode, when Lot got into trouble.

"Lot pitched his tent toward Sodom," without for a moment thinking of the trouble he was getting into when he cast in his lot with that wicked city. The trouble began some time before the threat of destruction and Lot's flight from the city. In a war in which a number of kings were involved, the King of Sodom was defeated, and Lot was carried off a captive, and all his goods were seized.

When word was brought to Abraham, he armed his trained servants to the number of over 300, pursued the kings who had gone off with the captives and the loot; and partly by courageous daring, partly by strategy, attacking by night, defeated and pursued them, recapturing not only Lot, but all the people they had carried off from Sodom, and all the goods. The man of peace could be a terrific fighter if he was forced to fight—just as men of peace have been the most terrible and effecient fighters of today.

Then happened a great and wonderful thing, full of meaning for a world seeking peace today. The King of Sodom was grateful. He said to Abraham, "Give me the persons, and take the goods to thyself." But Abraham refused to accept as much as a shoelatchet, except only what his warriors had eaten or spent in their campaign.

What a world this might be if every individual and every nation concerned with the establishment of peace on earth were to say, both in words and in effect: "I want nothing for myself; I care only that all may get their just rights, and that what is best for all may be attained."

It is selfishness on the part of individuals and nations that is most likely to defeat plans for peace. That is why the world needs to catch up with Abraham.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE MILKMAN'S CATCH—One morning in July, 1944, George B. O'Connor, a milkman of San Francisco, was delivering milk when he heard the tinkle of broken glass, looked up and saw a child fall from an open window. The milkman dropped his milk and caught the child, a 5-year-old girl. For this heroic catch, O'Connor received the Pasteur Gold Medal which the milk industry awards annually for outstanding heroism.

News BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 14—The Berlin conference, of Messrs. Truman, Churchill and Stalin at the head of substantial entourages, will be long and thorough.

Those who left here early, including Joseph Davies (who seems to be a sort of new Harry Hopkins to Mr. Truman on Russia) made plans to be away a month. Inner plans call for Mr. Truman's return about August 15.

What will be the subjects for discussion is a matter of common popular speculation, the commonest and most popular running to international diplomatic crises on the front pages. Last week's crises was Turkey, this week added Tangiers and Berlin food, a few weeks earlier it was Syria, and so on.

For many generations Britain has been accustomed to a diplomatic crises a week, sometimes two in good weeks. Our venture into world leadership has, for the first apparent result, plunged us into the realm of succeeding, endless crises in one part of the world or another.

My guess is that the handling of whatever crises are uppermost in the news of the moment may dominate the reports from the conference, but not the conference. But that to be successful, the meeting itself must deal inevitably with what causes all these crises, and eliminate the causes.

The new president, Mr. Truman, and his new state secretary Byrnes are being sent on their way with the private senatorial comment that they are not men "accustomed to giving things away." To this observation, one senator has rejoined:

"Yes but we have nothing to give away."

This may be somewhat true in a territorial sense, but in a more accurate consideration we have the entire world to give away. We can give away other nations quite freely. The truth is we have leadership to assert.

The cause of these crises is a developing imperialist policy by Russia. Her army occupation of European territory was blocked off from all news, by Moscow, for several weeks after the surrender, until a few days ago.

The commonly ascribed reason for our exclusion, as offered authoritatively, but privately, here, is that Russia wished to liquidate all her enemies in those nations before letting us even into Berlin.

Along with this development, Russia has pursued a policy of extension of her borders, starting before her invasion by Hitler, by taking half of Poland, then afterward taking it all into her sphere of influence, completely liquidating Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, getting back Carpatho-Ukraine from Czechoslovakia, slicing off a piece of Finland, demanding provinces from neutral Turkey, and so on.

This aggrandizement of territory has been based on the policy of taking any loose adjoining territory for which a historical justification of old time Russian ownership might be offered. (Hitler, you may remember, did it that way for a while—Rhineland, Austria, Danzig, etc.)

Where does this stop? If Russia turns next to Asia, despite any temporary or tentaive understandings with T. V. Soong on joining us as an ally, will she demand territory formerly lost to Japan, and go back into history far enough to find grounds for encroaching upon Asia, step by step, crisis by crisis, in coming months or years?

Is the Holy Russian empire coming back into the world under new management? With no noticeable expansion in holiness?

Along with this visible extension of actual empire, Russia also is proceeding to extend her hegemony over other states, inserting friendly presidents, cabinet ministers and otherwise gaining control which is visible only in results—trade preferences, special interests, alliances, etc.?

Messrs. Truman and Byrnes will have to develop and present a new American foreign policy to deal with this basic matter, now the most important underlying question of the world, and assert affirmative American leadership in the world. I do not believe they favor war to stop Russia—or appeasement.

No popular sentiment for war exists in this country, but an inconsequential minority is loudly promoting appeasement. In past diplomacy we have tried both war and appeasement. Neither method is popular as a course now.

If Russia forces us we could be required to adopt pressure politics in self-defense, but this would be popular only if Russia does not stop her present course.

What our people plainly want is above-board dealing and justice for all people (not more dictatorship, empires and hegemonies,) and they want our officials to pursue this without fearful appeasement on the one hand or belligerency on the other.

They want us now, I believe, to assume the leadership responsibility which we profess. I think this will be the Truman-Byrnes course in Berlin.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

For God giveth to a man that is good in his sight wisdom, and knowledge, and joy: but to the sinner he giveth travail, to gather and to heap up, that he may give to him that is good before God. This also is vanity and vexation of spirit.—Ecclesiastes 2:26.

That which makes the vanity of others unbearable to us is that which wounds our own.—La Rochefoucauld.

NEW YORK — Mayor La Guardi[a] says he could be elected on a laundry ticket, if he wanted to run . . . But L. E. Lookabill, one of my mos[t] distinguished postcard correspondent[s] writes from Doanoke, Va., that any body could be elected on a laundr[y] ticekt today, with a plank providi[ng] for the delivery of the laundry o[n] time . . . Adna R. Chaffee, who w[as] at the wall of Peking in the Box[er] War, is not the only person to be[ar] that first name, I'm informed by M[rs.] H. S. Rawlings, of Cumberland, M[d.] She has a relative, Adna Stake[m,] wife of P. J. Stakem, in her tow[n] named Adna. And, she adds, it w[as] the name of an Old Testament riv[er] . . . To keep a dog from sufferi[ng] from thunder and firecrackers, stu[ff] his ears lightly with cotton, says W. Doc Allman, of Houston, Tex. . . . B[ut] Lola Alfaretta Davis, of that sa[me] Tevas town, says she bets you nev[er] heard of anybody with her midd[le] name, which also was her grandmoth[er's] name in Augusta, Kan. . . . a[nd] Mrs. J. D. Fields, of Wichita, Ka[n.,] quotes from the Nelson edition of t[he] Bible, the passage so badly misquot[ed] by Eleanor Roosevelt: "I will lift [up] mine eyes unto the mountains: Fr[om] whence shall my help come? My h[elp] cometh from Jehovah, who ma[de] heaven and earth." . . . This is an [in]teresting rendering of the text. M[rs.] Roosevelt's quotation was merely [a] misquotation of the King James ve[r]sion.

This game of names is easy [for] Noble G. Miller, of Ft. Wayne, I[nd.] He works in a glass factory, a[nd] knows girls by the name of Be[...] Landsaw, Maple Ensley, and Dol[...] Hile, besides one named Dev[...] daughter of Dolpha . . . Well it [has] become apparent that a parent m[ay] name a child almost anything. [I] have a neighbor named Horse La[...]ler, but Horse isn't his real, bapti[smal] name. It was given to him by [his] schoolmates . . . Mrs. Harry Moult[on] of Salt Lake City, rebukes me [for] speaking out about the Russian Co[m]munists. They're not our allies a[ny] more, Mrs. M. They'll declare w[ar] on the Japs in time to grab the r[eal] estate, just as they declared war [on] poor, helpless Poland, when Hit[ler] had won the war there. I'm under [no] patriotic obligations to love Stalin.

Concordia Publishing House, [St.] Louis, sends me a little pocket-s[ize] booklet called "Bible People," m[ost] interesting . . . Mrs. Carl F. Wiet[...] of Owosso, Mich., doesn't share [my] love for dogs, but she does love gra[nd]children. All right, we can't dem[and] that everybody share all our tas[tes.] You ought to see my granddaugh[ter] playing with our cocker spa[niel,] Jones! . . . Mrs. Mary E. Boore, [of] Brazil, Ind., tells how she and [...] others in her family were taugh[t to] shun the jimson weed, except to ex[tir]pate it, and not permitted to touc[h it] without protection between hands [and] weed, even when uprooting it. I [had] the same training . . . and is it [true] that Brazil in Indiana, is pronou[nced] differently from Brazil, in So[uth] America?

The woodpecker that pecked at [a] drain pipe for so many weeks [...] had a response from the readers, e[ven] if he didn't get the mate he is [said] to have been telegraphing for. [Mrs.] J. W. Elmore, Roanoke, Va., says [her] father, a minister, was interrupte[d in] his preaching by a woodpecker dr[um]ming on a tin roof. She quotes J[ohn] Burroughs, who seems to be the [...] authority for the belief that the wo[od]pecker that pecks at metal is cal[ling] for a mate . . . Maybe Burro[ughs] knew. Maybe he was just guessin[g.]

Persons who ask replies to t[heir] letters should enclose addre[ssed] stamped envelopes. I don't [care] whether they are self-addressed [or] addressed by a relative or emp[loyer] . . . Two Amos families live in G[al]veston, Ind., according to Lu[...] Rodebaugh, of that place.

EARLY HOSPITAL HISTORY HERE IS TOLD IN ARTICLE

How Sisters Of Charity Aided In War Between States Recounted

How the Monroe hospital back in 1962 in wartime was staffed by Sisters of Charity, is told in "Catholic Action" in its recent issue. It stated as follows:

"There are at present no Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, or Sisters of Charity, as they are popularly called, serving in the Diocese of Alaxandria, but it is a little known fact that Sisters of Charity did conduct a hospital in Monroe for one year. This was 83 years ago. These heroic sisters came to the aid of the Confederacy during the War Between the States, as fore-runners of the devoted Franciscan Sisters of Calais, who now conduct our well known St. Francis Sanitarium here today.

"It was the bitter war between the North and South, that led to the establishment of the Sisters of Charity here, according to notes written by the late Rev. C. Mahe and Rev. Louis Gergaud, heroic pastor of St. Mathew's church at the time.

"During the second year of the War Between the States, Monroe had become a place of some importance, because it was successively the headquarters in North Louisiana of the Sub-District of North Louisiana. The presence of troops necessitated the establishment of a general hospital. Gen. A. G. Blanchard, a Catholic, requested Father Gergaud to try to procure the Sisters of Charity. These Sisters had given many volunteers to aid the soldiers of the South in wartime and a number served not only in field hospitals, but also on ambulances.

"The New Orleans houses of the Sisters of Charity hospitals, schools and orphanages, had already furnished a number of Sisters who had volunteered, and the number of Sisters remaining there was far below the requirements for the vast amount of work at hand. Father Gergaud then turned his appeal to the Sister of Charity of Natchez, where they conducted St. Mary's orphanage and a school.

"His plea was not in vain, for three Sisters were sent to Monroe in September 1862, and immediately they took charge of the hospital. Their devoted charity and tireless services, Father Gergaud declared, dispelled many prejuices an more than 50 solders were received into the Catholic church on their deathbed.

"In August 1863, the Confederates evacuated Monroe, because of the threatening Red river valley campaign. The hospital was transferred to Mount Lebanon, and the Sisters returned to their duties at Natchez. They took back with them, Father Gergaud wrote, the blessings and good wishes of all who came in contact with them and had witnessed their daily works of love.'

"Thus the first Catholic hospital work was undertaken in Monroe under the stress of war. Half a century elapsed before a permanent Catholic hospital was established. This was in 1912 when the Franciscan Sisters of Calais, under direction of Father Mahe, and with the financial aid of beloved Father Enaut, built the present St. Francis sanitarium."

FERTILIZER IN GARDENING PAYS

Large Returns Can Be Had When Crops Are Well Enriched

By G. L. Tiebout

If you were offered 1,000 per cent return on an investment of a dollar, of ten dollars for one, you'd get busy right now, wouldn't you, Victory gardeners? Well, fertilize your Victory garden crops with Victory garden fertilizer and you'll make ten dollars worth of plant food. There is more to Victory gardening than just hoeing. But the poorer gardeners do little more than just that. You can tell these hoe-gardens as far as you can see them, if there is much to see at all.

Fortunately, most Victory gardeners use Victory garden fertilizer and the government has seen fit not to ration this plant food, because it is an accepted practice to use fertilizer all over the country for Victory gardens. In Louisiana farmers have almost doubled their use of commercial fertilizer during the war and their operations are not nearly so intensive as those of Victory gardeners, even though the soils which they cultivate are richer on the whole.

With Victory gardens in Louisiana, our soils are most uniform because they're usually virgin and not graded much in laying out the towns, cities and suburban areas. Rarely ever do we find a back-yard, side-yard or vacant lot that can't be cultivated and will produce an abundance of vegetables with a little work and essential amounts of plant food in the form of Victory garden fertilizer.

So, buy a sack of 6-8-4, 5-10-5 or 4-12-4 formula and use ten pounds (pints) to the 100 running feet of row. Put it down deep in a trench at this time of the year and cover it to form the new ridge. Apply the fertilizer in a drill or band and mix it with the soil before you bury it.

In preparing the ridges during the summer and early fall do not turn under any green vegetation or trash, as decaying matter will heat the soil and loosen it up too much.

Let the rains settle the soil after cleaning it off, fertilizing and ridging.

PLAN MEETS WITH TAXPAYER GROUPS

BATON ROUGE, La., July 14.—(AP)—State Sen. H. Alva Brumfield, chairman of the Louisiana Revenue Code commission, announced today the commission would hold a series of hearings to receive from organized taxpayers groups suggestions for modification of state tax laws.

Invited to hearings scheduled for July 20 and July 27 are the State Police Jury Association, Louisiana Municipal Associaton, Louisiana Association of Certified Public Accountants and the State Federation of Labor.

Conferring informally with the commission Friday were representatives of the State University College of Commerce, the New Orleans Bureau of Governmental Research, the Louisiana Manufacturers Association, the Louiisana Small Business Advisory Board and the State Department of Commerce and Industry.

Comments at Friday's meeting included those that establishment of the commission already had proved beneficial to efforts to obtain new industrial development in the state, several in opposition to the practice of dedicating funds for state departments and agencies, and some in favor of reciprocity with other states to avoid payment of tax to two states on the same income.

FERTILIZER IN GARDENING PAYS

By G. L. Tiebout

If you were offered 1,000 per cent return on an investment of a dollar, of ten dollars for one, you'd get busy right now, wouldn't you, Victory gardeners? Well, fertilize your Victory garden crops with Victory garden fertilizer and you'll make ten dollars worth of plant food. There is more to Victory gardening than just hoeing. But the poorer gardeners do little more than just that. You can tell these hoe-gardens as far as you can see them, if there is much to see at all.

Fortunately, most Victory gardeners use Victory garden fertilizer and the government has seen fit not to ration this plant food, because it is an accepted practice to use fertilizer all over the country for Victory gardens. In Louisiana farmers have almost doubled their use of commercial fertilizer during the war and their operations are not nearly so intensive as those of Victory gardeners, even though the soils which they cultivate are richer on the whole.

With Victory gardens in Louisiana, our soils are most uniform because they're usually virgin and not graded much in laying out the towns, cities and suburban areas. Rarely ever do we find a back-yard, side-yard or vacant lot that can't be cultivated and will produce an abundance of vegetables with a little work and essential amounts of plant food in the form of Victory garden fertilizer.

So, buy a sack of 6-8-4, 5-10-5 or 4-12-4 formula and use ten pounds (pints) to the 100 running feet of row. Put it down deep in a trench at this time of the year and cover it to form the new ridge. Apply the fertilizer in a drill or band and mix it with the soil before you bury it.

In preparing the ridges during the summer and early fall do not turn under any green vegetation or trash, as decaying matter will heat the soil and loosen it up too much.

Let the rains settle the soil after cleaning it off, fertilizing and ridging.

If rains do not do the job of waterfirming the ridges, supplement the rainfall with furrow irrigation from the hydrant nearby.

At planting in hills the Dixie tomato, Allyear cabbage, Louisiana Sweet collard, green sprouting broccoli and Early Snowball cauliflower, scrape off the surface of the row with your hoe down to the firm, moist soil below. Sow the seed on this firm soil. Barely cover it and pack the covering over the seed as hard as you can with the ball of your foot. Water the hills with your sprinkling can or fine spray from the hose and keep a continuous supply of moisture available for the germinating seed and the little plants. Remember moisture (water) is the limiting factor during this season of the year in planting seed and getting our crops under way but we must plant today in order to harvest this fall.

Pay especial attention to the varieties of vegetables. If you can't get the Allyear variety of cabbage seed or Louisiana Sweet collard, both of which were bred by the Louisiana State University, send to L. S. U. Victory Pinches, Baton Rouge, La., for a free sample.

BELIEVES INDIAN WAS NOT CHEATED

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—The white man didn't get America from the Indians for a few beads and less wampum, Big Chief Ickes of the interior department said today.

Actually, Ickes said in a report on Indian dealings, approximately $800,000,000 has been paid for the 95 per cent of the public domain lands acquired from the Red Men by treaty since 1790.

Some 2,600,000 square miles of territory were thus obtained by a total of 389 treaties with the 66 principal tribes.

As for the famed purchase of Manhattan Island from the Indians for $24, Ickes jokingly suggested that if the Indians had invested the money at 6 per cent compounded interest, they now would have enough to buy back the island at current valuations and still have $100,000,000 left over.

Ickes also said that large areas of land which the government bought from the Indians for $1.25 an acre is still on the books with no purchasers. Much of this land is now leased at a nominal rate for grazing purposes.

NUTRI-TIPS

The nutrition service of Red Cross can play a part by teaching people how to use their food supply inthis country so that all free men may gain the freedom from want of food. Our country's food supply is adequate if we use our food wisely; play fair; pay no more than ceiling prices; and don't waste a morsel.

Hot weather food needs are less elaborate than those for the cold months. Fats, gravies, and heavy rich deserts are high in calories and stimulate the production of body heat. Leave them for the colder months. The right summer diet can promote a feeling of coolness and comfort.

Wartime shortages make menu-planning a real problem, but fortunately, there are still enough foods in the markets to insure a well-balanced diet. Al lof us need the seven basic food groups summer and winter.

Omelettes and souffles are good meat alternates for summer meals. Salads form an important part of hot weather diet. Cottage cheese is plentiful at this time and it requires no ration points. It can be used in many kinds of salads. Raw vegetable salad is an excellent summer standby, and its preparation does away with the hot work of cooking.

When meat and fish are available, they should be broiled, rather than fried, for summer consumption.

Do not make the mistake of relying only on cold foods when the mecury hovers near the bursting point. Some hot food is needed each day, no matter how high the temperature is.

NOT GUILTY PLEAS MADE BY 4 WOMEN

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Carmen Beach, 29-year-old ex-night club dancer, and three other women arrested in an alleged house of prostitution two blocks from the White House pleaded innocent today to charges of vagrancy.

Margaret Locke, 57, alias Philomena Lockhart, charged with operating a disorderly house, was the fifth woman arrested in a raid on a "scientific physiotherapy" establishment. She was not arraigned with the others.

Lt. Roy Blick of the metropolitan police force vice squad said there was little swank about the place but that "twenty dollars was the minimum —the bare minimum.' He added that "for $10 spectator privileges could be enjoyed by peering through holes in the doors.

Six men, two of them described by police as "high government officials," were caught in the raid but were released later without charge.

The cases of Miss Beach and the other three arraigned today were continued until August 8 and bond was continued at $500 each.

JACKSON, Miss., July 14.—(AP)—Mississippi's board of trustees of state institutions of higher learning is scheduled to meet in monthly session here Wednesday.

LABOR SECRETARY SETS PRECEDENT

Asks Newsmen What They Think He Can Do To Improve Department

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—As plain as an old shoe, the new secretary of labor—Lewis B. Schwellenbach—sat down in a tan wind-breaker jacket like soldiers wear and humbly set a precedent.

At least newsmen who have covered Washington for 30 years never remember a member of the cabinet doing anything like it before.)

Schwellenbach called an off-the-record conference, sat down with the newsmen whose beat is the labor department, and asked them simply:

What do you think I can do to improve the department?

He's been busy trying to reorganize the department since he took office July 1 when President Truman appointed him. He quit a federal district judgship in the State of Washington to take the job. He had quit the U. S. Senate in 1940 to be a federal judge.

He has to work with the newsmen. They're the men who in the years ahead will praise him, or criticize him for the job he does. Unpretentious, dressed in the windbreaker, wearing horn-rimmed glasses the 50-year-old secretary asked the question.

Frankly he's trying to pick the newsmen's brains. He wanted to find out what they thought could be done to improve the department which Labor Secretary Frances Perkins before him had headed many years under president Roosevelt.

The answers were not very profound. One newsman thought this might be done, another thought something else. There didn't seem to be any general agreement or reorganization or policy.

Perhaps Schwellenbach would have received the same variety of answers if he had asked the same question of any group which, although familiar with the labor department, had not made a detailed study of it.

He seemed very eager to do whatever could be done to get the labor department's story across to the public, to keep the public informed on what was happening and what could be expected.

He listened to the suggestions, didn't argue, made mental notes and kept his own ideas to himself. The first results of the reorganization now under way may be announced in August.

There has been a great deal of criticism of the government because of the many government agencies—more than 25—which in one way or another deal with labor problems.

Long ago in this war organized labor has complained: There's no central agency to which labor can take its problems. John P. Frey, president of the A. F. L.'s metal trades department said 18 months ago:

"Our labor relationship is the very opposite of that existing in Breat Britain where all labor questions must go through the clearing house of the minister of labor.

Here are some examples of the diversity of government controls over labor in one way or another:

The War Labor Board and the treasury department have controlled wages. The War Manpower Commission has controlled job-changing. The Fair Employment Practices Committee has tried to prevent discrimination against workers seeking war jobs on grounds of race, color or creed. The war and navy departments, the maritime commission and the War Shipping Administration have had a hand in wage controls, too, because they have awarded job contracts in which wage rates were a factor. The list is long.

PLAYGROUND NEWS

Decent and well-supervised places for children to play, with accompanying interesting activities, have been provided through the cooperation of the city officials, the Recreation Board and the P.-T. A. organizations. The Center, 1700 South Grand street, has been open every afternoon and night of the week, except Saturday afternoons and Sunday nights for the wholesome pleasure of all people—adults as well as children.

Three playgrounds have been operating every week day mornings from 8 to 11—with capable interested staff members and many loyal volunteers at all grounds. At Georgia Tucker, Mrs. Ruth Baugh and Geneva Eads, at Sherrouse, Mrs. W. S. Vincent with Mrs. Beth Ann Vincent and Mrs. Hunt; at Barkdull Faulk, Mrs. H. O. Jenkins with James McKay and Jo Ann La Monica.

Children are not required to enroll or to come regularly in order to attend the playgrounds. The play centers are open to all children of school age who desire to meet with other boys and girls to play or to work together.

The season is already half over. However all children, regardless of whether they have ever attended the playgrounds so far this summer, are invited to come and share in the good times. This is your privilege which is offered you by all the people who are working to make this possible. Parents are expected to permit their children to come to the playgrounds. We know they will have a good time because those that have been coming continue to come. We want the regular ones and in addition, we are provided to care for all the boys and girls in town if the mothers will only get them up in the mornings and see them off. The playgrounds will continue until August 10.

One specially big event has been successfully accomplished. On July 4 the combined groups of children, many with their parents, enjoyed the holiday together with the help and provision of the playground staff members.

This week another big event has been initiated. Yes, with the cooperation of many good men facilities have been made available so that the boys of Monroe are going to be enabled to play their challenge games on Thursday nights under the lights at Nevill Stadium. There will be no admission charges for any of these games and parents, friends and all interested persons are invited to participate in the evening fun Monroe offers its citizens recreation.

HEIDELBERG WILL STILL SERVE FOOD

BATON ROUGE, La., July 14.—(AP)—Roy L. Heidelberg, owner of three hotels here said today that he would serve the eating public as long as there is food available and that he would not close his restaurants August 19 as members of the Baton Rouge Restaurant Association have voted to do.

Heidelberg said the meeting of the restaurant operators was held while he was away from the city.

"It would be unpatriotic to the extent of hampering the war effort," Heidelberg said, "because it would do an injustice to the citizens of Baton Rouge and to the traveling public coming here on business and other reasons."

In a statement today Heidelberg said he had great sympathy for the restaurant operators because of the great difficulties they are having. "It is my opinion that the OPA made many mistakes," he said, stating that he was in sympathy with the principal of OPA for "without price control we would be in much worse condition than we are now."

The restaurateur said he was a strong believer in a streamlined OPA during the postwar period.

Heidelberg said he had no "criticism to offer the other restaurants of Baton Rouge for acting on their convictions, even though it is my opinion that they have acted unwisely in this instance."

SUGGEST MEETING ON FREE TRADE

Four Republicans Favor Deferring Action On Bretton Woods Pact

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—A general international economic conference to consider "practical steps" to achieve freedom of international trade was suggested today by four Republican senators.

Until one is held, they said, consideration of the Bretton Woods agreements for an international monetary fund and an international bank should be deferred.

The four, Senators Taft, Ohio, Millikin, Republican, Colorado, Butler, Republican, Nebraska, and Thomas, Republican, Idaho, outlined their views in a minority report as members of the Senate banking commitee.

They voted in committee against legislation for United States participation in the $9,100,000,000 international bank and the $8,800,000,000 monetary fund. Already passed by the House, the measure was approved 14-4 by the committee and will come up in the Senate Monday.

Worked out at a conference of representatives of 44 nations at Bretton Woods, N. H., last summer, the agreement calls for United States subscription of $3,175,000,000 to the bank's capital and $2,750,000,000 to the monetary fund.

The declared purposes of the bank are to make or guarantee long-term loans for rehabilitation and development. That of the fund is to stabilize monetary exchange and eliminate competitive exchange depreciation.

The committee majority in a report filed earlier declared the program "will help preserve peace by making possible an expansion of international trade."

But the minority asserted that "the net result of the present bill is to waste our money and accomplish nothing."

"When the world is stabilized, a general stabilization fund may be desirable," they continued. "It could probably be much smaller than the one now proposed and it should, of course, be confined definitely to stabilization operations. We question whether the government should ever guarantee international investment."

In their criticism of the fund, they declared it will "wholly fail" to accomplish the declared objectives and will "amount to nothing more than international loans of $2,750,000,000 for which we shall get nothing in return."

"The fund operates," they continued, "by permitting each member to deposit its paper currency in the fund and take out in exchange the currency of some other country. This, in effect, as admitted by the treasury, is a loan to the nation which makes the deposit, secured by that nation's paper currency.

"Under present world conditions, the most-sought-after currency will be the $2,750,000,000 deposited by the United States. * * * If all the nations choose to draw dollars, the dollars in the fund could be exhausted during the second year."

As for the bank, they called it "a tremendous plan, under the guise of international cooperations, to lend our people's and our government's money abroad."

LABOR SECRETARY SETS PRECEDENT

Asks Newsmen What They Think He Can Do To Improve Department

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—As plain as an old shoe, the new secretary of labor—Lewis B. Schwellenbach—sat down in a tan wind-breaker jacket like soldiers wear and humbly set a precedent.

(At least newsmen who have covered Washington for 30 years never remember a member of the cabinet doing anything like it before.)

Schwellenbach called an off-the-record conference, sat down with the newsmen whose beat is the labor department, and asked them simply:

What do you think I can do to improve the department?

He's been busy trying to reorganize the department since he took office July 1 when President Truman appointed him. He quit a federal district judgship in the State of Washington to take the job. He had quit the U. S. Senate in 1940 to be a federal judge.

He has to work with the newsmen. They're the men who in the years ahead will praise him, or criticize him for the job he does. Unpretentious, dressed in the windbreaker, wearing horn-rimmed glasses the 50-year-old secretary asked the question.

Frankly he's trying to pick the newsmen's brains. He wanted to find out what they thought could be done to improve the department which Labor Secretary Frances Perkins before him had headed many years under president Roosevelt.

The answers were not very profound. One newsman thought this might be done, another thought something else. There didn't seem to be any general agreement or reorganization or policy.

Perhaps Schwellenbach would have received the same variety of answers if he had asked the same question of any group which, although familiar with the labor department, had not made a detailed study of it.

He seemed very eager to do whatever could be done to get the labor department's story across to the public, to keep the public informed on what was happening and what could be expected.

He listened to the suggestions, didn't argue, made mental notes and kept his own ideas to himself. The first results of the reorganization now under way may be announced in August.

There has been a great deal of criticism of the government because of the many government agencies—more than 25—which in one way or another deal with labor problems.

Long ago in this war organized labor has complained: There's no central agency to which labor can take its problems. John P. Frey, president of the A. F. L.'s metal trades department said 18 months ago:

"Our labor relationship is the very opposite of that existing in Breat Britain where all labor questions must go through the clearing house of the minister of labor.

Here are some examples of the diversity of government controls over labor in one way or another:

The War Labor Board and the treasury department have controlled wages. The War Manpower Commission has controlled job-changing. The Fair Employment Practices Committee has tried to prevent discrimination against workers seeking war jobs on grounds of race, color or creed. The war and navy departments, the maritime commission and the War Shipping Administration have had a hand in wage controls, too, because they have awarded job contracts in which wage rates were a factor. The list is long.

PLAYGROUND NEWS

Decent and well-supervised places for children to play, with accompanying interesting activities, have been provided through the cooperation of the city officials, the Recreation Board and the P.-T. A. organizations. The Center, 1700 South Grand street, has been open every afternoon and night of the week, except Saturday afternoons and Sunday nights for the wholesome pleasure of all people—adults as well as children.

Three playgrounds have been operating every week day mornings from 8 to 11,—with capable interested staff members and many loyal volunteers at all grounds. At Georgia Tucker, Mrs. Ruth Baugh and Geneva Eads; at Sherrouse, Mrs. W. S. Vincent with Mrs. Beth Ann Vincent and Mrs. Hunt; at Barkdull Faulk, Mrs. H. O. Jenkins with James McKay and Jo Ann La Monica.

Children are not required to enroll or to come regularly in order to attend the playgrounds. The play centers are open to all children of school age who desire to meet with other boys and girls to play or to work together.

The season is already half over. However all children, regardless of whether they have ever attended the playgrounds so far this summer as invited to come and share in the good times. This is your privilege which is offered you by all the people who are working to make this possible. Parents are expected to permit their children to come to the playgrounds. We know they will have a good time because those that have been coming continue to come. We want the regular ones and in addition, we are provided to care for all the boys and girls in town—if the mothers will only get them up in the mornings and see them off. The playgrounds will continue until August 10.

One specially big event has been successfully accomplished. On July 4 the combined groups of children, many with their parents, enjoyed the holiday together with the help and provision of the playground staff members.

This week another big event has been initiated. Yes, with the cooperation of many good men, facilities have been made available so that the boys of Monroe are going to be enabled to play their challenge games on Thursday nights under arc lights at Nevill Stadium. There will be no admission charges for any of these games and parents, friends and all interested persons are inivted to participate in the evening fun. Monroe offers its citizens recreation.

HEIDELBERG WILL STILL SERVE FOOD

BATON ROUGE, La., July 14.—(AP)—Roy L. Heidelberg, owner of three hotels here, said today that he would serve the eating public as long as there is food available and that he would not close his restaurants August 10 as members of the Baton Rouge Restaurant Association have voted to do.

Heidelberg said the meeting of the restaurant operators was held while he was away from the city.

"It would be unpatriotic to the extent of hampering the war effort," Heidelberg said, "because it would do an injustice to the citizens of Baton Rouge and to the traveling public coming here on business and other reasons."

In a statement today Heidelberg said he had great sympathy for the restaurant operators because of the great difficulties they are having. "It is my opinion that the OPA made many mistakes," he said, stating that he was in sympathy with the principal of OPA for "without price control we would be in much worse condition than we are now."

The restauranteur said he was a strong believer in a streamlined OPA during the postwar period.

Heidelberg said he had no "criticism to offer the other restaurants of Baton Rouge for acting on their convictions, even though it is my opinion that they have acted unwisely in this instance."

SUGGEST MEETING ON FREE TRADE

Four Republicans Favor Deferring Action On Bretton Woods Pact

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—A general international economic conference to consider "practical steps" to achieve freedom of international trade was suggested today by four Republican senators.

Until one is held, they said, consideration of the Bretton Woods agreements for an international monetary fund and an international bank should be deferred.

The four, Senators Taft, Ohio, Millikin, Republican, Colorado, Butler, Republican, Nebraska, and Thomas, Republican, Idaho, outlined their views in a minority report as members of the Senate banking commitee.

They voted in committee against legislation for United States participation in the $9,100,000,000 international bank and the $8,800,000,000 monetary fund. Already passed by the House, the measure was approved 14-4 by the committee and will come up in the Senate Monday.

Worked out at a conference or representatives of 44 nations at Bretton Woods, N. H., last summer, the agreement calls for United States subscription of $3,175,000,000 to the bank's capital and $2,750,000,000 to the monetary fund.

The declared purposes of the bank are to make or guarantee long-term loans for rehabilitation and development. That of the fund is to stabilize monetary exchange and eliminate competitive exchange depreciation.

The committee majority in a report filed earlier declared the program "will help preserve peace by making possible an expansion of international trade."

But the minority asserted that "the net result of the present bill is to waste our money and accomplish nothing."

"When the world is stabilized, a general stabilization fund may be desirable," they continued. "It could probably be much smaller than the one now proposed and it should, of course, be confined definitely to stabilization operations. We question whether the government should ever guarantee international investment."

In their criticism of the fund, they declared it will "wholly fail" to accomplish the declared objectives and will "amount to nothing more than international loans of $2,750,000,000 for which we shall get nothing in return."

"The fund perates," they continued, "by permitting each member to deposit its paper currency in the fund and take out in exchange the currency of some other country. This, in effect, as admitted by the treasury, is a loan to the nation which makes the deposit, securied by that nation's paper currency.

"Under present world conditions, the most-sought-after currency will be the $2,750,000,000 deposited by the United States. * * * If all the nations choose to draw dollars, the dollars in the fund could be exhausted during the second year."

As for the bank, they called it "a tremendous plan, under the guise of international cooperations, to lend our people's and our government's money abroad."

TAX COLLECTIONS SHOW BIG GAIN

Reach Figure Even Higher Than Those On Which Surplus Predicted

BATON ROUGE, July 14.—(AP)—Revenue Collector Roland Cocreham reported today to Gov. Jimmie Davis that state tax collections increased more than $4,850,000 in the fiscal year ended June 30 to total just under $87,000,000, even higher than estimates on which the governor recently predicted a surplus of $18,000,000 in the state general fund.

State Finance Director James Reiley estimated informally that the actual surplus might run "slightly higher" than the governor's estimate, but said an accurate figure could not be determined for another 60 or more days as reports on refunds of individual departments and other awaited data might make a difference of half-million or more.

Actual collections in the fiscal period just ended totaled $86,935,986, compared with $82,078,642 for the previous period, largely due to gains of more than 1,000,000 each in taxes on alcoholic beverage, income, sales and severance and despite sizable drops in taxes on tobacco, soft drinks and public utilities.

Major increases included: Alcoholic beverage up $1,230,465 to total $5,534,016 for the fiscal year; beer up $101,156 to $1,567,843, corporation franchise up $444,947 to $3,028,051; gas gathering up $79,438 to $2,122,519; gasoline up $754,251 to $17,954,372; income up $1,237,521 to $11,213,417; retail sales tax (current) up $761,408 to $10,327,906, retail sales tax (plus delinquent collections) up $1,025,859 to $10,592,357, lubricating oil up $73,452 to $1,023,688; occupational license up $134,705 to $1,817,320, power up $124,851 to $1,210,981, severance up $1,017,419 to $15,998,746, vehicle license up $297,144 to $3,492,354.

Taxes showing decreases from the previous year included: soft drink off $261,284 to $1,193,499, tobacco off $646,157 to $7,311,045, public utilities off $130,985 to $931,807. Another "loss" was of $584,842 to $224,598 in the discontinued tax on refining of petroleum products, in full effect all the previous fiscal period to total $809,440.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 14.—(AP)—Russell Hodder of Phoenix, Ariz., couldn't find a hotel room.

Guess Who!

DENVER, July 14.—(AP)—Lt. Pete H. Alexander, 26, of the U. S. merchant marine, was quietly drinking in a Denver bar when he saw a familiar-looking woman sitting with an army captain.

He stared at her and she at him. He walked over and introduced himself, saying he could swear he had met her before.

"That's very interesting," she said. "I'm Mrs. Dan Sharp, your sister, from Livingston, Mont. This is my husband, Captain Sharp."

They hadn't seen each other for nine years.

TWO SHIPS DOWN 38 SUICIDE PLANES

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—The destroyers Hugh W. Hadley and Evans knocked down 38 Japanese suicide planes in an hour and 45-minute battle off Okinawa on May 11, the navy disclosed tonight.

The bag, the navy said, was the largest ever reported for ships of their size during a single action.

Altogether, 88 enemy planes were destroyed in the EPIC struggle, with marine Corsair pilots shooting down an additional 50 from the attacking force of more than 150.

The 2,050-ton Evans, smaller of the team, got 15 planes and was credited with four assists in 73 minutes before its guns were silenced.

The 2,200-ton Hadley established an all-time record for destroyers by bringing down 23 Japanese planes in 105 minutes. In the last 30 minutes the Hadley protected the crippled Evans although the Hadley itself was damaged and at one time seemed about to capsize.

The Nips struck in groups of four to six at a time. The battle reached such ferocity at one time that the Evans was bringing down suicide planes diving on the Hadley, as well as protecting herself, while the Hadley was gunning for aircraft at a greater distance.

Four suicide planes crashed on the Evans' decks and hull and the Hadley took hits that flooded both engine rooms and one fire room and knocked out its main battery.

PILLAGED WEALTH OF NAZIS SEIZED

Taken From Coffers Of Conquered Nations And Teeth Of Victims

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 14.—(AP)—The pillaged wealth of Nazi occupied Europe, taken from the teeth of murdered Jews and the coffers of seized governments alike, was piled ceiling high today in the Reichsmark Bank of Frankfurt.

In addition to gold and silver there were hogsheads of pearls, rubies and sapphires. Wooden cases held gold and silver fillings from the teeth concentration camp victims.

Currency experts from the United States treasury and the Bank of England were identifying and making an inventory of the Nazi loot.

"An accurate estimate of the total value can never be made," said Col. Bernard Bernstein, director of the finance division of the U. S. group control council.

He said the collection included 53 separate deposits hidden by the Nazis and unearthed by U. S. troops during the final days of the war. These included the gold bullion discovered by the U. S. Third army in the Merkers salt mines and special hidden hoards of Heinrich Himmler's SS organization which were buried under chicken coops on a German farm.

In one cache thousands of wedding rings stripped from the fingers of women victims of the Nazis in Germany, Greece, Poland and other occupied countries were strung on ropes like country sausages. "We have found barrels of silver and gold wrist watches, cigarette cases, wedding rings, bracelets and jewelry of every description," Bernstein added. "This was taken from Nazi concentration camp victims.

The bullion was stacked like cordwood and one large room held nothing but securities from almost every country in the world. The loot includes millions of Russian rubles and $34,000,000 in U. S. gold coins.

Leland Howard, assistant director of the bureau of the mint in Washington, estimated that it would take eight weeks to identify the bullion. Working with him were John D. Jameson of the Denver mint, Theodore Schiercke, assistant superintendent of melting in the New York assay office, and their British counterparts from the Bank of England.

FLOOD LOSS MORE THAN $15,000,000

SHREVEPORT, La., July 14.—(AP)—Estimated total losses and damage caused by April floods is more than $15,000,000, the Red River Valley Improvement Association revealed today.

A survey compiling estimates of agricultural losses and county road, bridge and railroad damages in Texas and Arkansas has been completed by the association. It will be submitted to the U. S. army engineer corps and Congress.

Purpose of the survey, the association announced, is to encourage flood control measures to prevent annual losses in Red river basin.

Agricultural losses in Texas and Arkansas amounted to $2,833,190, the survey shows. Damage to roads, including bridges, was $55,475, and incomplete railroad losses were $642,078.

Added to losses compiled in a survey conducted by Louisiana department of public works, these figures bring the estimated damage to industry, agriculture and public and private property to $10,488,083.

Losses from Oklahoma and state highway losses of Texas and Arkansas not listed indicate total losses and damages from the floods last spring will be more than 15 million dollars, the association announced.

Our word "sincere" is derived from two Latin words meaning "without wax."

WOMEN FIGHT TO REACH SOAP SALE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 14.—(AP)—A scrambling, shoving crowd of women, estimated at more than 1,000, stormed a downtown drug store today in response to an advertised soap sale.

Four policemen were rushed to the scene to try to maintain order. Two large plate glass windows were broken and the store's interior was turned into chaos by the flood of customers.

The management said 47 cases of soap flakes and a large stock of toilet soap lasted about two hours. The shortage of soap has been acute here in recent weeks.

WAR IS DECLARED BY ITALY ON JAPAN

ROME, July 14.—(AP)—The foreign ministry announced today that Italy had declared war on her former Axis partner, Japan, effective tomorrow.

The action presumably had the approval of the Allies as Premier Ferruccio Parri previously had announced such approval would be necessary under the armistice terms.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani hailed Italy's declaration of war against Japan today as a move to complete a "series of friendly acts" to restore traditional friendship between Italy and the United States.

The ambassador told a news conference at the Italian embassy that the Italian fleet, still a formidable fighting force, will be placed immediately at the disposal of the Allies, and probably will be routed through the Suez Canal for service in the Pacific.

He added that Italy expects to recruit a corps of volunteer ground troops for service against Japan and said it is possible air force units might also participate.

Tarchiani pointed out that Italian government now had become a "co-belligerent" of the Allies in two theaters of war and asserted:

"We hope soon to become Allies."

CZECHS WANT TO REMOVE GERMANS

Ready To Start Ousting Unsirables When Big Three Approval Given

PRAGUE, July 14.—(AP)—President Eduard Benes said today that Czechoslovakia could begin removing its unreliable German and Hungarian residents within a few weeks if the Big Three approve at Potsdam.

Nothing less than the transfer of two to two and one-half million Germans and about 400,000 Hungarians can assure the nation a reasonably secure future, Benes said in an exclusive interview.

Czechslovakia, he added, is determined never again to try unworkable compromises with German minorities as it did in 1939, when the Germans showed their allegiance lay across the border.

"But the whole project of cleansing Czechoslovakia in this radical manner can be undertaken only with wholehearted Big Three approval and cooperation," the Czechoslovak president said.

"We have presented our plans officially and hope ardently for favorable early action by the Big Three powers."

Russia from the start was sympathetic toward the transfer plan. Approval of the western powers was regarded as equally necessary because their occupation forces within Germany would be obliged to make room for Germans moved in great masses back to the Reich.

Benes said there were three essential points to the plan, which amounts to a proposal for a major population shift in central Europe. They are, first, that it be accomplished with Big Three understanding and approval; second, that it be well-organized and carried out with the least possible friction; third, that the whole program be conducted as humanely as possible.

President Benes said he wanted no repetition of the wartime refugee spectacle, with suffering thousands cluttering the highways.

"We could start within a few weeks," Benes said, "but of course, preparations within Germany such as finding room and providing food might take longer. It's been estimated the whole enterprise might take a year and a half."

Among Czechoslovaks, from the president down, there is an overwhelming conviction this form of settlement of the minority question is Czechoslovakia's only real promise of lasting internal tranquility. There is the utmost determination the program must be carried out and confidence that Big Three approval will be obtained.

Not all persons of German origin would be obliged to leave Czechoslovakia. Benes estimated [illegible] to [illegible] Germans had demonstrated their loyalty to Czechoslovakia. They may stay.

M'CAIN THINKS JAPS NEED TOUGHER WOMEN

ABOARD ADMIRAL M'CAIN'S FLAGSHIP OFF JAPAN, July 7.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Vice-Adm. John S. McCain has a theory about Nipponese men—that they need tougher women.

He illustrated his point:

"Take the American man. Sometimes he feels that he is quite an important character and starts to brag to his wife. What happens? Why she just says: 'Get into the kitchen and help with the dishes.' That's the kind of thing that keeps our feet on the ground."

The Japanese, he continued, have subjected their women until they are only domestic menials. No criticism is offered the male, hence when he suffers reverses they come as a shock to a temperament which has attuned itself to its own importance.

CONGRESSMEN START ON SUMMER RECESS

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Work-weary congressmen scattered four ways from Washington tonight for the longest House recess of the war.

Although the vacation will not begin officially until the latter part of next week many members took a running start and began checking out of the Capitol last night.

Barring emergencies the House will be in adjournment until October 1, the longest period for either branch of Congress since the war began.

There are a few legislative tag ends left over but House leaders admitted frankly that they wouldn't be able to get a quorum together for any floor business. The House end of the capitol and the corridors of the House office building were virtually deserted today.

The House cleaned up its major business yesterday when Congress finally passed a long-disputed war agencies appropriation. Many members left as soon as that vote was taken.

The chamber will hold technical sessions next week, principally to complete action of the Bretton Woods international agreement which will be called up in the Senate Monday. All that is needed is House agreement to any Senate amendment and leaders said they would not be controversial.

TAX COLLECTIONS SHOW BIG GAIN

Reach Figure Even Higher Than Those On Which Surplus Predicted

BATON ROUGE, July 14.—(AP)—Revenue Collector Roland Cocreham reported today to Gov. Jimmie Davis that state tax collections increased more than $4,850,000 in the fiscal year ended June 30 to total just under $87,000,000, even higher than estimates on which the governor recently predicted a surplus of $18,000,000 in the state general fund.

State Finance Director James Reiley estimated informally that the actual surplus might run "slightly higher" than the governor's estimate, but said an accurate figure could not be determined for another 60 or more days as reports on refunds of individual departments and other awaited data might make a difference of half-million or more.

Actual collections in the fiscal period just ended totaled $86,935,986, compared with $82,078,642 for the previous period, largely due to gains of more than 1,000,000 each in taxes on alcoholic beverage, income, sales and severance and despite sizable drops in taxes on tobacco, soft drinks and public utilities.

Major increases included: Alcoholic beverage up $1,230,465 to total $5,534,016 for the fiscal year; beer up $101,156 to $1,567,843, corporation franchise up $444,947 to $3,028,051; gas gathering up $79,438 to $2,122,519; gasoline up $754,251 to $17,954,372; income up $1,237,521 to $11,213,417; retail sales tax (current) up $761,408 to $10,327,906, retail sales tax (plus delinquent collections) up $1,025,859 to $10,592,357, lubricating oil up $78,452 to $1,023,688; occupational license up $134,708 to $1,817,320, power up $124,851 to $1,210,981, severance up $1,017,419 to $15,998,746, vehicle license up $297,144 to $3,492,354.

Taxes showing decreases from the previous year included: soft drink off $261,284 to $1,193,499, tobacco off $646,157 to $7,311,045, public utilities off $130,985 to $931,807. Another "loss" was of $584,842 to $224,598 in the discontinued tax on refining of petroleum products, in full effect all the previous fiscal period to total $809,440.

Flashes Of Life

Thoughtful

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 14.—(AP)—Russell Hodder of Phoenix, Ariz., couldn't find a hotel room.

So, police said, he slipped into pajamas, packed his clothes in his suitcase and slept on a secluded divan in the hotel mezzanine.

Guess Who!

DENVER, July 14.—(AP)—Lt. Pete H. Alexander, 26, of the U. S. merchant marine, was quietly drinking in a Denver bar when he saw a familiar-looking woman sitting with an army captain.

He stared at her and she at him. He walked over and introduced himself, saying he could swear he had met her before.

"That's very interesting," she said. "I'm Mrs. Dan Sharp, your sister, from Livingston, Mont. This is my husband, Captain Sharp."

Brr

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., July 14.—(AP)—The other day, my electric refrigerator kept running and running but it wouldn't freeze," J. W. McIntosh said:

"So I went to the ice plant and got a 25-pound cake of ice and put it under the thing. It began freezing ice in the trays at once."

Long Ago

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., July 14.—(AP)—Ray Parks' bank informed him a sight draft for $9.50 awaited him. He dropped in to collect and found it had been issued in 1926.

Escape

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., July 14.—(AP)—Marine Pfc. Ivor L. Clark, in the Okinawa campaign, had a Jap bullet puncture his helmet, another smash a breast-pocket pencil, and a third tear his dungaree jacket. The equipment he has at home as relics.

He suffered a slight head wound.

Fresh!

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., July 14.—(AP)—A woman telephoned police that a prowler was surveying her house with considerable atention. A detail responded to the call.

It was the landlord sizing up the house for a paint job.

TWO SHIPS DOWN 38 SUICIDE PLANES

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—The destroyers Hugh W. Hadley and Evans knocked down 38 Japanese suicide planes in an hour and 45-minute battle off Okinawa on May 11, the navy disclosed tonight.

The bag, the navy said, was the largest ever reported for ships of their size during a single action.

Altogether, 88 enemy planes were destroyed in the EPIC struggle, with marine Corsair pilots shooting down an additional 50 from the attacking force of more than 150.

The 2,050-ton Evans, smaller of the team, got 15 planes and was credited with four assists in 73 minutes before its guns were silenced.

The 2,200-ton Hadley established an all-time record for destroyers by bringing down 23 Japanese planes in 105 minutes. In the last 30 minutes the Hadley protected the crippled Evans although the Hadley itself was damaged and at one time seemed about to capsize.

The Nips struck in groups of four to six at a time. The battle reached such ferocity at one time that the Evans was bringing down suicide planes diving on the Hadley, as well as protecting herself, while the Hadley was gunning for aircraft at a greater distance.

Four suicide planes crashed on the Evans' decks and hull and the Hadley took hits that flooded both engine rooms and one fire room and knocked out its main battery.

PILLAGED WEALTH OF NAZIS SEIZED

Taken From Coffers Of Conquered Nations And Teeth Of Victims

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 14.—(AP)—The pillaged wealth of Nazi occupied Europe, taken from the teeth of murdered Jews and the coffers of seized governments alike, was piled ceiling high today in the Reichsmark Bank of Frankfurt.

In addition to gold and silver there were hogsheads of pearls, rubies and sapphires. Wooden cases held gold and silver fillings from the teeth concentration camp victims.

Currency experts from the United States treasury and the Bank of England were identifying and making an inventory of the Nazi loot.

"An accurate estimate of the total value can never be made," said Col. Bernard Bernstein, director of the finance division of the U. S. group control council.

He said the collection included 53 separate deposits hidden by the Nazis and unearthed by U. S. troops during the final days of the war. These included the gold bullion discovered by the U. S. Third army in the Merkers salt mines and special hidden hoards of Heinrich Himmler's SS organization which were buried under chicken coops on a German farm.

In one cache thousands of wedding rings stripped from the fingers of women victims of the Nazis in Germany, Greece, Poland and other occupied countries were strung on ropes like country sausages. "We have found barrels of silver and gold wrist watches, cigarette cases, wedding rings, bracelets and jewelry of every description," Bernstein added. "This was taken from Nazi concentration camp victims.

The bullion was stacked like cordwood and one large room held nothing but securities from almost every country in the world. The loot includes millions of Russian rubles and $34,000,000 in U. S. gold coins.

Leland Howard, assistant director of the bureau of the mint in Washington, estimated that it would take eight weeks to identify the bullion. Working with him were John D Jamieson of the Denver mint, Theodore Schiercke assistant superintendent of melting in the New York assay office, and their British counterparts from the Bank of England.

FLOOD LOSS MORE THAN $15,000,000

SHREVEPORT, La., July 14.—(AP)—Estimated total losses and damage caused by April floods is more than $15,000,000, the Red River Valley Improvement Association revealed today.

A survey compiling estimates of agricultural losses and county road, bridge and railroad damages in Texas and Arkansas has been completed by the association. It will be submitted to the U. S. army engineer corps and Congress.

Purpose of the survey, the association announced, is to encourage flood control measures to prevent annual losses in Red river basin.

Agricultural losses in Texas and Arkansas amounted to $2,833,190, the survey shows. Damage to roads, including bridges, was $55,475, and incomplete railroad losses were $642,078.

Added to losses compiled in a survey conducted by Louisiana department of public works, these figures bring the estimated damage to industry, agriculture and public and private property to $10,488,083.

Losses from Oklahoma and state highway losses of Texas and Arkansas not listed indicate total losses and damages from the floods last spring will be more than 15 million dollars, the association announced.

WOMEN FIGHT TO REACH SOAP SALE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 14.—(AP)—A scrambling, shoving crowd of women, estimated at more than 1,000, stormed a downtown drug store today in response to an advertised soap sale.

Four policemen were rushed to the scene to try to maintain order. Two large plate glass windows were broken and the store's interior was turned into chaos by the flood of customers.

The management said 47 cases of soap flakes and a large stock of toilet soap lasted about two hours. The shortage of soap has been acute here in recent weeks.

WAR IS DECLARED BY ITALY ON JAPAN

ROME, July 14.—(AP)—The foreign ministry announced today that Italy had declared war on her former Axis partner, Japan, effective tomorrow.

The action presumably had the approval of the Allies as Premier Ferruccio Parri previously had announced such approval would be necessary under the armistice terms.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Italian Ambassador Alberto Targhiani hailed Italy's declaration of war against Japan today as a move to complete a "series of friendly acts" to restore traditional friendship between Italy and the United States.

The ambassador told a news conference at the Italy embassy that the Italian fleet, still a formidable fighting force, will be placed immediately at the disposal of the Allies, and probably will be routed through the Suez Canal for service in the Pacific.

He added that Italy expects to recruit a corps of volunteer ground troops for service against Japan and said it is possible air force units might also participate.

Tarchiana pointed out that Italian government now had become a "cobelligerent" of the Allies in two theaters of war and asserted:

Fink Country Home Scene Of Wedding

"Hideaway" the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fink on Bayou DeSiard was the scene of an impressive wedding ceremony when Miss Betty Jean DeBord, daughter of Mrs. Fink, became the bride of Lt. R. E. Frankawicz of Detroit, Michigan.

The ceremony, July 7, was performed by Chaplain Dollar of Selman Field before an improvised altar in the spacious living room, where myriad white tapers gleamed in wrought iron floor candelabra and white gladioli banked the mantel.

White and pale pink gladioli overflowed from classic shaped urns placed in the background of the living room and dining room.

The bride's attendant, Mrs. Claudia More, wore a chartereuse crepe model with tight fitting basque, short cap sleeves and long full skirt. She wore a shoulder length veil of chartreuse illusion caught to the hair with a spray of flowers. She carried a Colonial bouquet of pastel shaded flowers tied with long lengths of pastel colored satin ribbons.

A shower bouquet of tube roses and orchids was carried. For something old the bride wore a handsome pendant of diamonds and pearls.

An informal reception was held following the ceremony. The bride's mother, wearing a semi-formal model of black and white embroidered in crystal beads and a corsage of orchids, was assisted by Mr. Fink in extending courtesies.

The bride's table in the dining room was serviced in silver and crystal with the beautifully embossed three-tiered wedding cake forming the central decor. Plaques of white gladioli were placed at the four corners of the table and at either end white tapers burned in handsome Colonial crystal candelabra.

Trays of hors d'oeuvres were passed with the champagne and from a spacious buffet a variety of confections were served.

The bride cut her wedding cake before changing her wedding gown for a smart black and chatreuse traveling ensemble.

Wedding In Knoxville Is Of Paramount Social Interest To Friends In This City

Myriad cathedral tapers in tall floor candelabra gleamed in the Church Street Methodist Church of Knoxville, Tenn., on July 8 when Miss Emale Gattis, daughter of Mrs. Annie Mae Gattis, formerly of Monroe and now of Knoxville, became the bride of Mr. John Lee Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Horton of Winnfield.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Dr. J. Irving McDonough at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. While the guests were being seated, Miss Bess Platt, organist, rendered a pre-nuptial concert including some of the bride's favorite selections, "Always" and "Dream Girl of Delta Zeta," song of the sorority to which the bride belongs. She accompanied the soloist, Miss Delores Allen, who sang in beautiful voice, "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "O, Perfect Love."

The altar was banked with greenery, and seven-branched candelabra holding burning cathedral tapers were placed on either side. The large stained glass window in the front of the church was flanked by hanging baskets of woodwardia fern and palmetta. Similar baskets, which also were suspended from the vaulted cathedrale [illegible] created an effect of loveliness. Pews were marked by tall candles and candelabra were interspersed on either side.

Miss Obetah Massie of Stuttgart, Ark., who was the bride's roommate at Louisiana State University, served as her maid of honor. She wore a dress of pale blue net with fitted bodice, short puffed sleeves and sweetheart neckline. [illegible]

Confidentially

Confronted with the mid-summer social lull there is now time to discuss many things including various organizations dependent upon the newspapers to help build up public opinion as to its worth. It's like biting the hands that feeds you to remark about the "stupidities" and misdemeanors of "the press." There are those who make uncomplimentary remarks about their newspapers one day and then come begging for publicity and even favors the next.

If yours is one of the organizations dependent upon the newspaper to help build up your programs don't look smug or giggle when some disgruntled person who hasn't had all the publicity asked for, makes scathing remarks about newspaper reporters. To even countenance such remarks puts you in that class of the unappreciative to which the speaker belongs.

Certainly no one class or group in this troubled world can afford to criticize the work of another and especially when they are dependent on that person to "build them up." We are also too closely interrelated. No one group can afford to let slanting and mild abuse go unchallenged when it is without truth or courtesy. There always has been and always will be the type of person who bids for popular attention by tearing down the work that some one has built up. People listen to them when they are scandalizing someone . . . otherwise they would never be seen or heard. When this type of person cites some unfortunate instance he has had with the newspaper you can rest assured he didn't get all the publicity he wanted.

A wrecker with a few reptilion remarks can tear down in a few moments what has taken a conscientious worker years to build up.

Miss Gattis Is Bride Of July

Wedding In Knoxville Is Of Paramount Social Interest To Friends In This City

Myriad cathedral tapers in tall floor candelabra gleamed in the Church Street Methodist Church of Knoxville, Tenn., on July 8 when Miss Emale Gattis, daughter of Mrs. Annie Mae Gattis, formerly of Monroe and now of Knoxville, became the bride of Mr. John Lee Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Horton of Winnfield.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Dr. J. Irving McDonough at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. While the guests were being seated, Miss Bess Platt, organist, rendered a pre-nuptial concert including some of the bride's favorite selections, "Always" and "Dream Girl of Delta Zeta," song of the sorority to which the bride belongs. She accompanied the soloist, Miss Delores Allen, who sang in beautiful voice, "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "O, Perfect Love."

The altar was banked with greenery, and seven-branched candelabra holding burning cathedral tapers were placed on either side. The large stained glass window in the front of the church was flanked by hanging baskets of woodwardia fern and palmetta. Similar baskets which also were suspended from the vaulted cathedralesque ceiling, created an effect of loveliness. Pews were marked by tall candles and candelabra were interspersed on either side.

Miss Oberah Massie of Stuttgart, Ark., who was the bride's roommate at Louisiana State University, served as her maid of honor. She wore a dress of pale blue net with fitted bodice, short puffed sleeves and sweetheart neckline. The gathered skirt was trimmed with two ruffles which ran down the front. She wore a Juliet cap with scalloped net ruffle and blue velvet streamers and carried an arm bouquet of garden flowers shading from Dresden to pink.

The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. J. W. Keene of Monroe.

Mr. Paul Jacob of Oak Ridge served the groom as best man. The ushers were: Charles McVey, Lynn McCabe and Richard Hoff, all of Oak Ridge, and Ernest Briscoe of Knoxville.

The bride wore a lovely white marquisette gown over satin. It was fashioned with a heart-shaped neckline, with puffs of lace at the shoulders and long sleeves which ended in a point over the wrist. The skirt, very full, with insets of rose point lace, ended in a long billowy train that was edged with a band of imported lace. Her fingertip-length veil of illusion fell from a Juliet cap. She wore a strand of handsome pearls, a gift of the bridegroom, and carried a cascade bouquet of varied white blossoms.

Following the ceremony the bride's mother entertained members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a reception in the Blue room of the Andrew Johnson Hotel. Mrs. Gattis wore a light blue sheer with white embroidered trimming, white accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Horton, parents of the groom, were unable to attend but they were represented by a friend of the family, Mrs. Orin Lee of Sevierville, Tenn., who wore a black dress with aqua accessories and a corsage of orchids.

Among the guests from Monroe were Mrs. J. W. Keene, the bride's cousin, who chose a black sheer with white accessories and a corsage of carnations, and Mrs. W. D. Hudspeth, an aunt, who was wearing black sheer with delicate pink cuffs and bow. Her hat was black with deep pink trim and her corsage was of orchids. Mrs. W. T. Gattis, the bride's sister-in-law from Lake Charles wore a navy blue model with white accessories and corsage of white carnations. Her husband, Lieutenant Gattis of the United States Army Air Corps, was unable to attend the wedding because of military duties. Other out-of-town guests included: Mrs. P. C. Dixon, Sevierville; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cartwright, Bristol, Tenn.; Miss Mary Davis, Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Sarah Grace Reynolds, Miss Marie Copeland, Einchester, Tenn.

Immediately after the reception the couple left for a honeymoon in the Smoky Mountains and upon their return will make their home at 103 Andover Place, Oak Ridge, Tenn. For traveling the bride wore a yellow gabardine suit with white lace blouse, white accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride, who was employed by the Tennessee Valley Authority in Knoxville prior to her marriage, attended Neville High School, then entered Northeast Junior College where she was co-editor of the Pow Wow, college newspaper, a member of the Purple Jackets and Phi Theta Kappa, national junior college honor society. After graduating as an honor student, she entered Louisiana State University from which she received the bachelor's degree. She held membership in Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society, Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honor society, and Delta Zeta sorority. She was chosen by the Panhellenic council during her junior year at the University as the most outstanding woman transfer student.

Mr. Horton attended Winnfield High School. He graduated from L. S. U. in electrical engineering and was active in Scabbard and Blade. He presently is employed by Tennessee Eastman Corporation, Oak Ridge. He previously was associated with General Electric, Schenectady, N. Y.

Confidentially

Confronted with the mid-summer social lull there is now time to discuss many things including various organizations dependent upon the newspapers to help build up public opinion as to its worth. It's like biting the hands that feeds you to remark about the "stupidities" and misdemeanors of "the press." There are those who make uncomplimentary remarks about their newspapers one day and then come begging for publicity and even favors the next.

If yours is one of the organizations dependent upon the newspaper to help build up your programs don't look smug or giggle when some disgruntled person who hasn't had all the publicity asked for, makes scathing remarks about newspaper reporters. To even countenance such remarks puts you in that class of the unappreciative to which the speaker belongs.

Certainly no one class or group in this troubled world can afford to criticize the work of another and especially when they are dependent on that person to "build them up." We are also too closely interrelated. No one group can afford to let slanting and mild abuse go unchallenged when it is without truth or courtesy. There always has been and always will be the type of person who bids for popular attention by tearing down the work that some one has built up. People listen to them when they are scandalizing someone . . . otherwise they would never be seen or heard. When this type of person cites some unfortunate instance he has had with the newspaper you can rest assured he didn't get all the publicity he wanted.

A wrecker with a few reptilion remarks can tear down in a few moments what has taken a conscientious worker years to build up.

Mrs. Ernest Gibson Gives Book Review

Members Delta Rho Delta Enjoy Review Popular Novel At Their Regular Meeting

Mrs. E. C. Gibson, honorary member of Delta Rho Delta, presented a book review "What Became of Anna Bolton" by Louis Bromfield last week when members and guests of the sorority met in the Assembly Room, Frances Hotel, Monday night. Mrs. Gibson was introduced by Mrs. J. Howard Carroll, and reviewing her book, said in part:

"Annie Scanlon was brought up in Lewisburg, Ohio, where she lived on the wrong side of the tracks until she was grown. There were two boys in her class who were attracted to her because of her brilliant mind and her physical strength. One of these is Dave Sorrel whose people belonged and who tells her story as he finds her in European capitols before the outbreak of war. The other man was Tom Harrigan who she married but whose family refused to recognize her because she lived in the Flats and they had risen from "Shanty Irish to lace curtain Irish." Their ruse to get Tom home brought about his death and later the death of their child. In her resentment she resolved to "show Lewisburg."

After the death of Tom Harrigan, she married an old man whom she never professed to love but whom she pitied and made happy in return for his millions she fell heir to after his death.

"Our first view of Anna in London came when England was passing through critical times—it was pre-war Europe with Rasputin, Czariana, Mussolini, Ciano, King Carol, Prince of Wales abdication for the "woman I love," Kreuger, Hitler, Goering and many others too numerous to name."

"It was as Anna Bolton that we see her in the magnificent setting of a reception at Haddon Field House to which Ruby Hillyer was taking her dinner guests. Here Anna is introduced to Dave Sorrell but refuses any recognition of him. From London, Anna Bolton traveled all over Europe with her secretary, Miss Godwin, to Vienna, Moscow, Stockholm, Berlin, Rome, Paris, Monte Carlo, making friends with all classes of wealth and power, seeking happiness not to be found when the purpose is selfish. In the gambling houses she seemed never losing, always piling up more millions."

"She became very good friends with Col. Van Kleist, and when the Germans took France it was through this man that she obtained permit to bring her money into France and help the stricken French people. Jean Pierre Lambert, who she met during the fall of Paris, had left his tiny baby with Anna, who loved both the father and the baby. To her Lamber was Tom Harrington, only bigger and better in every respect. And then one night Jean Pierre Lambert came for his son and for Anna. She arranged to leave her charity work which she had been doing in France to responsible people, made up more money for the stricken people by selling her furs and jewels to the Germans, and then left to become Mrs. Jean Pierre Lambert."

"Whenever any of the London crowd ran into each other they would always ask: "What ever became of Anna Bolton?" and always the answer was: "I hear she is a collaborationist, or she's living in Vichy, or, I hear she is dead. "But it was Dave Sorrel who discovered her in Algiers and after hearing her story learned that through the years of knocks, and disappointments, of wealth and glamour, of service and toil for others, Anna Bolton had grown a soul; and as Anna Lamber had been reborn to a full, true womanhood."

After the meeting Mrs. Gibson invited the members and guests to her apartment where delicious refreshments were served to the following: Mrs. J. Howard Carroll, Mrs. Delmas Jackson, Mrs. L. M. Webb, Mrs. D. W. Munnerlyn, Mrs. Aline Wigginton, Mrs. Juanita B. Owens, Mrs. Duo McGee, Mrs. Gladys Watkins, Mrs. D. C. Metcalf, Mrs. Margaret Bernard, Mrs. A. P. Colvin, Miss Freda Welch, Miss Ruby McLaughlin, Miss Myrtle Lee Newcomer, Miss Freda Mickel, Miss Lela Fields, Miss Margaret Reese, Miss Annie Mae Wall, Miss Christine Worthington, and Miss Christine Henry.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful model of ivory satin with yoke of net outlined in embroidery design of seed pearls, long fitted sleeves tightened at the wrist with self covered buttons, which matched the row that extended down the back of the bodice to the full skirt which ended in a court train. The Rose point lace veil was caught to a coronet of pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of stephanotis and orchids.

Lieutenant Guenard had as his best man, the bride's brother, Lt. Frank Voelker Jr., U. S. marine corps. Both wore the summer full-dress uniform of their rank.

Lieutenants Frank Holcomb, Atlanta; John Sims, Delhi; and Byron Dodd, New Orleans, marine flyers, and J. W. Miller, Minden, and George Scott, Memphis, were ushers and groomsmen.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Rose Villa, the Voelker home on Lake Providence. Mid-summer flowers were arranged with artistry in the spacious rooms, ensuite.

Mrs. Voelker, wearing an all white model with bodice of lace, matching the panels in the skirt, and corsage of pink carnations, was assisted in receiving by Mrs. R. S. Guenard, the groom's mother, who wore a white taffeta waffle pique model appliqued with lace flowers, a small white hat and shoulder corsage of white carnations.

The bride's table in the dining room was overlaid with exquisite lace and centered with the tiered wedding cake, which was based on a three-foot heirloom silver tray, and beautifully embossed in garland design. The cake was sliced with a sword by the bride. Frosted punch was served from mammoth crystal bowls. Miss Jane Hill, presiding at one bowl wore pink organdy with lace mitts, and blue feathered bandeau flaunting two ostrich tips. SUMMER IS WANING and appetites are jaded. There's nothing to compare with a slice of MEL-O-TOAST bread hot from the ovens of the CITY BAKERY. Just try eating a slice when your appetite craves something very special. There is nothing more wholesome, nutritious or appetizing than fresh MEL-O-TOAST bread. Those big hamburger buns from the CITY BAKERY are grand with any kind of filling . . . how the children do love them. And remember the CITY BAKERY is ready to supply all your sweets.

DOCTORS AGREE that flowers have definite healing power . . . that their brightness lifts the morale. Flowers for the sick, for any occasion in fact must be fresh however. When you order flowers from the FLOWER SHOPPE you can rest assured each blossom is carefully selected before it is delivered. It's all a part of the wonderful service. The discriminating public instinctively reaches for the telephone and calls number 565 . . . the FLOWER SHOPPE when flowers are needed for any occasion . . . great or small.

IN TIMES OF WAR, money is spent on things that keep up the morale . . . that's why the R AND A JEWELRY SHOP is now jammed with shoppers from morning 'til night. There is a craze for all that sparkles and glitters but it must be real jewelry for reasons of investment and because of a new awakening of a sense of quality and tradition. A gift of jewelry from Monroe's most exclusive shop is something to be treasured . . something to be worn proudly if it bears the name of R AND A.

Miss Voelker Weds Stephen H. Guenard

Prominent Wedding In Lake Providence Claims Interest Of Friends In This City

Of paramount social interest due to the prominence of both families was the wedding of Miss Flournoy Voelker, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Frank Voelker and Lt. (j. g.) Stephen Hortaire Guenard, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Guenard, which was solemnized at St. Patrick's church Sunday afternoon July 1, at 5 o'clock. Father L. R. Aycock, performing the double ring ceremony also officiated at his first wedding since the beginning of his pastorate in Lake Providence.

The church at the nuptial hour was cool, shadowy and florally adorned with white gladioli and plumosa overflowing from tall floor baskets and urns. English ivy entwined the bases of the pedestals that supported seven branched candelabra placed in the background where the couple knelt to receive the benediction on a predieu placed before the altar.

Mrs. E. T. Pinkston, aunt of the bride, rendered an organ concert. "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" was rendered while the guests were being seated. Miss Isabel Voelker, sister of the bride, soloist, rendered in beautiful voice, "Panis Angelcus" and Bach Gounod's "Ave Maria." Liebestraum was rendered during the ceremony.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march the bridal party preceded down the center aisle. Mendelssohn's march was played for the recessional.

The bridesmaids were classmates and sorority sisters of the bride. Miss Martha Claire Van, Shreveport, wore canary net yellow, with embroidered yoke to the bodice and matching embroidery tracing the long waist line, from which fell a full skirt. Her arm bouquet was of blue lilies of the Nile, tied with two-tone ribbon. Miss Carrie Lee Heard, Ruston, gowned in Wedgwood blue chambray with cut work at neck and bordering the short, straight sleeves, carried an arm bouquet of pink gladioli mixed with pink tulle and pink ribbon streamers. Miss Olive Ann Guenard, Lake Providence, wore a white starched lace model with off shoulder bodice, with short ruffle piped in pink satin. Her arm bouquet was of pink glads with long pink streamers. Miss Tony Voelker, Alexandria, wore an azure blue model with jersey bodice and full net skirt. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow painted Estherreed daisies tied with yellow moire ribbon. Miss May Goldman, Waterproof, chose pink net with the bodice scalloped at the deep waist line to hold the fullness of the skirt. Her arm bouquet was of pink and white painted daisies with streamers of pink. Mrs. Frank Cain of Lake Providence and Memphis, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a model of blue net with rounded neck line at the throat. The bodice was peplumed with lace over the bouffant skirt. Her arm bouquet of white gladioli was tied with blue ribbon. Each wore a halo hair dress of net, matching the shade of their gowns, and trimmed with flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful model of ivory satin with yoke of net outlined in embroidery design of seed pearls, long fitted sleeves tightened at the wrist with self covered buttons, which matched the row that extended down the back of the bodice to the full skirt which ended in a court train. The Rose point lace veil was caught to a coronet of pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of stephanotis and orchids.

Lieutenant Guenard had as his best man, the bride's brother, Lt. Frank Voelker Jr., U. S. marine corps. Both wore the summer full-dress uniform of their rank.

Lieutenants Frank Holcomb, Atlanta; John Sims, Delhi; and Byron Dodd, New Orleans, marine flyers, and J. W. Miller, Minden, and George Scott, Memphis, were ushers and groomsmen.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Rose Villa, the Voelker home on Lake Providence. Mid-summer flowers were arranged with artistry in the spacious rooms, ensuite.

Mrs. Voelker, wearing an all white model with bodice of lace, matching the panels in the skirt, and corsage of pink carnations, was assisted in receiving by Mrs. R. S. Guenard, the groom's mother, who wore a white taffeta waffle pique model appliqued with lace flowers, a small white hat and shoulder corsage of white carnations.

The bride's table in the dining room was overlaid with exquisite lace and centered with the tiered wedding cake, which was based on a three-foot heirloom silver tray, and beautifully embossed in garland design. The cake was sliced with a sword by the bride. Frosted punch was served from mammoth crystal bowls. Miss Jane Hill, presiding at one bowl wore pink organdy with lace mitts, and blue feathered bandeau flaunting two ostrich tips. Mrs. Bernard de Mahy, at the other end of the table, was gowned in white net, with tucks in the short puffed sleeves, and tight bodice from which fell a full skirt. Her gloves and hair ornaments were rose colored.

Mrs. P. G. Marron, assisting in serving the individual cakes, punch and champagne, wore a model of blue marquisette with long full sleeves, and full skirt corded in scallops.

The bride changed her wedding raiment for a tan and brown plaid blouse peplumed in black to match the chambray skirt. Her small hat was black straw with back streamers appliqued in shasta daisies.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Will Adams, Tallulah; Mrs. R. H. Miller, Miss Joan Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Andress and daughter, Joan, all of Minden; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Voelker, Alexandria; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Mitchiner and daughter, Mrs. Howard Gittinger Jr., of Angola; Mr. and Mrs. George Scott, Memphis.

Miss Onis Breazzel Weds Ben F. Davis

Simplicity was the keynote of the wedding which united Miss Onnie Brazzel, West Monroe, and Mr. Ben Grover Davis of Farmerville, July 6 at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. F. Almand, pastor of the Delhi Baptist Church, at the parsonage in Delhi.

The bride chose for her wedding gown a flattering model of aqua blue with cape sleeves and a ruffle circling around a sweetheart neckline and extending down the front to the hem. Her accessories were of black and the ensemble was completed with a hat the same shade as the dress and fashioned of ribbon and tulle. The age-old tradition of "something old, something new" was observed. For something old the bride wore a string of pearl that has been in the family for generations.

Mrs. Davis is a member of the Claiborne school faculty of Ouachita parish but was for several years a teacher in the Delhi High School. Mr. Davis is affiliated with the Family Shoe Store.

Following the wedding an informal reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Tully of Delhi.

After a short wedding trip the couple are at home in their apartment, 511 Clayton, West Monroe.

Mrs. Paul Newman has returned from Baton Rouge where she was summoned to the bedside of her daughter, Miss Virginia Newman, student at L. S. U., who was a patient in the University Infirmary.

Civilians Who Visit USO Find Much To Interest Them On A Sunday Afternoon

If you have never spent a Sunday afternoon at the local USO—the Service men's and women's "Home Away from Home"—you might be interested in a pen picture of what goes on every Sunday afternoon at the club.

Civilians who visit the USO are quite fascinated by the ever changing scene. There is pathos aplenty but there is also much gayety. Not only do these volunteer workers give their time to assist the staff to maintain these services to men and women in the armed forces but they give every available kind of assistance to their wives, mothers and fathers and other relatives.

Perhaps the first desk you notice when you enter the club is the information desk where you will always find a group of soldiers or sailors and very often WACs and WAVES asking about buses, housing facilities, hotels, swimming pool, amusement parks and unnumerable other questions which are important to a soldier, a sailor, merchant marine, an English or French flyer or a top sergeant. When seeking information the USO is the very first place they visit.

To the left of the information desk you'll find the alteration and check room which does a wonderful business. At this window you'll hear a friendly voice say: "What can I do for you soldier—or sailor? The answer may be: "Ma'am, I'd like to check this bag and, oh, sey, do you do mending here?"

"Sure we do," you'll hear the friendly voice reply and soon the garment is checked with full instructions for alteration or mending as the case may be. You'll notice that after putting his duplicate check in his pocket the service man invariably turns around to get a good look at the lounge—and usually his eye falls on the volunteer hostess desk where he stops for a friendly chat.

Next he will be attracted to the snack bar which operates with volunteers. Sandwiches, cakes, pies, cold drinks and coffee are sold at cost for the convenience of the men and women away from home. The cooky jar, kept full by various organizations of the Twin Cities, is never empty. Like the milk pitcher of fairy-tale lore, it is always brimming over.

Walking over to the other side of the lounge you'll find many service men reading their favorite newspaper or magazine. And by the way that's where your old magazine plays an important part in the lives of service men. The bulletin board is scanned as in this way information about programs, special entertainments and other important data, is furnished.

At regular intervals dances are held on the upper floor the USO. The dance is spacious and exhaust fans keep the temperature down to a comfortable degree during the summer months.

Habitues of the USO have learned to look for the friendly smile and the words of welcome of the assistant director, Mrs. Helen B. Wasson. Possessing a lovely personality and sympathetic understanding of the needs of men and women away from home, she is the ideal person for this particular job.

The Monroe USO was established in August, 1942, and has achieved an enviable record of service. It is financed thru the war fund by the American people.

Men and women of the Twin Cities have been untiring in their efforts to make the club one of the most hospitable in the country.

The Ouachita parish USO council is composed of the following members: Rev. Fr. Henry Freiburg, OFM, moderator; Mr. Murray Hudson, chairman; Mr. Robert Breard, vice-chairman; Mrs. Ben Breard, secretary; Rabbi F. K. Hirsch, Mr. A. Petrus, Mr. Leon Hammonds, Mr. Henry Hinkle, Mr. Sig Masur, Mr. Sam Rubin, Mr. Richard Kellogg, Mr. Elmer Slagle, Mrs. Morris Haas, Mrs. M. C. McDonald, Mrs. Bunn Beasley, Mr. Joseph Smith, Mrs. Henry Whitfield, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Mr. Walter Savage, Mr. S. K. Heninger, and Mr. Percy Sandman. The personnel officer at the field and post chaplains are honorary members.

Of all the services offered by USO none is more important than the dormitory. This service is operated free of charge and financed by the council.

The club is operated by National Catholic Community Service under the direction of Mr. C. A. Braun. National Jewish Welfare Board is the associate agency, represented by Mr. Samuel Collins, director.

3rd Anniversary

N. T. SMITH
PASTOR

Three years ago Rev. N. T. Smith, with five charter members organized this church. God has wonderfully blessed in a marvelous way, and today five hundred have walked down the aisles and united with this church. Today we have a thirty-thousand dollar church property. A church budget of seven-hundred dollars per month. Today we are celebrating our third anniversary of church and pastor.

OUR HEARTS' DESIRE IS THAT

All members, former members and friends of this church come and worship with us today.

DINNER FOR EVERYBODY

Served at 12:30 o'clock noon by our ladies in the old-fashioned way.

PASTOR'S THEME FOR SUNDAY MORNING

"WHEN THE ROLL IS CALLED UP YONDER." Along with the good there is also sadness. So many of our men are away in the armed services of our country. Others have moved far away. We will miss the sweet fellowship with them in celebrating the third anniversary of our church. But to all living near serving in various churches we are looking for you at the noon hour. We especially wish to extend a hearty welcome to the men and their families in the armed services at Selman Field.

As pastor of the First Baptist Church at West Monroe I am glad to say a word of commendation and appreciation for my sister church, the Emmanuel Church in Monroe and its pastor, Brother N. T. Smith. They stand as a symbol of my philosophy which is, "It Can Be Done." As the Lord has blessed Brother Smith and his church He will bless us if we will let Him.

C. E. AUTREY.

As pastor of Calvary Baptist Church I want to congatulate Rev. N. T. Smith and his Emmanuel Baptist Church on his 3rd Anniversary. May the Lord continue to bless you and the church in the future as he has so generously blessed you in the past.

REV. R. L. AVERETT, Pastor.

In the absence of our pastor I want to take this opportunity to congratulate the Emmanuel Baptist Church and their pastor on their achievements in the past three years, and sincerely wish God's blessings for future work.

ELLIOT A. ALEXANDER,
Director of Music,
First Baptist Church.

As former pastor of Calvary Baptist Church I want to say I am proud of the Emmanuel Baptist Church and its great pastor. To my honest belief it will be one of the greatest churches of our state. I was there when it was organized and had an humble part. I have watched it daily and on your third anniversary I say God Bless You Bro. Smith and your wife and make mention to God always for your faith and your great church.

REV. J. F. BROOKS, Pastor.

As pastor of Trinity Baptist Church and moderator of our great association I congratulate Rev. Smith and his fine consecrated wife in the great work they are doing in our city. God's richest blessings on your great church.

REV. J. T. HINKE, Pastor.

As pastor of Ridge Avenue Baptist Church I wish to congratulate Rev. N. T. Smith and the Emmanuel Baptist Church for your great achievements and glorious work in the past three years.

REV. TOM MITCHELL, Pastor.

MISSIONS MEET BOMBERS TODAY

Selman Travels To Alexandria After Week Of Idleness On Diamond

Opening up after an idle week, the league-leading Selman Field Missions travel today to Alexandria to play the Alexandria Air Base Bombers. Game time is 3 p. m.

Righthander Dub Mattis got the nod from Manager Buddy Blair last night to start as pitcher in today's game. It will be his first appearance in two weeks.

Today's game is the third meeting of the season between the Missions and the second-place Bombers. In the first game the Bombers handed the locals their first league defeat of the season. A few weeks later the Missions upset the Alex nine by handing them their first loss of the year in USO League play. Today's contest will break the tie.

The Missions are leading the military league with 11 wins, one loss. Two games were added to the win column last week after forfeits by Camp Beauregard and Camp Claiborne. Alex is in second place with wins, two losses. Their second league loss was suffered last week at the hands of the LaSalle Orleans ... Camp Livingston's IRTC team, which ... in the loop, was knocked from the unbeaten ranks last week and now has a score of four wins, one loss.

Today's game is the first in a ...

Boston Bats League Leaders 7-1 Behind ONeill's 3-Hit Hurling

BOSTON, July 14—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox swept their three-game series with the league leaders today, taking the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 1 as Pitcher Emmett O'Neil allowed but three hits.

O'Neil allowed but one hit in the first seven innings, but he walked ten men and was in trouble much of the time.

The Tigers' only run was in the tenth.

The Sox's first run was in the first inning with two out when George Metkovich walked and came home on Bob Johnson's double.

BROWNS AND SENATORS TO PLAY EXHIBITIONS

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 14—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns and the Washington Senators are going to be rival attractions here July 23 when the American League clubs oppose the coast guard Dolphins and the Senators battle the submarine base.

The booking of the Browns was announced today by Lt. John McAfee ... An interesting sidelight will be the appearance of Pete Gray, the one-armed St. Louis outfielder, and Bert Shepard, the Washington one-legged pitcher, in this big marine base.

League-Leaders Lose And Then Regain Lead To Take Series, 3 To 1

CHICAGO, July 14—(AP)—The league-leading Cubs grabbed a five-run lead on the Boston Braves in the first inning today, lost it and then bounced back to win, 6 to 5 on Catcher Paul Gillespie's double that caused Outfielder Harry Lowrey's single in the eighth inning. It was the Chicagoans' 17th victory in 21 games and gave them the series 3 to 1.

Al Javery, who until Lowrey singled had pitched one-hit ball for seven innings after relieving Rookie Don Hendrickson in the first inning, was the losing pitcher. Paul Erickson was the winner.

Outfielder Tommy Holmes increased his league-leading batting average by making two doubles and a single in five trips to the plate. It was the 40th game in the last 41 in which he hit safely.

DEARTH OF PRO GRID PLAYERS SAID PASSED

DALLAS, Tex., July 14—(AP)—The wartime dearth of pro football players is over, reports William (Red) Conkright, scout for the Cleveland Rams of the National Professional Football League.

Conkright disclosed he had lines on some 30 men from the Southwest.

"Men discharged from the service who returned to college and have not used their eligibility are ... he explained. "We also are adding to our 4-F list as more and more boys become 18 and are so classified. Other scouts report a similar situation.

"I think we will have a much better brand of football."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, July 14—(AP)—An artificial boom in class "D" baseball seems to be in the making as an outgrowth of the much-discussed signing of "kid" players. . . . In the past few days reports have turned up on plans to form a new circuit "class unspecified" in some of the larger southern cities and for a definitely "D" loop in some smaller cities in Western Association territory. . . . One club owner, who adds that the W. A. plans to operate next year and may have its troubles finding players, explains that the Big League clubs have been signing 16-year-olds—"and paying them real money"—only to find that they're not ready for anything but the lowest minors. . . . As a result they're now trying to organize more leagues and clubs for these youngsters so they won't lose entirely on their investment.

Boomerang Boom

The proposed anti-teen rule, sponsored by Commissioner Happy Chandler, may check the signing of youngsters, but as the better players return from the war, a lot of kids will be shoved back down the ladder to fill up "D" clubs. . . . Then after a couple of years there'll be a new problem—whether to pay older players more dough than most small teams can afford, let the teams fold up or go back to signing teen-age boys.

MISSIONS MEET BOMBERS TODAY

Selman Travels To Alexandria After Week Of Idleness On Diamond

Opening up after an idle week, the league-leading Selman Field Missions travel today to Alexandria to play the Alexandria Air Base Bombers. Game time is 3 p. m.

Righthander Dub Mattis got the nod from Manager Buddy Blair last night to start as pitcher in today's game. It will be his first appearance in two weeks.

Today's game is the third meeting of the season between the Missions and the second-place Bombers. In the first game the Bombers handed the locals their first league defeat of the season. A few weeks later the Missions upset the Alex nine by handing them their first loss of the year in USO League play. Today's contest will break the tie.

The Missions are leading the military league with 14 wins, one loss. Two games were added to the win column last week after forfeits by Camp Beauregard and Camp Claiborne. Alex is in second place with 7 wins, two losses. Their second league loss was suffered last week at the hands of the LaSalle Oilers.

Camp Livingston's IRTC team, which replaced Lake Charles recently in the loop, was knocked from the unbeaten ranks last week and now has a score of four wins, one loss.

Today's game is the first in a preparatory series for the Missions before they journey to Baton Rouge next Saturday to meet Esler Field in their opening game in the 1945 state semi-pro tournament. Blair's punch meets Jackson, Miss., Air Base on the Selman Field diamond Wednesday afternoon.

POT O'LUCK WINNER OF CLASSIC STAKES

CHICAGO, Ill., July 14—(AP)—Pot O'Luck thrilled a crowd of 25,000 by capturing Arlington Park's $85,450 classic stakes at Washington Park today by half a length, with Air Sailor second and Fighting Step third. Bergolater finished fourth.

Pot O'Luck, which trailed Hoop Jr. home in the Kentucky Derby, ran the mile and a quarter in 2:05 4/5.

The winner which went to the post at odds of 3 to 5 returned $3.20, $2.40 and $2.20. Air Sailor paid $4.00 and $2.20, with Fighting Step paying $2.20. The latter was coupled with Bergolater as an entry.

The victory was worth $87,150 to Warren Wright of Chicago, owner of Pot O'Luck.

Only seven started. Sea Swallow, 3-year-old son of the famed Sea Biscuit, was scratched along with Doeone because of the sloppy condition of the track.

CHAMP BULLDOG KILLED

TORONTO, July 14—(AP)—The international champion bulldog, Basford Golden Nymph, said to be the highest-priced bulldog in the world, was put to death last night to end its suffering from an incurable muscular disease. His Toronto owner, Reginald E. Sparkes imported the dog from England in 1939 for $12,024, and turned down an offer of $25,000 for him.

SOUTHERN SHOWING MORE ATTENDANCE

MEMPHIS, July 14.—(AP)—The Southern Association is heading toward another "million-customer" gate this year.

President Billy Evans said today the league has drawn 107,735 more fans for the first half of this season than for the corresponding period last year when there were more than a million clicks to the turnstiles.

"We had the best gate in 1944 of any season since 1936," Evans asserted. "Now it looks as if we may top it."

League figures show games through July 4 drew 590,041 fans this year compared with 482,306 in 1944.

New Orleans has shown the biggest increase—70,730 more than a year ago—with Atlanta and Chattanooga close behind.

The Pelicans attracted 122,075 fans through the first half, some 20,000 more than all last season.

Front running Atlanta drew 142,436, increase of 44,182 over the first half of 1944.

The other first division club, Mobile, attracted 66,806 customers, an increase of 14,072.

Evans announced the four second division clubs all showed decreases ranging from 6,000 to 26,000. He did not release figures for these clubs.

RED SOX SWEEP DETROIT SERIES

Boston Bats League Leaders 7-1 Behind ONeill's 3-Hit Hurling

BOSTON, July 14.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox swept their three-game series with the league leaders today, taking the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 1 as Pitcher Emmett O'Neil allowed but three hits.

O'Neil allowed but one hit in the first seven innings, but he walked ten men and was in trouble much of the time.

The Tigers' only run was in the ninth.

The Sox's first run was in the first inning with two out when George Metkovich walked and came home on Bob Johnson's double.

YANKS STOP INDIANS

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—Floyd Bevens pitched the New York Yankees back into the winning column today as he notched his ninth victory by holding the Cleveland Indians to six hits for a 4-2 victory.

Bevens held the Tribe scoreless for the first eight innings, but was rapped for the same number of safeties in the ninth, and it took a leaping catch by Rightfielder Bud Metheny to save the game for him.

Shortstop Frankie Crosetti was the Yankee hero. He scored three of the Yankees' four runs and belted his second homer of the season in the third inning.

PEP TALKS 'OUT' FOR DISCHARGEES

Simons Thinks Returning Athletes Can't Be Keyed Up For Games

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—(AP)—Battye-wise football players won't lend an ear to those "do or die for Alma Mater" pep talks after the war.

At least, that's the opinion of Claude (Little Monk) Simons, Tulane University coach, who concedes that he has tried about everything in the book to work up his gridders to a fighting pitch.

"I believe the old pep talk stuff will be a waste of time and energy after the war," Simons said, "especially if there are several boys on the team who has been in combat."

"Many of our postwar football players will have seen plenty of action under fire," Simons continued, "and I believe it is going to be virtually impossible to key they up for a football game after what they have been through."

The Tulane mentor thinks coaches will have to spend their time after the war, even up to the last minute, planning the team's attack. "Some of that is done now, but I think we'll have to do more of it after the war," he said.

Between-the-halves talks will continue in about the same vein as presently, Simons believes, with the coaches pointing out flaws in their own attack and weak spot in the opposition's defenses.

As to the place of the veteran in football, Simons predicts the outcome will depend on the veteran's ability to rehabilitate himself and also to the type of service he has seen.

"However, it's a cinch they will all be more hardened and ready for the game than are the younger boys we are getting now," Simons said. "The service man is subjected to a more rigorous training and will be far better qualified physically for football.

"It seems to me that his football experience before the war, plus the fact that he is now more mature, should make up for any lack of enthusiasm he might have.

"But as for keying a veteran up for a football game—well, I just think that's going to be an impossibility."

BROWNS AND SENATORS TO PLAY EXHIBITIONS

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 14.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns and the Washington Senators are going to be rival attractions here July 25 when the American League champs oppose the coast guard Dolphins and the Senators battle the submarine base.

The booking of the Browns was announced today by Lt. John McAfee of the coast guard. An interesting sidelight will be the appearance of Pete Gray, the one-armed St. Louis outfielder, and Bert Shepard, the Washington one-legged pitcher, in this big marine base.

League-Leaders Lose And Then Regain Lead To Take Series, 3 To 1

CHICAGO, July 14.—(AP)—The league-leading Cubs grabbed a five-run lead on the Boston Braves in the first inning today, lost it and then bounced back to win, 6 to 5 on Catch- Paul Gillespie's double that cashed Outfielder Harry Lowrey's single in the eighth inning. It was the Chicagoans' 17th victory in 21 games and gave them the series 3 to 1.

Al Javery, who until Lowrey singled had pitched one-hit ball for seven innings after relieving Rookie Don Hendrickson in the first inning, was the losing pitcher. Paul Erickson was the winner.

Outfielder Tommy Holmes increased his league-leading batting average by making two doubles and a single in five trips to the plate. It was the 40th game in the last 41 in which he hit safely.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Ned Brown

(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)
(Pinch Hitting for Harry Grayson, NEA Sports Editor, away on special assignment)

NEW YORK, July 14.—Every now and then a superman does a flop that makes him a fellow man. Like Babe Ruth striking out with the bases full. Or like Byron Nelson taking that seven on the sixth hole in the preliminary round of this year's PGA tournament. Such democratic actions by its heroes tend to further glorify their greatness among the masses.

No wonder the ancient Greeks worshipped Jove. He nodded once—or don't you remember?

When Lord Byron shot that fat seven I'll bet there was dancing on the fairway by the multitude of duffers who gaped in envious awe at his birdie two on the preceding hole. After all, the guy showed he was human—not strictly a perfect golf machine.

"Aw, he ain't tryin'," chorused a bevy of duffers. "He wants to give the others a chance. Besides, prize for low score is only a paltry $250. And he's gotta sore back."

Well, even with the sore back and the seven, Nelson turned in a 38 for the nine holes.

Back in 1929 Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., was the kingpin among golfers. A huge crowd massed around the first tee of the Winged Foot Golf Club at Mamaroneck to watch him tee off in the 33rd Open Championship, June 27. It was a par four hole.

The great Jones started off like a dub, practically played soccer with his ball and wound up with a suicidal six. The pros in the crowd emitted a crocodile moan of sympathy, and deserted Jones to follow Al Espinosa, who was giving part a drubbing. After all, Bobby was only an amateur.

Then the real fireworks began. Jones reeled off five threes in succession on the incoming nine, and followed this with four fours—31 for the nine and a new course record of 69!

So at the end of the first round the name of Robert T. Jones, Jr., led all the rest. Espinosa was second, two under par with a 70. The rest is golf history—how Bobby and Al battled through to a tie at 294 each. In the 36-hole playoff Jones won with a par 72 and another record 69 for 141, while Espinosa carded a duffer's 84-80—164!

They have that opening card of Jones' framed in a glass case and it hangs where all can see it at the Winged Foot Golf Club. The opening six on the first hole stands out like a sore thumb, and duffers linger to look at it, even unto this day.

If it hadn't been for that six . . . there we go, talking just like a duffer!

DEARTH OF PRO GRID PLAYERS SAID PASSED

DALLAS, Tex., July 14.—(AP)—The wartime dearth of pro football players is over, reports William (Red) Conkright, scout for the Cleveland Rams of the National Professional Football League.

Conkright disclosed he had lines on some 10 men from the Southwest.

"Men discharged from the service who returned to college and finished their eligibility are fairly numerous," he explained. "We also are adding to our 4-F list as more and more boys become 18 and are so classified. Other scouts report a similar situation.

"I think we will have a much better brand of football."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—An artificial boom in class "D" baseball seems to be in the making as an outgrowth of the muse-discussed signing of "kid" players. . . . In the past few days reports have turned up on plans to form a new circuit "class unspecified) in some of the larger southern cities and for a definitely "D" loop in some smaller cities in Western Association territory. . . . One club owner, who adds that the W. A. plans to operate next year and may have its troubles finding players, explains that the Big League clubs have been signing 16-year-olds —"and paying them real money"—only to find that they're not ready for anything but the lowest minors. . . As a result they're now trying to organize more leagues and clubs for these youngsters so they won't lose entirely on their investment.

Boomerang Boom

The proposed anti-teen rule, sponsored by Commissioner Happy Chandler, may check the signing of youngsters, but as the better players return from the war, a lot of kids will be shoved back down the ladder to fill up "D" clubs. . . . Then after a couple of years there'll be a new problem —whether to pay older players more dough than most small teams can afford, let the teams fold up or go back to signing teen-age boys.

Prop For Pop

Wally Butts, Georgia football coach, is going around busting his vest buttons these days because his 15-year-old daughter, Faye, recently won a prize in a national high school poetry contest. . . . The subject of Faye's poem was "Hope"—a singularly appropriate title, according to Wally, in view of his 1945 grid prospects. . . . That's the first time Coach Butts has admitted publicly there is even hope for his team.

Service Dept.

Three of the girls' softball teams at Keesler Field, Miss., have three sisters as regulars—Lillian, Louise and Bernerdino Arguelles., Dot, Marie and Gloria Vuyovich and Louise, Willie and Mae Frances Nixon. . . . With the football season still some months off, the Second air force has welcomed Pvt. Bill Paschal (Giants), Lt. Fred Davis (Alabama) and Pfc. Dick Barwegen (Purdue) into the fold.

SOUTHERN

BEARS WIN PAIR

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 14.—(AP)—Timely hitting and the ability to capitalize on opposition misplays aided the Mobile Bears in twice overcoming the skidding Birmingham Barons tonight, 4 to 2, and 6 to 3.

Mobile pushed across three runs in the 11th stanza of the second game to break a 3-3 deadlock. The runs came on a walk, a single and a double by Fred Wells, who had taken over pitching chores in the ninth from Pat Patterson.

Together, Patterson and Wells held the Barons to six hits in overtime contest. Malcolm Stevens, slugging Mobile outfielder, poled his 10th homer of the season to tally the Bears' first run in the second game.

The first game, a seven-inning twilight affair, was won by the visitors on a walk, two errors and a single. The combination was good for all four of the Mobile runs.

Scores by innings:

CRACKERS WIN DUEL

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 14.—(AP)—Lewis Carpenter beat Al Treichel in one of the most brilliant mound duels of the Southern Association here tonight as the Atlanta Crackers won their fourth straight from the Little Rock Travelers, 1 to 0.

Carpenter allowed only one hit, struck out 9 and walked 3 for his twelfth win of the year. The Traveler ace gave up just two hits, struck out 10 and passed 3.

The break was in the fourth inning when Lloyd Gerhart of the Crackers opened with a triple to deep center and scored after Sieslak flied.

Score by innings:

Little Rock	000 000 000—0	1	1

LOOKOUTS WHIP CHICKS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 14.—(AP)—Chattanooga's heavy-hitting Lookouts spoiled the mound debut of young Leon Walsh, recently added Memphis hurler, plastering the army dischargee for 15 hits and a 14-to-0 triumph over the Chicks tonight.

It was the third Lookout triumph in four games of the current series.

NELSON AND BYRD IN P. G. A. FINALS

Byron Whips Harmon, Sammy Trims Doser In Semi-Finals At Dayton

DAYTON, O., July 14.—(AP)—Sam Byrd, the baseball man from Georgia, and Byron Nelson of Toledo, who has shaved 31 strokes off par in 171 holes this week, will do the shooting tomorrow at the Moraine Country club for golf's biggest professional prize—the P. G. A. championship.

Byron Nelson

Byrd carved out his second straight seven and six victory as he blasted dark horse Clarence Doser of Hartsdale, N. Y., out of competition in today's 36-hole semi-finals.

Nelson breezed past Claude Harmon of Grosse Point Wood, Mich., five and four. He was eight under par today despite a rain storm that was so heavy it even delayed the start of the second 18.

When Nelson tees off against Byrd tomorrow it will be the fifth time in the last six P. G. A. tournaments that he has been in the championship march. He won the tournament in 1940 and finished runner up to Henry Picard in 1939, to Vic Ghezzi in 1941 and to Bob Hamilton last year.

He'll also be shooting for his ninth straight tournament victory—a string of triumphs that never has been equalled in the history of big time golf.

Brooklyn Plays At Boston On August 3; Other Changes Announced

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—Harvey Traband, secretary of the National Baseball League, today announced a triple header, involving Brooklyn and the Braves, for Boston on Friday, Rug. 3.

The June 17 game was halted by the Boston Sunday curfew at 6:30 p. m. with Brooklyn trailing, 4 to 1, and one Dodger out in the first half of the eighth inning.

On Sept. 1, 1890, Brooklyn won all three games from Pittsburgh in the first of the triple headers now on the National League record books. No triple headers ever have been played in the American League.

of Rear Adm. J F. Shaffroth, the squadron left the steel mill, one of Japan's largest demolished and the coke ovens heavily damaged and burning fiercely, said a U. S. Pacific fleet headquarters communique.

Lindsley said the squadron "swaggered back and forth almost within rifle shot of Honshu, drawing only meager and apparently timid opposition." The warships were in plain sight of the coast for three hours before the two-hour bombardment and for some time afterward.

The dramatic noon-time strike by fleet guns ranging from battleship 16-inchers which hurl one-ton shells to the five-inch batteries of the destroyers, was a taunt to the Japanese imperial fleet.

Halsey was hoping for a fight. Before taking his Third fleet into Japanese waters he was asked if he thought remnants of the Nipponese navy might come out as a gesture. He replied:

"I wish they would, but they've got damned little left to gesture with."

The Third fleet has steamed far beyond key bases of Nipponese warships remaining after the enemy's defeat in the sea battle of the Philippines last October and the American naval air blows which sank the big battleship Yamato and other Japanese ships off the Ryukyus April 7.

Ships in the bombardment squadron included the battleships Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota; heavy cruisers Chicago and Quincy and destroyers Southerland, Herman, Erban and Black. The Massachusetts and Indiana were among 21 or more Third fleet warships damaged in a typhoon June 5, southeast of Japan.

The navy pilots from Vice-Adm. John S. McCain's carrier units of the Third fleet achieved complete tactical surprise in their strikes, starting at dawn, against Honshu and Hokkaido, the communique said.

Hokkaido has about 25 operational airfields and northern Honshu an equal number.

While there was no immediate reports of enemy aerial opposition to the American air and surface ship attacks, Hokkaido and northern Honshu Islands contain many of the enemy airdromes not yet brought under attack by U. S. raids.

It has been estimated by American officers that Japan's airforce has only about 9,000 planes remaining with which to fight off U. S. attacks or to defend the homeland from invasion.

JAPANESE ACKNOWLEDGE SURFACE BOMBARDMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—(AP)—Japanese imperial headquarters today acknowledged the U. S. navy's combined air and surface bombardment of northern Japan, and one army district command was quoted as saying "damage on our side was extremely light."

Broadcasts of the attack, picked up by the Federal Communications Commission, came in piecemeal fashion and generally trailed official communiques released by U. S. Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

Radio Tokyo disclosed that the first contingent of Nipponese bombed out of Japan's capital arrived at Nokkaido Island, one of the target areas of the fleet arm, shortly before the new assault began.

Imperial headquarters admitted that "enemy surface craft had carried out a naval bombardment against the northern Honshu city of Kamaishi and surrounding area about noon, Japanese time, while carrier-borne aircraft were attacking air bases, harbor and 'other facilities' in the Tokohu district of northern Honshu and the southern area of Hokkaido.

Object of the raid, Domei news agency said, was to "reduce our air power on the Japanese mainland."

Other Tokyo broadcasts said that Kofu, industrial city in the Tokyo area, was "smashed to smithereens" by American bombs, but would be rebuilt as "an agrarian city with fields and rice paddies stretching endlessly, bounded by paved roads, by September."

reached the limit of his physical resources, we will replace him. I say that now so that if there is any change in the future that will be the reason. We also like to get experienced men back here to help in the war planning."

While no announcement was made, Vice-Admiral Mitscher's new assignment is expected to carry with it the rank of a full admiral, and Rear Admiral Sherman is expected to be elevated to vice-admiral.

Vice-Admiral Towers is the number one aviator on navy rolls which now include more than 50,000 fliers. He was one of three young officers whom Glenn Curtiss originally taught to fly in return for the navy's promise to buy three of his planes.

Rear Adm. Sherman, one of the navy's toughest and ablest flying admirals, has been in command of a carrier task group within the fast carrier task force since last August. He has seen the naval air war through from the start, having been skipper of the carrier Lexington when she was lost in the battle of the Coral Sea.

Forrestal also announced assignment of Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, now a member of the general board, to relieve Adm. Harold R. Stark as commander of naval forces in Europe. Adm. Stark will retire for age after his return to this country.

Vice-Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, being relieved by Vice-Adm. Mitscher as deputy chief of naval operations for air, will become superintendent of the Naval Academy and commandant of the Severn river naval command. He will be the first vice-admiral to hold that post.

Rear Adm. John R. Beardall, now academy superintendent, will relieve Rear Adm. Howard F. Kingman as commandant of the 15th naval district and commander of the Panama Sea frontier and Southeast Pacific. Rear Adm. Kingman will report to the Pacific fleet commander in chief for his assignment.

EXPECT

tion that the war with Japan will end next year and bring on deflationary factors incident to industrial reconversion.

Elimination of the subsidies would increase the nation's total food bill about 5 per cent, agriculture department economists estimate. Consumers are buying food at the rate of about $30,000,000,000 a year.

Food items on which the government is paying subsidies include meats, butter, fluid milk and most manufactured dairy products, flour and, indirectly, bread and bakery products, canned fruits and vegetables, sugar, dry beans, peanut butter, lard and soybean products.

Supporting the subsidy abandonment idea are several major farm organizations and a strong bloc in congress.

Back of the pressure to wipe out the subsidies is concern over post-war agricultural prices. Anderson and many farmers expect farm prices to go down after the abnormal war market fades. They also expect a public demand for curtailment in government expenditures.

Anderson believes the effects on agriculture will be less harmful if the subsidies are removed while prices are high and the demand is good rather than later when prices have declined.

Under the subsidy program, the actual prices (or returns) received by farmers are hidden, so to speak, from the consumer. The consumer pays only part of the price on the subsidized items. The government pays the remainder.

Abandonment of the subsidies would be done in connection with the government's farm price support program for 1946. In the case of some items, the elimination might be gradual over a period of months. On some items it might not be necessary to increase ceilings to the full extent of subsidies.

One of the principal objections raised against subsidies is that they put the government in the position of paying a part of the food bill of poor and rich alike at a time when there is an excess of purchasing power over the supply of civilian goods available at ceiling prices. Much of this extra buying, subsidy opponents say, is being used to support black markets.

Anderson is not opposed to all food subsidies. He has stated that he believes it may become necessary in the post-war period—particularly should there be considerable unemployment—to subsidize consumption by low-income groups.

on the security council until the international organization actually comes into being.

He voiced the opinion that the Senate will ratify the charter after not more than 10 days of debate, adding:

Connally disclosed that Senator Hiram Johnson, Democrat, California, would be recorded as against approving the charter and Senator Murray, Democrat, Montana, as for, with Senator Shipstead, Republican, Minnesota, not recorded.

Johnson was among those who opposed American participation in the League of Nations after the last war.

The committee vote on the charter now stands at 21 for, 1 against.

The committee will meet Monday afternoon to go over its formal report. With the Senate scheduled to consider the Bretton Woods monetary agreement, members will have a week in which to study the report and the 50-nation agreement before ratification opens debate.

TRY TO STOP WORK BY CONVALESCENTS

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—Army hospitals are taking steps to prevent convalescent soldiers still under hospital care from taking jobs.

War Department officials said today it had been found that some wounded veterans allowed to live at home while still under hospital care had been working. This, they explained, delayed recovery of the patient.

Accordingly, hospitals have instituted investigations and cancelled permission for men to live at home where violation of the no-work regulation was discovered.

active duty with the U. S. army.

Chennault said he hoped to return home as soon as Stratemeyer's organization had been perfected.

GENERAL STRATEMEYER IS PLACED OVER CHENNAULT

KUNMING, China—(Delayed)—(AP)—The reorganization of the American air effort in the China theater, just announced, is likely to have a deep though politely cloaked effect on Chinese-American relations as well as their joint war potential.

(Chennault's resignation was announced in Kunming subsequent to this dispatch. He disclosed that he is returning to the United States and will retire from the army on reaching the United States.)

It was learned unofficially that Chennault, relegated by Washington to a subordinate role after eight years service as one American closest to Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, probably will ask to go home "on points."

For all immediate purposes moving of additional air force personnel and equipment into China from the India-Burma theater is bound to mean some dissipation of present potentiality in supplies which for Chennault's Fourteenth alone are so severely restricted (three lines censored).

It's worth noting and no doubt permissible under security restriction, that Chennault's strategical bombardment group of big gas consuming B-24s haven't run a real mission since May 9 when they blasted Paoching.

Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, 54-year-old Ohio born West Pointer, has been placed over Chennault.

accompanying cruiser, the Philadelphia, when they suddenly appeared out of the mist that hung over the English channel at 7 a. m. (Greenwich mean time), today.

Mr. Truman today finished his study of the proposals he will submit to the other two leaders and the proposals they have laid before him.

It is understood that the president is ready to offer the services of the United States in helping Europe get back on its feet. In return he wants assurances of peaceful cooperation of European countries, who twice in three decades have seen the start of world wars on their continent.

It was at 7 o'clock this morning that the British welcoming ships made their rendezvous with the Augusta and Philadelphia. The sea was calm but the air was misty.

The destroyers smartly lined up beside the American cruisers. The Birmingham circled the Augusta with all her crew standing at attention along the rails. Rear Admiral Cunningham-Graham was aboard.

The procession moved past the white cliffs of Dover where many of the people of this oft-bombed and shelled part of England gathered to see the coming of the American president.

It was Mr. Truman's second trip across the Atlantic. The first time was during the World War when he went over as a young artillery officer.

WOMEN DON'T GET MORE SHOE STAMPS

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—(AP)—Irate women rushed to the city ration board yesterday to request extra shoe coupons to replace non-rationed shoes which they said had not withstood the heavy New Orleans rainfall.

City streets are gushing with water, they said, and wading through them is fatal for some kinds of non-rationed shoes.

The women claimed that some non-rationed shoes curl up when wet and the soles disintegrate.

They wanted a coupon for a pair of shoes of the rationed variety in exchange for soaked ones.

Ration board volunteers listened sympathetically to the sad stories, but told the women that's all they could do.

Unless each woman had only one pair of wearable shoes, they were not entitled to another coupon.

and Churchill to supplement the Yalta agreement, it would strengthen the first-hand report he is to make immediately to congress upon his return from the Big Three conference.

Probably half of the Berlin decisions will deal with military problems. Among such problems these appear likely to come up:

1. Detailed arrangements for prolonged Allied military occupation of Germany and the use of the occupation forces in accordance with the Moscow declaration of 1943 to preserve peace.

2. Preliminary discussions of the forces which each of the big powers might be expected to commit to the projected United Nations security organization.

3. Talks between the British and American military leaders on roles which other nations in the war against Japan—notably France and Holland—may play in the closing phase of that conflict.

4. Possible exploratory talks with the Russians on the Pacific war. This will go only as Russia may want it to go since the Russians are still carefully guarding their technical neutrality.

5. Discussions of base locations, most likely in very general terms. The establishment of bases is one of the means by which the United Nations are planning to protect not only their individual security but also [illegible] to provide for their collective security.

EUROPE AND ASIA LOOK TO BIG THREE

POTSDAM, July 14—(AP)—Here in an idyllic woodland setting still strewn with the wreckage of the German army are Versailles of 1919 and Tehran of 1943 rolled into one, with agonized Europe and Asia alike looking to it for help.

From Moscow, London and Washington have come forecasts of what Gordian-knotted problems will be laid upon the Big Three conference table next week before Russian and English speaking statesmen.

With Europe's chaotic peace and Asia's still fiercely-raging warfare inextricably linked, it is obvious that the Soviet Union now stands toward Japan in many respects similar to the way the United States stood toward Germany in the months preceding Pearl Harbor.

That is why the most important news of all may not be known about the Potsdam conference for a considerable time to come.

All that remained was for the three principals to take their places in Germanic versions of the White House, the Kremlin and No. 10 Downing street, sheltered behind lines of Allied guards several miles deep.

President Truman was scheduled to land at Antwerp tomorrow from the cruiser Augusta and to proceed here by plane. Prime Minister Churchill was to end his vacation at Hendaye in France over the week end. Generalissimo Stalin suspended his series of talks with Chinese Premier T. V. Soong at Moscow and prepared to leave for the meeting.

This summer resort area, once popular with Nazi stars of the stage and screen, has been almost completely depopulated of Germans to furnish the security essential for the Big Three.

Stalin is making his second trip outside the Soviet Union in order to meet with Truman and Churchill, but as at Tehran he will stay on soil occupied by the Red army.

The American and British groups are housed in little territorial islands well within the Soviet zone in greater Berlin. Traffic on the broad asphalt highway to Potsdam is a cosmopolitan collection of "high brass" from Moscow, London and Washington.

Almost at the edge of the International Shangri La a German roadside tavern advertises "dancing at 6 o'clock," and a few shabbily-dressed fraulien sun themselves in rickety chairs at the entrance and ogle the Russian soldiers.

Several thousand elite green-capped Soviet frontier guardsmen compose the force chiefly responsible for policing the "Potsdam conference," and they are strictly business.

To refresh the historical figures who are gathering here, expert caterers have had fine foods and wines flown in during the past few days. At Yalta last winter the Big Three feasted on the luxuries of the Soviet Union. The United States and the British Empire are contributing to the Potsdam functions.

of sharing with other people, sharing with others in adjacent parishes, sharing with others in other states, sharing with others in other countries. It has truly become a small world, but our responsibilities have been increased.

Let me illustrate:

A man was sent to our health center this week by a public health nurse from a parish seat of a parish along the Mississippi river east and northeast of here. He was a white man about 30 years of age, who had a small farm, a wife and three small children. His farm is not very productive, and following newspaper and radio appeals, he went to New Orleans to work in industry for the war effort.

A few months after taking his new job, he had a chest x-ray along with all of his fellow workers in a Mobile X-ray trailer attached to Charity Hospital, New Orleans.

His chest was positive for tuberculosis. He became exhausted before the day was half over. He was advised to seek medical aid. He returned to his already badly nourished family at his home.

The public health nurse at the parish seat sent him by bus, transferring at Tallulah, to Monroe, the nearest health center that had an X-ray department and a well established and well publicized health program.

He brought a letter from Charity Hospital in New Orleans saying that his chest was positive and they would send the x-ray films and reading to the doctor of his choice.

His dependent family, wife and three children, were to shift for themselves if we could place him in our T. B. Sanatorium, but we could not because he was not a resident or a tax payer in this parish.

In consultation with our chief nurse and one of our clinic nurses, we agreed the only plan available for him was to return him to his home and then to New Orleans Charity Hospital (Dybert) if after they read the x-ray plates, hospitalization was what the [illegible]

GREEN SAYS UNREST IS CAUSING STRIKES

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said tonight that "current strikes are symptomatic of a growing unrest among American workers."

He added, in a talk written for a Blue network broadcast:

"First, take-home wages have been sharply cut by reduced overtime.

"Second, many workers have lost their relatives and paid too in war industries because of cutbacks, and the only new jobs available to them offer much lower wages.

"Third, the failure of the government to act promptly in providing adequate unemployment compensation insurance has filled war workers with fear that they will be left stranded when the war ends."

Green proposed "free collective bargaining" to raise wage rates where price increases will not result. He also asked an increase in minimum wages from 55 to 72 cents an hour, and unemployment insurance paying off as much as $25 a week to workers with families.

Green said "such action will reduce strikes to a minimum."

He reaffirmed the A. F. of L.'s no-strike pledge and said that "headlines last week told us with a great deal of emphasis that fifty thousand workers had quit their jobs" but "not a word was said about the fifty million workers who remained faithfully at their tasks."

FOUR KILLED WHEN BIG PLANE FALLS

WELDON, Tex., July 14—(AP)—An army airplane exploded and crashed during a heavy rainstorm a mile west of here today, killing at least four passengers.

Mrs. R. J. Bratton, grocery store operator, said only four bodies had been found, but that an army officer phoned her from Memphis, Tex., that "there should have been nine persons aboard."

Later a plane from the Bryan, Tex., army airfield flew over and dropped a note ordering spectators not to approach the wreckage.

BOLDLY

Lindsley said the squadron "swaggered back and forth almost within rifle shot of Honshu, drawing only meager and apparently timid opposition." The warships were in plain sight of the coast for three hours before the two-hour bombardment and for some time afterward.

(Tokyo radio quoted an imperial headquarters communique announcing the shelling of Kamaishi but did not mention damage.)

No reports of damage to the American ships had been received at the time Lindsley sent his dispatch.

The dramatic noon-time strike by fleet guns ranging from battleship 16-inchers which hurl one-ton shells to the five-inch batteries of the destroyers, was a taunt to the Japanese imperial fleet.

Halsey was hoping for a fight. Before taking his Third fleet into Japanese waters he was asked if he thought remnants of the Nipponese navy might come out as a gesture. He replied:

"I wish they would, but they've got damned little left to gesture with."

The Third fleet has steamed far beyond key bases of Nipponese warships remaining after the enemy's defeat in the sea battle of the Philippines last October and the American naval air blows which sank the big battleship Yamato and other Japanese ships off the Ryukyus April 7.

Ships in the bombardment squadron included the battleships Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota; heavy cruisers Chicago and Quincy and destroyers Southerland, Herman, Erban and Black. The Massachusetts and Indiana were among 21 or more Third fleet warships damaged in a typhoon June 5, southeast of Japan.

The navy pilots from Vice-Adm. ohn S. McCain's carrier units of the Third fleet achieved complete tactical surprise in their strikes, starting at dawn, against Honshu and Hokkaido, the communique said.

Hokkaido has about 25 operational airfields and northern Honshu and equal number.

While there was no immediate reports of enemy aerial opposition to the American air and surface ship attacks, Hokkaido and northern Honshu Islands contain many of the enemy airdromes not yet brought under attack by U. S. raids.

It has been estimated by American officers that Japan's airforce has only about 9,000 planes remaining with which to fight off U. S. attacks or to defend the homeland from invasion.

JAPANESE ACKNOWLEDGE SURFACE BOMBARDMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—(AP)—Japanese imperial headquarters today acknowledged the U. S. navy's combined air and surface bombardment of northern Japan, and one army district command was quoted as saying "damage on our side was extremely light."

Broadcasts of the attack, picked up by the Federal Communications Commission, came in piecemeal fashion and generally trailed official communiques released by U. S. Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimtiz.

Radio Tokyo disclosed that the first contingent of Nipponese bombed out of Japan's captial arrived at Nokkaido Island, one of the target areas of the fleet arm, shortly before the new assault began.

Imperial headquarters admited that "enemy surface craft had carried out a naval bombardment against the northern Honshu city of Kamaishi and surrounding area about noon, Japanese time, while carrier-borne aircraft were attacking air bases, harbor and "other facilities" in the Tokohu district of northern Honshu and the southern area of Hokkaido.

Object of the raid, Domei news agency said, was to "reduce our air power on the Japanese mainland."

Other Tokyo broadcasts said that Kofu, industrial city in the Tokyo area, was "smashed to smithereens" by American bombs, but would be rebuilt as "an agrarian city with fields and rice paddies stretching endlessly, bounded by paved roads, by September."

reached the limit of his physical resources, we will replace him. I say that now so that if there is any change in the future that will be the reason. We also like to get experienced men back here to help in the war planning."

While no announcement was made, Vice-Admr. Mitscher's new assignment is expected to carry with it the rank of a full admiral, and Rear Admiral Sherman is expected to be elevated to vice-admiral.

Vice-Admiral Towers is the number one aviator on navy rolls which now include more than 50,000 fliers. He was one of three young officers whom Glenn Curtiss originally taught to fly in return for the navy's promise to buy three of his planes.

Rear Adm. Sherman, one of the navy's toughest and ablest flying admirals, has been in command of a carrier task group within the fast carrier task force since last August. He has seen the naval air war through from the start, having been skipper of the carrier Lexington when she was lost in the battle of the Coral Sea.

Forrestal also announced assignment of Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, now a member of the general board, to relieve Adm. Harold R. Stark as commander of naval forces in Europe. Adm. Stark will retire for age after his return to this country.

Vice-Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, being relieved by Vice-Adm. Mitscher as deputy chief of naval operations for air, will become superintendent of the Naval Academy and commandant of the Severn river naval command. He will be the first vice-admiral to hold that post.

Rear Adm. John R. Beardall, now academy superintendent, will relieve Rear Adm. Howard F. Kingman as commandant of the 15th naval district and commander of the Panama Sea frontier and Southeast Pacific. Rear Adm. Kingman will report to the Pacific fleet commander in chief for his assignment.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

tion that the war with Japan will end next year and bring on deflationary factors incident to industrial reconversion.

Elimination of the subsidies would increase the nation's total food bill about 5 per cent, agriculture department economists estimate. Consumers are buying food at the rate of about $30,000,000,000 a year.

Food items on which the government is paying subsidies include meats, butter, fluid milk and most manufactured dairy products, flour and, indirectly, bread and bakery products, canned fruits and vegetables, sugar, dry beans, peanut butter, lard and soybean products.

Supporting the subsidy abandonment idea are several major farm organizations and a strong bloc in congress.

Back of the pressure to wipe out the subsidies is concern over post-war agricultural prices. Anderson and many farmers expect farm prices to go down after the abnormal war market fades. They also expect a public demand for curtailment in government expenditures.

Anderson believes the effects on agriculture will be less harmful if the subsidies are removed while prices are high and the demand is good rather than later when prices have declined.

Under the subsidy program, the actual prices (or returns) received by farmers are hidden, so to speak, from the consumer. The consumer pays only part of the price on the subsidized items. The government pays the remainder.

Abandonment of the subsidies would be done in connection with the government's farm price support program for 1946. In the case of some items, the elimination might be gradual over a period of months. On some items it might not be necessary to increase ceilings to the full extent of subsidies.

One of the principal objections raised against subsidies is that they put the government in the position of paying a part of the food bill or poor and rich alike at a time when there is an excess of purchasing power over the supply of civilian goods available at ceiling prices. Much of this extra buying, subsidy opponents say, is being used to support black markets.

Anderson is not opposed to all food subsidies. He has stated that he believes it may become necessary in the post-war period—particularly should there be considerable unemployment—to subsidize consumption by low-income groups.

on the security council until the international organization actually comes into being.

He voiced the opinion that the Senate will ratify the charter after not more than 10 days of debate, adding:

"There won't be more than six votes against it in the Senate."

Connally disclosed that Senator Hiram Johnson, Democrat, California, would be recorded as against approving the charter, and Senator Murray, Democrat, Montana, as for, with Senator Shipstead, Republican, Minnesota, not recorded.

Johnson was among those who opposed American participation in the League of Nations after the last war.

The committee vote on the charter now stands at 21 for, 1 against.

The committee will meet Monday afternoon to go over its formal report. With the Senate scheduled to consider the Bretton Woods monetary agreement, members will have a week in which to study the report and the 50-nation agreement before ratification opens debate.

TRY TO STOP WORK BY CONVALESCENTS

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—Army hospitals are taking steps to prevent convalescent soldiers still under hospital care from taking jobs.

War Department officials said today it had been found that some wounded veterans allowed to live at home while still under hospital care had been working. This, they explained, delayed recovery of the patient.

Accordingly, hospitals have instituted investigations and cancelled permission for men to live at home where violation of the no-work regulation was discovered.

CHENNAULT

active duty with the U. S. army.

Chennault said he hoped to return home as soon as Stratemeyer's organization had been perfected.

GENERAL STRATEMEYER IS PLACED VER CHENNAULT

KUNMING, China—(Delayed)—(AP)—The reorganization of the American air effort in the China theater, just announced, is likely to have a deep though politely cloaked effect on Chinese-American relations as well as their joint war potential.

In addition it may lead to the resignation of Maj. Gen. Claire Lee Chennault from his unique dual position in the China theater.

Chennault not only commands the 14th but is concurrently chief of staff of the Chinese air force.

(Chennault's resignation was announced in Kunming subsequent to this dispatch. He disclosed that he is returning to the United States and will retire from the army on reaching the United States.)

It was learned unofficially that Chennault, relegated by Washington to a subordinate role after eight years service as one American closest to Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, probably will ask to go home "on points."

For all immediate purposes moving off additional airforce personnel and equipment into China from the India Burma theater is bound to mean some dissipation of present potentiality in supplies which for Chennault's Fourteenth alone are so severely restricted (three lines censored).

It's worth noting and no doubt permissible under security restriction, that Chennault's strategical bombardment group of big gas consuming B-24s haven't run a real mission since May 9 when they blasted Paoching.

Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, 54-year-old Ohio born West Pointer, has been placed over Chennault.

accompanying cruiser, the Philadelphia, when they suddenly appeared out of the mist that hung over the English channel at 7 a. m. (Greenwich mean time), today.

Mr. Truman today finished his study of the proposals he will submit to the other two leaders and the proposals they have laid before him.

It is understood that the president is ready to offer the services of the United States in helping Europe get back on its feet. In return he wants assurances of peaceful cooperation of European countries, who twice in three decades have seen the start of world wars on their continent.

It was at 7 o'clock this morning that the British welcoming ships made their rendezvous with the Augusta and Philadelphia. The sea was calm but the air was misty.

The destroyers smarly lined up beside the American cruisers. The Birmingham circled the Augusta with all her crew standing at attention along the rails. Rear Admiral Cunningham-Graham was aboard.

The procession moved past the white cliffs of Dover where many of the people of this oft-b mbed and shelled part of England athered to see the coming of the American president.

It was Mr. Truman's second trip across the Atlantic. The first time was during the World War when he went over as a young artillery officer.

WOMEN DON'T GET MORE SHOE STAMPS

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—(AP)—Irate women rushed to the city ration board yesterday to request extra shoe coupons to replace non-rationed shoes which they said had not withstood the heavy New Orleans rainfall.

City streets are gushing with water, they said, and wading through them is fatal for some kinds of non-rationed shoes.

The women claimed that some non-rationed shoes curl up when wet and the soles disintegrate.

They wanted a coupon for a pair of shoes of the rationed variety in exchange for soaked ones.

Ration board volunteers listened sympathetically to the sad stories, but told the women that's all they could do.

Unless each woman had only one pair of wearable shoes, they were not entitled to another coupon.

TRUMAN

and Churchill to supplement the Yalta agreement, it would strengthen the first-hand report he is to make immediately to congress upon his return from the Big Three conference.

Probably half of the Berlin decisions will deal with military problems. Among such problems these appear likely to come up:

1. Detailed arrangements for prolonged Allied military occupation of Germany and the use of the occupation forces in accordance with the Moscow declaration of 1943 to preserve peace.

2. Preliminary discussions of the forces which each of the big powers might be expected to commit to the projected United Nations security organization.

3. Talks between the British and American military leaders on roles which other nations in the war against Japan—notably France and Holland—may play in the closing phase of that conflict.

4. Possible exploratory talks with the Russians on the Pacific war. This will go only as Russia may want it to go since the Russians are still carefully guarding their technical neutrality.

5. Discussions of base locations, most likely in very general terms. The establishment of bases is one of the means by which the United Nations are planning to protect not only their individual security but also jointly to provide for their collective security.

EUROPE AND ASIA LOOK TO BIG THREE

POTSDAM, July 14.—(AP)—Here in an idyllic woodland setting still strewn with the wreckage of the German army are Versailles of 1919 and Tehran of 1943 rolled into one, with agonized Europe and Asia alike looking to it for help.

From Moscow, London and Washington have come forecasts of what Gordian-knotted problems will be laid upon the Big Three conference table next week before Russian and English speaking statesmen.

With Europe's chaotic peace and Asia's still fiercely-raging warfare inextricably linked, it is obvious that the Soviet Union now stands toward Japan in many respects similar to the way the United States stood toward Germany in the months preceding Pearl Harbor.

That is why the most important news of all may not be known about the Potsdam conference for a considerable time to come.

All that remained was for the three principals to take their places in Germanic versions of the White House, the Kremlin and No. 10 Downing street, heltered behind lines of Allied guards several miles deep.

President Truman was scheduled to land at Antwerp tomorrow from the cruiser Augusta and to proceed here by plane. Prime Minister Churchill was to end his vacation at Hendaye in France over the week end. Generalissimo Stalin suspended his series of talks with Chinese Premier T. V. Soong at Moscow and prepared to leave for the meeting.

This summer resort area, once popular with Nazi stars of the stage and screen, has been almost completely depopulated of Germans to furnish the security essential for the Big Three.

Stalin is making his second trip outside the Soviet Union in order to meet with Truman and Churchill, but as at Tehran he will stay on soil occupied by the Red army.

The American and British groups are housed in little territorial islands well within the Soviet zone in greater Berlin. Traffic on the broad asphalt highway to Potsdam is a cosmopolitan collection of "high brass" from Moscow, London and Washington.

Almost at the edge of the International Shangri La a German roadside tavern advertises "dancing at 6 o'clock," and a few shabbily-dressed frauliens sun themselves in rickety chairs at the entrance and ogle the Russian soldiers.

Several thousand elite green-capped Soviet frontier guardsmen compose the force chiefly responsible for policing the "Potsdam conference," and they are strictly business.

To refresh the historical figures who are gathering here, expert caterers have had fine foods and wines flown in during the past few days. At Yalta last winter the Big Three feasted on the luxuries of the Soviet Union. The United States and the British Empire are contributing to the Potsdam functions.

Let me illustrate:

A man was sent to our health center this week by a public health nurse from a parish seat of a parish along the Mississippi river east and northeast of here. He was a white man about 30 years of age, who had a small farm, a wife and three small children. His farm is not very productive, and following newspaper and radio appeals, he went to New Orleans to work in industry for the war effort.

A few months after taking his new job, he had a chest x-ray along with all of his fellow workers in a Mobile X-ray trailer attached to Charity Hospital, New Orleans.

His chest was positive for tuberculosis. He became exhausted before the day was half over. He was advised to seek medical aid. He returned to his already badly nourished family at his home.

The public health nurse at the parish seat sent him by bus, transferring at Tallulah, to Monroe, the nearest health center that had an X-ray department and a well estabiished and well publicized health program.

He brought a letter from Charity Hospital in New Orleans saying that his chest was positive and they would send the x-ray films and reading to the doctor of his choice.

His dependent family, wife and three children, were to shift for themselves if we could place him in our T. B. Sanatorium, but we could not because he was not a resident or a tax payer in this parish.

In consultation with our chief nurse and one of our clinic nurses, we agreed the only plan available for him was to return him to his home and then to New Orleans Charity Hospital (Dybert) if after they read the x-ray plates, hospitalization was what the man needed.

A physician for the adequate treatment of tuberculosis was said to be unavailable at his home. His economic status would and could not provide the food and rest needed for his recovery. His entire family would be exposed if he were to remain at home.

This man stated that he had just enough money to return to his home where he would try to get additional money for a trip to New Orleans.

At this point your health director and the two nurses at the health center agreed that we in Louisiana have a great way to go to solve the pressing needs being presented daily.

We all the people in T. B. hospitals in Ouachita parish who should be there removed from their homes and from transmitting the disease to other members of their families, relatives, and friends, we could fill an institution from four to six times the size of our present one.

The man to whom I refer above was very intelligent and he wanted to do anything immediately or go anywhere to get well.

Most people, unfortunately, still have the old superstition and fear that a hospital is somewhere to go and die, and so it is for this type of person who waits so long that they are three-fourths dead before they make up their minds.

Yes, here is a part of the answer regarding the fact that between 1941 and 1943 more colored persons died of T. B. in Ouachita parish than in any parish in Louisiana, and many of these fall in the above stated classification prompted by fear and ignorance as well as superstition.

The health director and his staff cannot of themselves rectify this matter.

Every intelligent citizen in Ouachita parish should appoint himself a committee of one to help solve the problem and it is your problem and may become your health.

You cannot live in an Ivory Tower because you are "your brother's keeper," and please do not forget that.

Health Center, phone 6100.

GREEN SAYS UNREST IS CAUSING STRIKES

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said tonight that "current strikes are symptomatic of a growing unrest among American workers."

He added, in a talk written for a Blue network broadcast:

"First, take-home wages have been sharply cut by reduced overtime.

"Second, many workers have lost their relatively well-paid job in war industries because of cutbacks, and the only new jobs available to them offer much lower wages.

"Third, the failure of the government to act promptly in providing adequate unemployment compensation insurance has filled war workers with fear that they will be left stranded when the war ends."

Green proposed "free collective bargaining" to raise wage rates where price increases will not result. He also asked an increase in minimum wages from 55 to 72 cents an hour, and unemployment insurance paying off as much as $25 a week to workers with families.

Green said "such action will reduce strikes to a minimum."

He reaffirmed the A. F. of L.'s no-strike pledge and said that "headlines last week told us with a great deal of emphasis that fifty thousand workers had quit their jobs" but "not a word was said about the fifty million workers who remained faithfully at their tasks."

FOUR KILLED WHEN BIG PLANE FALLS

WELDON, Tex., July 14.—(AP)—An army airplane exploded and crashed during a heavy rainstorm a mile west of here today, killing at least four passengers.

Mrs. R. J. Bratton, grocery store operator, said only four bodies had been found, but that an army officer phoned her from Memphis, Tex., that "there should have been nine persons aboard."

Later a plane from the Bryan, Tex., army airfield flew over and dropped a note ordering spectators not to approach the wreckage.

THREE OFFICERS AWARDED CROSSES

Two Enlisted Men Receive Bronze Star And Air Medals

Three officers were awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and two enlisted men the Air Medal and the Bronze Star Medal at graduation ceremonies of class 155 at Selman's post theater Saturday.

The awards were made by Col. W. W. Messmore, recently named commanding officer of Selman Field, who was attending his first graduation exercises here.

The Distinguished Flying Cross was presented to Lt. Leonard Reed, navigation instructor, Lt. Emmett R. Kirkpatrick, bombardier redeployment supervisor, Lt. Richard E. Morrison, assistant adjutant.

Master Sergeant William L. Doyle, flight chief on Selman Field's flight line, received the Bronze Star Medal, the nation's eighth highest medal. Doyle, according to the citation, was instrumental in bringing about the success of the 93rd Troop Carrier Squadron which played a leading role in the invasion of Normandy last June 6. Doyle also holds the Air Medal, the Unit Citation and four battle stars to his theater ribbon.

The other enlisted man, Sgt. Douglas R. Johnson, a former gunner in the China-Burma-India theater, was presented with the Air Medal.

While friends and relatives of the graduates looked on Colonel Messmore awarded the wings to the members of the graduating class. Also honored at the ceremony was Lt. Charles Burgan, a member of the class, who scored the perfect mark in the physical fitness tests held here.

Among those attending the graduation exercises was SF 2/c, a navy Seabee who fought in the battle of Tulagi and the Florida Islands, who was among the first to congratulate his brother-in-law, Lt. Newell C. King, Jr., after he received his navigator's wings.

Principal speaker was Capt. James M. Berry, combat veteran, with two tours of duty to his credit.

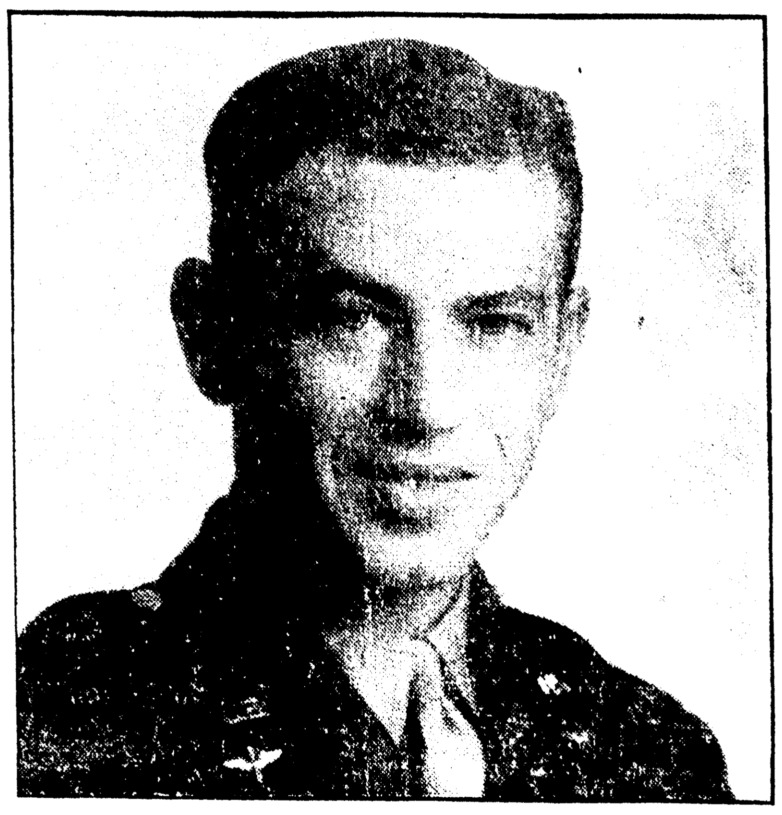
MONROE ACE RETURNING HOME



Maj. Henry Florsheim, rated one of the outstanding airmen in the European theater, is returning home, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Florsheim.

The following tribute was paid to Major Florsheim, star athlete at Neville High School and Northeast Junior College before he entered the service, on a national radio network recently:

"One of Monroe, La., is outstanding airmen, Maj. Henry Florsheim, is on his way home after leading more than forty formations of the B-26 Marauders into enemy territory. He is a group bombardier for the "Silver Streaks" of the 344th medium bombardment group now located in Belgium.

"Major Florsheim holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with eight Oak Leaf Clusters for extraordinary achievement in serial combat. Last summer on a nation-wide radio hookup, Major Florsheim was described as "the best bombardier in the world."

"Recognized as one of the highest-scoring bombardiers to ever hit the enemy from the medium bombers of the U. S. Ninth Air Force. Major Florsheim completed his tour of duty with a better combat score than the rigid qualifying score demanded by the bombardier schools of the Army Air Forces Training Command. The Monroe flier led the first mission completed by his group from Stansted, England. He was again the first bombardier on the unit's 100th mission, and on its first from the airbase at Cormeilles, France."

LT. JOHN DUMAS KILLED IN WAR

Popular Former Aviation Instructor Loses Life In India

Lt. John David Dumas was killed when the C-54 of which he was pilot, crashed 22 miles northwest of Jorhat, India, en route to Chengtu, China. Born in Mississippi and reared in Monroe, he was well known and had many friends in and near Monroe. Lt. Dumas was 36 years of age. At one time he was assistant parish engineer for Ouachita parish. At other times he was a civil engineer with Ford, Bacon, and Davis, and instructor at what was then the Northeast Junior College airport.

Lt. Dumas took up flying as a hobby, using his own plane to get enough hours to become an instructor. He enlisted in the army reserve in 1942. He became a pilot in the Air Transport Command in 1943, taking his primary training at Randolph Field.

Lt. Dumas married Gertrude Powell, who resides at 3204 DeSiard Road. Recently on their fifteenth wedding anniversary, Lt. Dumas sent his wife the Air Medal and the Distinguished Flying Cross, which had been awarded to him in India, for his accomplished flying of the treacherous "hump," unarmed and over enemy territory. Mrs. Dumas received a letter Monday which he had written only a few hours before the fatal crash.

The following message was received by Mrs. Dumas on July 5: "The Secretary of War has asked me to express his deep regret that your husband Lt. John David Dumas was killed in India July 1, '45. Confirming letter follows. J. A. Ulio, the Adjutant General of the Army."

Four days later a letter from Edward F. Witsell, acting adjutant general, giving some details of the crash was received. He expressed regret that he could do nothing to lessen the sorrow in the loss, but expressed hope that solace might be found in the fact that Lt. Dumas had died while he was serving his country. He had been flying in India since last October.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Powell Dumas, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Dumas, Sr., who reside near Bastrop; J. V. Dumas, Jr., Tyler, Texas; Mrs. L. W. Petagna, Monroe; Mrs. Jack Farmer, Schwartz; Robert Dumas, U. S. Navy, San Francisco.

Lt. Dumas was a member of the local chapter of the Knight's of Pythias.

THREE OFFICERS AWARDED CROSSES

Two Enlisted Men Receive Bronze Star And Air Medals

Three officers were awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and two enlisted men the Air Medal and the Bronze Star Medal at graduation ceremonies of class 155 at Selman's post theater Saturday.

The awards were made by Col. W. W. Messmore, recently named commanding officer of Selman Field, who was attending his first graduation exercises here.

Master Sergeant William L. Doyle, flight chief on Selman Field's flight line, received the Bronze Star Medal, the nation's eighth highest medal. Doyle, according to the citation, was instrumental in bringing about the success of the 93rd Troop Carrier Squadron which played a leading role in the invasion of Normandy last June 6. Doyle also holds the Air Medal, the Unit Citation and four battle stars to his theater ribbon.

The other enlisted man, Sgt. Douglas R. Johnson, a former gunner in the China-Burma-India theater, was presented with the Air Medal.

While friends and relatives of the graduates looked on Colonel Messmore awarded the wings to the members of the graduating class. Also honored at the ceremony was Lt. Charles Burgan, a member of the class, who scored the perfect mark in the physical fitness tests held here.

Among those attending the graduation exercises was SF 2/c, a navy Seabee who fought in the battle of Tulagi and the Florida Islands, who was among the first to congratulate his brother-in-law, Lt. Newell C. King, Jr., after he received his navigator's wings.

Principal speaker was Capt. James M. Berry, combat veteran, with two tours of duty to his credit.

MONROE ACE RETURNING HOME

Maj. Henry Florsheim, rated one of the outstanding airmen in the European theater, is returning home, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Florsheim.

The following tribute was paid to Major Florsheim, star athlete at Neville High School and Northeast Junior College before he entered the service, on a national radio network recently:

"One of Monroe, La., is outstanding airmen, Maj. Henry Florsheim, is on his way home after leading more than forty formations of the B-26 Marauders into enemy territory. He is a group bombardier for the "Silver Streaks" of the 344th medium bombardment group now located in Belgium.

"Major Florsheim holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with eight Oak Leaf Clusters for extraordinary achievement in serial combat. Last summer on a nationwide radio hookup, Major Florsheim was described as "the best bombardier in the world."

"Recognized as one of the highest-scoring bombardiers to ever hit the enemy from the medium bombers of the U. S. Ninth Air Force, Major Florsheim completed his tour of duty with a better combat score than the rigid qualifying score demanded by the bombardier schools of the Army Air Forces Training Command. The Monroe flier led the first mission completed by his group from Stansted, England. He was again the first bombardier on the unit's 100th mission, and on its first from the airbase at Cormeilles, France."

LT. JOHN DUMAS KILLED IN WAR

Popular Former Aviation Instructor Loses Life In India

Lt. John David Dumas was killed when the C-54 of which he was pilot, crashed 22 miles northwest of Jorhat, India, en route to Chengtu, China. Born in Mississippi and reared in Monroe, he was well known and had many friends in and near Monroe. Lt. Dumas was 36 years of age. At one time he was assistant parish engineer for Ouachita parish. At other times he was a civil engineer with Ford, Bacon, and Davis, and instructor at what was then the Northeast Junior College airport.

Lt. Dumas took up flying as a hobby, using his own plane to get enough hours to become an instructor. He enlisted in the army reserve in 1942. He became a pilot in the Air Transport Command in 1943, taking his primary training at Randolph Field.

Lt. Dumas married Gertrude Powell, who resides at 3204 DeSiard Road. Recently on their fifteenth wedding anniversary, Lt. Dumas sent his wife the Air Medal and the Distinguished Flying Cross, which had been awarded to him in India, for his accomplished flying of the treacherous "hump," unarmed and over enemy territory. Mrs. Dumas received a letter Monday which he had written only a few hours before the fatal crash.

The following message was received by Mrs. Dumas on July 5: "The Secretary of War has asked me to express his deep regret that your husband Lt. John David Dumas was killed in India July 1, '45. Confirming letter follows. J. A. Ulio, the Adjutant General of the Army."

Four days later a letter from Edward F. Witsell, acting adjutant general, giving some details of the crash was received. He expressed regret that he could do nothing to lessen the sorrow in the loss, but expressed hope that solace might be found in the fact that Lt. Dumas had died while he was serving his country. He had been flying in India since last October.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Powell Dumas, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Dumas, Sr., who reside near Bastrop; J. V. Dumas, Jr., Tyler, Texas; Mrs. L. W. Petagna, Monroe; Mrs. Jack Farmer, Schwartz; Robert Dumas, U. S. Navy, San Francisco.

Lt. Dumas was a member of the local chapter of the Knight's of Pythias.

STREAM-LINED AND SHINY WITH CHROMIUM?
YES, I SUPPOSE SO, ALL IN DUE TIME! BUT RIGHT NOW MY MAIN INTEREST IS A BIG THICK STEAK AND A GOOD NIGHT'S REST!
NO WONDER! YOU'VE CERTAINLY PUT IN A LOT OF TIME!
I'M PRETTY TIRED... I'LL PROBABLY SLEEP THE CLOCK CLEAR AROUND!

NOTE: WHILE THIS REMARKABLE PERPETUAL MOTION MACHINE OPERATES WITHOUT FUEL, IT DOES REQUIRE A PROPULSION AGENT TO SET IT GOING... TEMPORARILY, FIRECRACKERS ARE USED. A LITTLE "CRACKER" FOR LOW SPEED, A BIG ONE FOR REALLY FAST STUFF!
GEE!
NOW I'LL LIGHT THIS LITTLE ONE LIKE DOC DID... SO'S THIS BUGGY'LL JUST BARELY ROLL ALONG...
